STATE LEGISLATURE IN SESSION

Two Asphyxiated at Huntington Beach

CURRENT COMMENT
By Chester H. Rowell

VICE President Dawes made another speech in New York against the direct primary. In these days of discouraged reaction, there may be many who agree with his conclusion. But there will be none who test theories by facts who can agree with some of his arguments.

For instance, speaking of some recent unfit nominations by majority parties, he says that the old convention system would encourage the drafting and nomination of clean candidates by the opposition party. "Under the primary system, however, the opposition can not draft its strongest men as candidates, to emphasize the issue. The opposition party is as likely to choose unknown and incompetent men as candidates."

THIS sounds plausible. But what are the facts? The opposition party to Vare, in Pennsylvania, chose William R. Wilson, one of the best men in the state. He was not only able and upright, but well known and popular. No convention could have done better. The opposition in Illinois, to be sure, chose Boss Brennan, but he was neither "unknown" nor "incompetent." His disabilities were moral. And he would have owned the Democratic convention, if there had been one. No convention system could have improved these shameful conditions, and they have happened oftener in conventions than in primaries.

THE next objection is that the primaries are so expensive that only a wealthy man, or one backed by a wealthy or powerful organization, can run.

This also sounds plausible until you inquire what actually happened. Smith and Vare, to be sure, were wealthy, and spent indecent sums of money. What did they get for it? But in New York, two poor men, the Democratic candidates for Governor and Senator, defeated two very rich Republicans. Every Governor of California, since the primary was introduced, and every Senator but one, has been either poor or of moderate means. Senator Phelan, the one wealthy Senator, was not successful the first time by reason of his wealth, and he was defeated the second time by a poor man. Governor-elect Young, of California, doubtless not exactly "poor," but not a man of large wealth, defeated in the primary Governor Richardson, who had a powerful organization. Fewer of the United States Senators are wealthy now than under the convention system, and certainly no more governors.

FINALLY, the argument is that, under the primary, men are elected "whose chief effort, after election, seems to be to disorganize their party and fight its policies."

This, indeed, does happen under the primary system. So did it under the convention system. So would it, in the same places, still happen if the convention system were substituted. Brookhart could carry the Iowa convention, unless that convention were deliberately made misrepresentative of the party voters. The same is true of the other unorthodox states to the North. The elder La Follette was originally the product of the convention system, and the younger La Follette could have carried a convention in Wisconsin as easily as a primary. It was under the convention system that the Populists captured first many state organizations and finally the national convention of the Democratic party and, under Bryan, reversed its whole character and policies. It was an elected delegate Republican convention in California which repudiated the national Republican nominee, denounced the record of the Republican party in California, and endorsed Republican nominees pledged to fight the Republican party. If these are political wrongs, at least they did not begin with the primary and would not be cured by ending it.

ONE additional stock argument the vice president forgot to make. That is "party responsibility." If the party delegates, in convention, choose the nominees, the party will be responsible for them, and can be punished if they do not make good, but if all the party members choose them, in the primaries, no such responsibility is possible.

This also sounds plausible. But who can remember it ever happening? "Party responsibility" is indeed a good thing. But the direction to look for it is not backward. Nobody can cite any actual instances of its existence or exercise under the old system. If it does not exist now either, the lack is not due to the loss under the primary, of any thing which we ever had before. We may get it someday. Let us hope so. But not by the vain expedient of restoring a device which did not work that way when we had it.

OIL WORKERS ARE FOUND DEAD IN BED

Woman Owner of Cottage Discovers Bodies As She Starts to Investigate

MYSTERY IN DEATHS

Men, Declared to Have Been Out of Work, May Have Committed Suicide

MYSTERY SURROUNDS the deaths of V. E. McLaughlin and C. P. Newell, oil workers, whose bodies were found this morning in a small house at the rear of 303 Sixth street, Huntington Beach.

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. W. I. Clapp, when she went into the cottage to investigate as to whether her tenants were present. She had not seen them for a week and did not know whether they had vacated.

Opening the door to the little house, she was horrified to find the two men dead in bed, and with a gas heater burning in the little room.

The men, it was said, were out of employment. Whether they participated in a suicide pact or were accidentally asphyxiated is not known.

No notes were found in the house or in the clothes of the dead men. The presumption is that the oil workers went to bed and left the fire burning to keep the room warm.

Whether they had been dead for several days or whether they succumbed to the fumes of the deadly gas last night could not be determined by a superficial investigation made immediately following discovery of the bodies, at 10 o'clock.

Jack Tinsley, Huntington Beach police chief, and other members of the force were making investigations as to when the men were last seen and whether there were circumstances that would support a theory of suicide.

Mrs. Clapp is understood to have said that her tenants had paid their rent. Location of relatives is unknown to officers engaged in the investigation.

The bodies are at the Harrell undertaking parlors, Huntington Beach, where Coroner C. D. Brown will conduct an inquest, probably tomorrow.

NAVAL MONEY BILL REPORTED TO HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Slashed by the Coolidge economy mandate, the annual naval appropriation bill, carrying $324,394,680—nearly $10,000,000 below current appropriations—was reported to the house today.

The appropriations committee, acting on the president's counsel, asked no appropriations for three authorized cruisers and two giant dirigibles and left the navy personnel at its present figure of 82,500 men.

The recent proposal for 10 cruisers, approved by the president, stands independently in another bill, calling for no actual appropriation of funds.

Hence, as matters now stand, there is no actual demand for money for new fighting craft, though this may develop as the session progresses.

JOHNSON DEMANDS INCREASE IN NAVY

WASHINGTON, Jan 3.—Declaring the U. S. navy is "woefully weaker" than that of Great Britain and "far inferior" to that of Japan, Senator Johnson, Republican, California, demanded in the senate today that it be brought up to the 5-5-3 ratio.

This, he declared, will require construction of 17 new cruisers by 1932, elevating of guns, increased speed for capital ships and strengthening of Hawaiian defenses.

"We have made the experiment of setting an example of refraining from competition in naval armaments," Johnson said. "That experiment has failed. There is but one thing left to do, unless we wish to fall hopelessly behind in sea power. We must begin at once a light cruiser program which will at least bring us within sight of the other powers."

Natives In Sumatra Again Rebel

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 3.—Dispatches from Batavia today said rebellion against Dutch rule was in progress in the entire district of Siloengkang, on the west coast of the island of Sumatra.

One Dutch officer and 30 rebels were said to have been killed today, and several Dutch soldiers were wounded in an attack on military automobiles. The engagements followed an attack by rebels on Sawahlo-ento, from which they were repulsed.

Many natives were arrested today.

U. S. FOREIGN POLICY CRITICS IRK PRESIDENT

Secretary of State Cancels Regular Press Conference

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Withdrawal of American marines and warships from Nicaragua is asked in a resolution introduced in the senate today by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana. "The landing of our marines on Nicaraguan soil, the establishment of a censorship and the declaring of a territory occupied by the Liberal forces as neutral zones are, under the circumstances, in violation of the principles of international law," the resolution declared.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—With American relations in Mexico, Nicaragua and China in the most critical state of recent years, and President Coolidge asking the press to stop criticizing the administration's foreign policy, Secretary of State Kellogg today cancelled his regular press conference.

Special significance was attached in diplomatic and congressional circles to Kellogg's action, because of disquieting major developments since the secretary received the press, on December 30, when he declined to discuss foreign affairs.

Ready for Compromise

Pressed by senatorial and foreign criticism of U. S. occupation of Nicaraguan rebel ports, and faced by military defeats of the American-recognized Diaz regime there, the administration is ready to compromise.

Administration officials are advising Diaz to accept mediation in the civil war and to agree to practically any compromise solution with the rebels which eliminated the Liberal chief, Sacasa, as a presidential aspirant, the United Press learned today from reliable diplomatic sources.

At the same time, strict orders have been issued to Admiral Latimer, commander of U. S. forces, to avoid further acts, such as the recent criticized American censorship, which could be interpreted as intervention of partisanship.

Settlement of the Nicaraguan dispute, in which Mexico recognizes the rebels, would lessen the strain on United States-Mexican relations, now acute because of the oil land controversy, it is said.

Resent Senatorial Criticism

Officials here, led by President Coolidge, resent as unjustified the senatorial and foreign allegations of imperialism, as applied to the administration's policies in Nicaragua and Mexico, and are anxious to prove by future acts that the United States' only concern in those countries is for legitimate protection of American lives and property.

While there is evidence of some change in method to meet what is considered criticism, the president and Secretary of State Kellogg have no intention of relaxing the basic policy of defending U. S. interests south of the Rio Grande.

In Nicaragua, U. S. warships and marines will not be withdrawn until American lives and property are considered safe from civil war injury, officials said today.

In Mexico, any attempt of the Calles government to seize American property, under the alleged confiscatory oil law, which became effective January 1, will be followed by retaliation by this government, it is understood.

Whether this would be a break in diplomatic relations or lifting the embargo on arms shipments to Mexico, which would aid the counter-revolutionary enemies of Calles, has not been decided.

Officials are watching closely the preparations of De la Huerta, Mexican counter-revolutionary leader, now in Los Angeles, for a possible drive across the border.

RESIDENTS IN QUAKE ZONE SURVEY LOSS

Imperial Valley Tremors Recur and Throw Fresh Scare Into Inhabitants

VOLCANO EMITS SMOKE

Mass of Debris Still Litters Downtown Areas of Calexico and Mexicali

(By United Press)

CALEXICO, Jan. 3—Calexico and Mexicali set about the task of rehabilitation today in the calm wake of the series of earth tremors which partially razed buildings and caused damage in the two cities totaling approximately $1,000,000.

Two light tremors, barely discernible, were felt here early this morning. They were not distinct enough to rouse many residents and caused no apprehension among the populace.

Recurrent temblors early Sunday threw a fresh scare into residents of the quake area, and caused two minor fires, which added to the losses. Black Butte, a volcano, dormant for 40 years, gave forth ominous clouds of black smoke during the day, but the crater was quiet today.

Most of the damage here and across the Mexican border was caused by the series of shocks early New Year's day, and Sunday's quakes were believed to have been merely the customary recurrent tremors which follow severe quakes.

Downtown streets here and at Mexicali still were littered with debris today from falling walls and broken glass fronts, but the wreckage was being removed rapidly by workmen.

Lighting and water service was restored to normal, and the populace felt at ease for the first time since the severe tremors began, shortly after midnight, New Year's, and interrupted the revelry of merrymakers.

Damage in El Centro, Yuma, and other cities which felt the tremors on New Year's morning, was comparatively negligible although several buildings at El Centro were cracked and will have to be rebuilt.

PACKERS DENIED DECISION APPEAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Five major Chicago packing companies today were denied an appeal from a decsion of District of Columbia supreme court, which denied a motion of the packers to set aside a consent decree of 1920, binding them exclusively to the meat packing business.

Swift and company, Armour and company, Morris and company, Wilson and company, and the Cudahy Packing company are involved.

The district court of appeals, in denying the appeal, supported the district court's decision that it had no jurisdiction and that the case should have been taken directly to the U. S. supreme court.

WILL DEDICATE HOSPITAL

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 3.—Formal dedication of an extension to the Mercy hospital, here, will take place next Sunday, according to an announcement. The extension cost $200,000.

Editor Must Serve Term For Contempt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—George R. Dale, Muncie, Ind., editor, must serve his jail sentence for contempt of court, imposed because he criticised the courts of his county in an editorial in his paper, the Muncie Post-Democrat.

The U. S. supreme court today dismissed Dale's petition for a review of the Indiana supreme court decision upholding the decision because the record of the case had not been printed.

No further appeal is possible except a petition for a rehearing and Dale is said to be unable to make it for financial reasons.

BOLD BANDITS GET $11,000 IN L. A. ROBBERIES

Playhouse Theater Safe And Downtown Cafeteria Looted

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Two bold robberies were staged by yeggmen here early today, at a cafeteria and theater, the holdup men escaping with loot totaling more than $11,000.

The Playhouse theater was invaded by a pair of expert safeblowers, who tied the night watchman, broke open a big vault, and fled with $10,000 cash and a diamond-set watch, valued at $1300.

At Leighton's cafeteria, nine employes were pounced upon by two bandits as the establishment was being opened this morning. The bandits forced the manager to open the safe, and escaped with $375 cash. The bandits overlooked $700 in the vault.

Blamed for Both Robberies

Police suspect that both robberies were executed by the same pair of yeggs.

The bandits worked like professionals.

In the cafeteria holdup, the bandits had hidden all night in a washroom. When the employes arrived, they were attacked, and Sam Hamss, the manager, was knocked in the head with the butt end of a pistol when he delayed opening the safe.

Matilda Soehnel, a waitress, also was hit in the head, the blow inflicting a severe flesh wound.

The theater robbery was performed shortly after midnight. O. C. Baker, night watchman, was seized and tied to a chair when he returned from his midnight lunch.

Hears Muffled Explosion

A few seconds later, he heard a muffled explosion and, after he had worked loose from his bonds, three hours later, Baker discovered that the safe had been blown open and emptied.

The diamond-set watch was the property of Louis O. Macloon, lessee of the theater. The loot comprised the returns of the Orange Grove and Playhouse theaters for the holiday period. It was partly covered by insurance.

Police investigators were unable to find finger-prints on the safe. The cracksmen evidently had used gloves in their operations to avoid leaving any clues.

Call Issued for Bank Statement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Comptroller of the Currency McIntosh today issued a call for the condition of all national banks, as of Dec. 31, 1926.

COUNTY ROAD PROGRAM TO BE CHANGED

4 SUPERVISORS AGREE

Division Engineer Will Lose Position Through New Plan to Be Put in Effect

UNDER AN agreement reached among four members of the board of supervisors, drastic changes in the highway construction and maintenance systems will be instituted tomorrow.

J. L. McBride, present superintendent of the county road department, will be left in charge of highway construction contracts. All control and superintendency of dirt roads, hitherto, for some years, under McBride's management, will be put under the control of each supervisor for his own district.

Each supervisorial district is to have its own equipment and crews of employes.

Name DeWolfe, Selbrede

Two dirt road and paved highway superintendents are to be instituted to that extent carrying on the present organized system of road department operations. One of these superintendents will be C. H. Selbrede, who will have general supervision in the second and third supervisorial districts. The other will be W. F. DeWolfe, who will have general charge in the fourth and fifth districts. Selbrede, at present, is an inspector in the highway department, and DeWolfe is a division engineer, in charge, under McBride, of maintenance work in the fourth and fifth districts.

The changes include the separation from the service of Harry J. Parker, who has been division engineer over the second and third districts under McBride. Parker's presence in the road department under McBride is known to have been a storm center. Supervisor William Schumacher failed to get along with Parker, or Parker with him, and McBride refused to fire Parker.

That Supervisors Schumacher and Jeffrey were in favor of taking the dirt road and repair work out of the hands of the county road department under McBride's supervision became known last week. Supervisor-elect John Mitchell, of Garden Grove, also became a convert to that way of thinking. Supervisor S. H. Finley of Santa Ana favored retaining the present system, as did Supervisor Willard Smith of Orange. However, no county roads are located in Finley's district.

It seems that a conference was called recently attended by all of the supervisors excepting Finley, who was left out because he has no road work in his district, and by McBride.

At this meeting the plan for breaking up the present road department was outlined, to become effective tomorrow.

New Duties for McBride

Under the program as agreed upon, the present highway department will be divided up, on the surface, into two separate departments each to be operated separately. Into the paved highway department will go McBride, who, it is understood, has agreed to accept appointment as superintendent of that department at the same salary as he now draws. McBride will have entire charge of getting rights-of-way, of drawing up specifications, of arranging for receiving of bids, of seeing that contracts are properly drawn, of seeing to it that contractors live up to their contracts. He is to have nothing to do with dirt roads and nothing to do with repairing of paved roads.

The two division engineers, or superintendents, are to have a bookkeeping department at the courthouse, and there accounts are to be kept of the operations of each supervisorial district.

Each supervisor is to be supreme in his own district so far as directing the improvement of dirt roads and the repair of paved highways, his instructions to be carried out through the division engineer, in charge of his district.

The tractors, graders and other equipment now congregated in the highway department are to be divided up among the four districts, and each district is to organize its own highway department. Whether that department will revert to the old road boss system remains to be seen, it appears that whether it does is a matter to be determined by each supervisor for his own district. Supervisor John Mitchell said today that so far as his district is concerned, he does not intend to use the road boss system, but proposes to operate his equipment and crews as a district unit.

Acting under the agreement, Mc-

High Court to Review Teapot Suit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The government's sweeping St. Louis victory in the Teapot Dome oil suit, annuling leases held by three Harry F. Sinclair companies, will be reviewed by the U. S. supreme court.

The supreme court today granted a review of the circuit court of appeals decision, holding the leases on the rich naval oil reserve lands in Wyoming had been obtained fraudulently.

Similar government victory in the Doheny-Elk Hills annulment case from California now is under advisement by the court, the appeal having been argued last fall, and it is believed probable the cases may be decided together.

130 DEPUTIES IN COURTHOUSE ARE RENAMED

New Appointments Made By County Officials As Matter of Form

In compliance with the law requiring reappointment of all deputies in county offices with the beginning of new terms of office, various officials today were filing written certificates of appointment with the county clerk. The new appointments, affecting about 130 deputies, became effective at noon today.

New "faces" at the courthouse today were few, outside of the district attorney's office, where an entirely new "lineup" accompanied Z. B. West jr. into office, as the successor of A. P. Nelson. L. W. Blodget, of Huntington Beach; Sam L. Collins, of Fullerton, and Roy V. Shafer, of Santa Ana, are West's deputies. Shafer has been in the office a month under Nelson's regime. Mrs. Ruby Bush, former deputy city clerk of Santa Ana, is West's office clerk.

Elsewhere at the courthouse, the only new face noted was that of Elmer Schaniel, adjutant of Santa Ana post, American Legion, who was appointed deputy county clerk by J. M. Backs. Schaniel relieves H. M. Head, who has been a department clerk of superior court, since department 3 was established in 1923. Head has joined the law offices of his father, H. M. Head, of the firm, Head, Rutan and Scovel, Santa Ana.

Preparations were being made today for reorganization of the county board of supervisors which is scheduled to hold its first meeting of the new term tomorrow.

Election of Supervisor William Schumacher of Buena Park, as chairman of the board, was forecast in today's discussion of the approaching meeting. Schumacher, member from the third district, is the veteran of the board, and his selection to succeed T. B. Talbert, of Huntington Beach, retiring supervisor from the second district, is understood to be virtually assured.

John C. Mitchell, of Garden Grove, elected from the second district to fill Talbert's place, is the only new member. Willard Smith, of Orange, starts a new term as representative of the fourth district, as does George Jeffrey, of Irvine, supervisor from the fifth district. S. H. Finley, of Santa Ana, supervisor from the first district, is a holdover member, with Schumacher.

ARIZONA SOLONS IN EXTRA SESSION

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 3.—Arizona's eighth legislative session opened here today, with Democrats, led by Gov. G. W. P. Hunt, dominating, by a big majority.

This was a special session, called by Governor Hunt, the regular biennial meeting of the legislators to start on January 10.

A tentative organization was perfected at caucuses Sunday.

E. Winsor, of Yuma, twice president of the senate, was re-elected a third time.

The preliminary meeting of the legislature was called by Governor Hunt to pass legislation "to protect Arizona's rights on the Colorado river," and for special funds for the state highway department.

LAWMAKERS ASSEMBLE IN SACRAMENTO

California's 47th General Assembly Convenes, with Flood of Bills Impending

LEVEY NEW SPEAKER

Important Matters Coming Up Include Reapportionment and Road Financing

(By United Press)

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 3.—Edgar C. Levey, of San Francisco, was elected speaker of the assembly, at the opening of the California legislature, this afternoon.

Levey overwhelmed Bradford Crittenden, of Tracy, and Isaac Jones, of Ontario, receiving 57 of the 79 votes cast. Crittenden and Jones each polled 11 votes.

Senator Arthur Breed, of Piedmont, was named speaker pro tem of the senate for another term, without opposition.

Levey's election gives San Francisco its first speakership in 24 years.

The galleries of both houses were well filled with spectators and the assembly chamber was given a touch of color by the bright dresses of wives and women friends of the essemblymen, who were honored with seats for the opening.

Arthur Ohnimus, of San Francisco, veteran clerk of seven sessions, was unanimously re-elected to the post of chief clerk of the assembly.

Young Starts Senate Moving

Lieutenant Governor and Gov.-elect C. C. Young set the wheels of the senate in motion and Arthur Ohnimus, of San Francisco, dropped the gavel in the assembly.

William M. Byrne, of Los Angeles, nominated by Charles F. Reindollar, of San Rafael, was elected speaker pro tem, without opposition in the assembly.

Drizzling rain and heavy fog hung over Sacramento this morning, as legislators, attaches, lobbyists and and visitors flocked into the city for the opening of the 47th legislature.

Skids were well greased for the legislative offices, and the session today was apparently to be of brief duration. Gov.-elect C. C. Young arrived from Berkeley on an early train, and went immediately to his room to confer with his advisors. Lt. Gov.-elect Buron R. Fitts was still writing on his message to the legislature early today.

Plenty of Bills Coming

There will be no dearth of bills for presentation at the coming session, it was indicated by questioning the legislative arrivals.

Reapportionment, highway financing, reorganization of state departments and budget stand out as the important questions to be considered.

Assemblyman Morgan Keaton, of Long Beach, was here with his measure proposing a poll tax of $5 on every person who doesn't vote.

Assemblyman Dan Wilson, of Chinese Camp, would put tuberculosis under the head of occupational disease within the meaning of employers' liability. Assemblyman Van Bernard, of Butte City, will recommend a separate ward at San Quentin for youthful prisoners, and a constitutional amendment making terms of assemblyman four years instead of two.

Stockton's appeal for money for a deep water canal will be presented by Assemblyman F. Charles Cloudley, of Stockton, more salary for superior judges of Alameda, Los Angeles and San Francisco is sought by the State Bar association, which would raise the annual pay of these judges from $7000 to $10,000.

Would Abolish Executions

The bill to abolish capital punishment will be presented by Senator T. C. West, of Alameda, who has added a new feature, providing that persons convicted of capital offenses shall not be paroled. Repeal of the corporations securities act, substituting the Colorado fraud act, will be sought in a bill introduced by Assemblyman Walter Little of Los Angeles.

A whole flock of bills to remedy the state highway building situation will be presented, ranging from bond issues to a new gasoline tax.

Following adjournment this afternoon, the committee appointed to prepare the inauguration program, which starts tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, will immediately get to work. At the inauguration, Governor Young will outline in his message the policies of state government he proposes to follow during his administration, together with laws he desires passed by the new legislature.

DEATH IS ACCIDENTAL

EL CENTRO, Jan. 3.—The death of E. C. McGuire, 21, of El Centro, who died in an El Centro hospital, this morning, following an automobile accident on the Yuma highway, near the sand hills, was held to be accidental, at the inquest today.

Man With $3700 Held for Forgery

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 3.—C. J. Dryden, wanted for forgery in New York, will be held in jail here until a telegraphic warrant for his arrest on a felony charge, on its way from New York, arrives, Chief of Police James Patrick said today.

Patrick said the warrant will be sufficient to block any attempt by Dryden to gain release on habeas corpus proceedings. Word that the warrant was being sent was received this morning from William J. Fahey, chief inspector of police in New York.

Search of Dryden's baggage failed to reveal the $150,000 in cash he is alleged to have obtained through forged checks, in New York. When he was arrested, Saturday night, Dryden had $3700.70 on his person. He claimed this was part of $12,000 he had won at the Saratoga races before he came west.

"Registering" Our Progress

By J. Albert Dennis

Mr. J. P. Baumgartner, Editor The Register:

Many metropolitan newspapers issue a New Year's edition, reviewing the past year's activities, take a panoramic glance into the future with its general outlook, etc. In this respect The Register on Saturday fairly eclipsed itself and I doubt if it has been surpassed by any paper in a city of 30,000 inhabitants. Nothing was left to be added, and the staff scored a journalistic feat that merits the plaudits of all citizens who are proud of the progress and prosperity of the city they call their home.

What a fine thing it would be if the county or Chamber of Commerce would send tens of thousands of copies of the paper back east to tell the story of our growth during the past year,—a mine of information, retrospective and prospective, a comprehensive review of the activities of beautiful Santa Ana and Orange county in which

Her roses bloom forever beneath an azure sky,
Her sunlight fadeth never for summer linger'd nigh,
Here at the gateway of the east, in tropic garlands dressed,
She smiles in budding beauty, the Queen of the American West.

SEVEN PERSONS ARE INJURED IN AUTO MISHAPS

Seven persons were injured, none critically, in three automobile accidents reported to officers over the week end. One of the accidents occurred in Santa Ana, one near Talbert and one in Brea canyon.

Broken ribs and serious cuts about the head were suffered by Archie Shearer, last night, when the car, in which he was a passenger, overturned on the highway in Brea canyon. Lee Tride was the driver of the car. He was uninjured. Mrs. H. Shearer, Mrs. Pearl Shearer, Mrs. Lee Tride and Pauline Tride, small daughter of the driver, were slightly injured.

According to the occupants of the car, another car, driven by a person whose name was not learned, cut in front of the Tride car in the heavy traffic in the canyon. The front fender was caught in the wheel of the other car, causing the Tride machine to overturn.

The injured were removed to their homes, where they were treated by physicians.

Donald McIntosh, small son of M. S. McIntosh, 932 East Fourth street, Santa Ana, was slightly injured at 4 p. m., yesterday, when the machine, in which he was riding with his father, collided with a car driven by J. R. Goodwin, 55, 501 South Main street, at the intersection of Third and Bush streets.

The McIntosh machine was travelling west on Third street and the Goodwin car was being driven north on Bush street at the time of the accident.

Young McIntosh was taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital, where medical aid was given, and later removed to his home.

Tom Stonaker, 620 Twelfth street, Huntington Beach, suffered a severe cut on his face, when the automobile, in which he was riding, collided with a machine on the Edinger road, one mile east of Talbert, yesterday afternoon, according to a report filed by George Stinson, state traffic officer.

Stonaker was taken to the emergency hospital, in Huntington Beach, and later removed to his home.

..o one in the other machine was reported injured.

CONVICTS BALKED IN PRISON BREAK

SAN QUENTIN, Jan. 3.—"Big Bill O'Conor was in solitary confinement and Ernest Booth was in the prison hospital, with both legs broken, today, at the result of a daring but futile attempt to shorten their sentences of five years to life, by escaping.

O'Connor and Booth are two of the most notorious criminals in San Quentin. The attempted escape was thwarted by guards, forewarned, who watch Booth partially descend a makeshift rope of blankets and clothing from the window of his room in the tuberculosis ward of the prison hospital. The rope broke and Booth fell 30 feet, to break both legs.

O'Connor, who was just preparing to descend, was overpowered by guards. He was sentenced from San Francisco and Booth from Oakland, both for robbery.

PRISON URGED FOR ALCOHOL POISONING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Criminal prosecution on homicide charges of persons responsible for poisonous substances being placed in industrial alcohol was demanded in a resolution introduced in the house today by Representative Black, Democrat, New York.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today urged all possible speed by federal chemists to remove poison ingredients from denatured alcohol.

Mellon summoned Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews, Under Secretary of the Treasury Winston and Dr. J. N. Doran, chief prohibition chemist, to his office to discuss the alcohol situation.

Afterwards, Andrews said the Industrial Alcohol association had established a fellowship at the Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, to find a non-poisonous denaturant for the commercial alcohol.

The American Chemical society has requested its 15,000 members to make suggestions for a non-poisonous denaturant that would make alcohol unfit for drink.

ROAD PROGRAM TO BE CHANGED

Bride today has been busy "firing" crews of men who have been at work under his department. Several dozen men have been let out. Some of these men will secure employment, doubtless, through the new supervisorial district organizations. Others are out looking for new jobs elsewhere.

The old road boss system, long in use in this county was one in which each supervisor had his district broken up into road districts, each in charge of a boss. Dissatisfaction with the system resulted in instituting the county road department about six years ago.

The supervisors who made their fight against the road department have declared that the new system, under which a supervisor can have a district organization, or separate road boss districts if he desires, will save money for the county as a whole.

No New Year's Baby? Doctors, Hurry Reports!

What? No New Year's baby? Santa Ana merchants, who offered an extensive array of infant equipment to the first child born within the city in the new year, were becoming desperate today.

Will they be forced to bestow the collection upon a baby born on January 2.

Inquiry at the Santa Ana Valley and Orange County hospitals today again failed to locate a single cherub who cried his, or her, first on January 1. Several husky youngsters made their appearance on January 2, but the conditions of the award were that the child should be born on January 1 and be the first child of 1927.

One hope was held out today—that the doctors of the city will make belated reports, indicating the identity of the fortunate youngster.

What's a new year baby contest without a baby?

HURLS GARBAGE CAN AT JAILER AND ESCAPES

Taking advantage of the fact that he was selected to carry garbage out of the county jail, Saturday night, E. G. Gammell, 26, Seal Beach oil worker, a prisoner in the county jail since December 20, made his escape by dashing down the alley in the rear of the jail, after throwing the garbage can at Jailer Bray, who had followed him out of the building, according to a report filed at the sheriff's office.

Gammell had been made a trusty the day before.

He walked out a side door with several other prisoners, who also carried garbage cans. Emptying the can, he threw it at Bray and disappeared around the corner. Bray was not armed at the time, it was said.

Sheriff's officers immediately searched the city for the man, but thus far he has not been apprehended.

Gammell came to jail from Huntington Beach, where he was found guilty on a charge of reckless driving, in Justice C. W. Warner's court. He was sentenced to serve 250 days or pay a fine of $250.

Gammell's time would have expired on Aug. 26, 1927.

RECKLESS DRIVER GETS LONG TERM

Ninety days in jail was the sentence meted out to W. F. Ficke, of Orange, when he appeared before Recorder B. B. Brown, in Seal Beach, this morning, charged with reckless driving.

Ficke was arrested at 3 a. m., Saturday, on the Coast highway, when officers were attracted by the screams of a woman companion.

According to officers, Ficke frightened his companion by his erativ driving. She leaped from the car and screamed.

Paper Companies Lose Trust Suit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The federal trade commission today won in U. S. supreme court its anti-trust suit against the Pacific States Paper Trade assoc., which includes 5 local association of wholesale paper dealers in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Spokane, Seattle and Tacoma. The court reversed a circuit court ruling against the commission, in which it was held that sales to retail dealers within the state were not interstate commerce when the goods were shipped in from another state direct to the retailer.

McReynolds May Get Federal Job

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews is considering Maj. Frank R. McReynolds, internal revenue supervisor at Los Angeles, for prohibition administrator for Southern California and Arizona.

McReynolds will arrive in Washington tomorrow, to confer with Andrews.

STUDENT KILLS SELF

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 3.—Convinced that he had experienced everything that life had to offer, Joe N. Moore, a 21-year-old University of Illinois student, killed himself here Sunday. Moore left a note in which he told of his determination to die because he had lived "life in full."

Police News

Guy W. Stull, 514 South Ross street, returned to Santa Ana Sunday, from Tia Juana, minus the automobile which he drove to the border, according to a report filed with the sheriff's office. Stull reported that his machine was stolen while he was visiting the Mexican city. A description of the car was sent to a number of cities in Southern California.

An automobile, owned by Russell Hall, 519 Ninth street, Huntington Beach, was stolen in the beach city January 1, according to a report filed with the sheriff's office.

1926 MARRIAGE MART BROKEN BY DAN CUPID

The marriage market closed strong in Orange county, establishing a new December record and setting, also, a new high mark of 5026 for the year 1926.

The year's total, passing the 5000 mark for the first time, showed a gain of 262 over the total for 1925, which was 4764. This figure is expected to give Orange county third rank among the 58 counties of the state, in number of marriage licenses issued. Los Angeles and San Francisco counties ranked ahead of this county in 1925.

During December, there were 495 licenses issued, according to the records of County Clerk J. M. Backs. December, 1925, had 405 licenses. The month just closed showed a gain of 71 over the preceding month, November.

The usual "after the holiday" slump now is anticipated by Backs, whose records show that the first quarter of each year always is the "dull" season at the license bureau. This is apparent in the record for 1926, which is as follows:

January, 380; February, 296; March, 362; April, 392; May, 432; June, 522; July, 439; August, 416; September, 450; October, 418; November, 424; December, 495.

Worden left Santa Ana when he went to an officers' training camp, at the presidio, during the World war, and located in Tacoma following his release from service.

Veteran Is Freed From Bastile to Go to Sanitarium

Paul Tucker, former service man, held in the county jail as a parole violator and on a charge of passing alleged worthless checks, was freed yesterday by the county parole board on condition that he be sent to the Compton sanitarium, according to A. P. Nelson, former district attorney and member of the parole board of 1926.

Nelson said that Tucker's status as a parole violator stood, but that the criminal charge against him had been dropped on condition that he be sent to the hospital.

The board was told that the man would be removed to Compton as soon as possible, according to Nelson.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Funeral services for Jasper N. Osborn, 73, resident of Santa Ana for almost 20 years, who died here Dec. 28, 1926, were to have been held this afternoon, in the Smith and Tuthill Funeral parlors. Burial was to have been made in Fairhaven cemetery.

Setting a pace which officers termed as reckless driving, S. A. Pace, 39, Biltmore hotel, Los Angeles, was lodged in the county jail, Saturday night, following his arrest by C. J. Cain, state traffic officer.

Pace is alleged to have been driving without proper identification. He was later released on bail.

Pace was arrested on the state highway, near Irvine station. He made bail for $100 for his appearance in Justice Kenneth E. Morrison's court here.

According to records at the jail, Pace is an oil man.

The sale of women's shoes has increased between 40 and 50 per cent in the last 10 years.

ONE INJURED WHEN CAR LEAVES ROAD

Emerson H. Peterman, of Los Angeles, suffered a badly wrenched ankle, an injured chest and a severely bruised head in an accident in which the car, in which he was a passenger, overturned near Laguna Beach, late last night.

Peterman was riding with Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Ward, 2005 Greenleaf street, and his wife and baby at the time of the accident. A heavy fog prevented Ward from seeing a curve in the road, according to a report of the accident.

Other members of the party were uninjurd. Peterman was given first aid treatment in the Santa Ana Valley hospital.

MAN, WOMAN HELD ON BOOZE CHARGES

Charged with being drunk and with possession of intoxicating liquor, Fern Crandall, 25, dancing teacher, of 1044 South Kenmore avenue, Los Angeles, and Harvey Sutton, 32, of the same address, were arrested in Brea, Saturday afternoon, by Chief W. H. Williams, of the oil town.

They were brought to the Orange county jail, where they spent the week-end. They were to have been taken to Brea today for trial.

According to Williams, the dancing teacher was far from being in condition to dance at the time of her arrest. A quart of alleged liquor was found in the machine, together with two smaller empty bottles, it was said. Sutton is said to be a cook.

Sutton is booked at the jail on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor and possession.

DE LA HUERTA GETS READY TO STRIKE CALLES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Reports from Guaymas, Sonora, Mex., telling of brisk encounters in that vicinity between Yaqui Indians and Mexican federal troops, received here today, tended to substantiate statements fo Adolfo De la Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, that he was directing a concentration of rebel forces to strike against the Calles government.

In two clashes near Ortiz, according to the Guaymas dispatches, received by El Eco de Mexico, here, from its Guaymas correspondent, Yaqui insurrectionists, who recognize De la Huerta as their leader, were at first forced to retreat, but in the second engagement defeated the federal forces.

Eighteen Yaquis and 22 federals lost their lives in the two skirmishes, according to the dispatches. Scores were wounded on both sides.

Ready to Strike

That De la Huerta, who has figured prominently in six Mexican revolutions, two of which he led himself, is ready to strike against Calles, his former colleague, has been known to department of justice agents here for some time.

The U. S. officials have maintained a "hands off" policy, pending developments, which thus far have not included any move, it was said, which could be interpreted as a violation of American neutrality laws.

Reports of munitions smuggling across the border into Mexico, via Tucson, which reached here today, were considered significant also, in the light of recent declarations of De la Huerta.

The famous revolutionist is in hiding at his Los Angeles home, where he is surrounded by a bodyguard of six armed men. He is under constant surveillance of U. S. department of justice agents.

Mexicans to Be Tried

Gen. Enrique Estrada, former Mexican secretary of war, and nearly 100 alleged associates, are scheduled to go on trial in federal court here tomorrow, on charges of violating American neutrality laws.

Estrada and an "army" of 150 men were captured last fall, near San Diego, on the eve of an asserted movement into Lower California to stage a rebellion.

A fleet of armored trucks, and a large quantity of munitions and machine-guns, were confiscated by the federal agents at the time.

Fifty of the accused Mexicans have pleaded guilty and will be sentenced after the trial.

SAILOR BRINGS FIANCEE TO SANTA ANA AND DAN CUPID OPENS 1927 MARRIAGE BOOK

Obeying the slogan of "shop early," Mary Rudy, 19, of Los Angeles, was the first 1927 bride in Orange county.

Mary appeared at 8 o'clock on New Year's morning, on the arm of Claudius Morris La Bean, 22, a sailor on the U. S. S. Tennessee, at San Pedro. The courthouse being closed, because of the legal holiday, Mary and Claudius visited the home of County Clerk J. M. Backs, who obligingly opened the license bureau and issued them a license.

Although it was their first marriage, the occasion was not the first matrimonial venture for Mary and Claudius. They had visited Backs once before and Saturday showed him a license that had been issued to them here last December 7. At that time they had lost the copy of the certificate that must be filed with the state bureau of vital statistics, in Sacramento. When they appeared Saturday, they were merely looking for a duplicate of the lost certificate, but found that a new license was required as well.

Another sailor, Walter D. Huse, 20, a shipmate of La Bean, also appeared with the girl of his choice, Jane Kelly, 19, of Los Angeles, but were refused a license by Backs. Huse and La Bean had brought their fiancees to Santa Ana on December 7 for a double wedding, but both lost their certificates. In making out his second application, Saturday, Huse gave his age as 20. Backs compared this with the previous application which showed Huse's age to be 21. Accordingly, the license was refused.

—buy with a small amount down

We ran across one of our best manufacturers in December in a low frame of mind. He had overbought on upholstery fabrics; was stocked up with more than he ought to have.

We suggested that, instead of selling part of them to some fabric dealer, he make them up into regular suites and allow us to sell them at lower prices than usual.

Our idea was to bring our customers something worth while rather than to help him from under a heavy fabric investment, although it works that way.

He agreed, and here we are!

Fine, three-piece living room suites, with hardwood frames, spring seats and backs; davenport, high-back chair and low-back rocker; upholstered in jacquard velour, in taupe and blue.

Priced away down at $98 per suite.

Offered to you on EASY PAYMENTS—a small payment down brings one of these quality suites to your home—you can pay the balance in convenient monthly portions.

Engagement of Former Santa Ana Girl Is Announced

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Hall, their daughter, Miss Daisy Leslie Hall, and her grandmother, Mrs. Kate K. Roberts, all of whom resided in Santa Ana for many years, will be interested in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Hall to Milton Lloyd Selby. The news was told last Wednesday at a delightful bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Hall at the Women's Athletic club.

The engagement of Miss Hall to Milton Lloyd Selby was formally announced at the annual breakfast given by members of Alpha Phi sorority at University of California, Southern Branch, last June, when Mr. Selby sent an immense box of chocolates to his fiancee, following out the old custom of this sorority. The wedding will take place April 6, next in the Episcopal church of Alhambra.

The date was told by means of tiny booklets of gold with the single leaf inscribed with the two names and wedding date. The color scheme was attractively carried out in pink and white sweet peas, and roses, with tulle ribbons, and pink candles adding the artistic touch to the effect.

Those included were Mrs. Hoyt Hall, Mrs. Edward M. Selby, Mrs. Abe Roberts, of Alhambra; Mrs. E. E. Barnes, Mrs. P. E. Waugh, Mrs. Walter Noble, Mrs. Robert Holland, Mrs. Alice Blair, Mrs. Harry Warren, Mrs. Ruel Neizer, Miss Daisy Roberts, Miss Margaret Geer, Miss Eleanor Bunnell, Miss Christine Bauer, Miss Marjorie Newlin, Miss Adeline Shearer and Miss Janet Jepson.

The bride-elect, who will be graduated from University of California, Southern Branch, in February, is a member of the Alpha Phi sorority there and is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Hall of Marathon street, while Mr. Selby, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Milton Selby of Riviera, was graduated from University of California law college in Berkeley last June and is affiliated with the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity and is also a member of the national legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi.

Mrs. Addie Johnson Is Honor Guest at Birthday Party

Mrs. Georgia Stine, pioneer resident of this city, who has resided for many years at her home, 416 West Washington avenue, entertained at a delightful New Year's dinner, honoring the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Addie Johnson.

The sumptuous dinner with turkey as the piece de resistance, served with many appetizing accessories, was enjoyed at noon. The table was centered with delicate pink camelias, covers being laid for the hostess, the honoree and their old friends, Mrs. R. E. Lehmann, Mrs. E. E. Dibble, Mrs. Sarah Graham, Mrs. B. Green and Miss Pauline Parsons, who assisted the hostess during the day.

The feast was climaxed when a lovely birthday cake with its quota of twinkling candles was set before Mrs. Johnson, who extinguished them, while her friends expressed their good wishes and congratulations. None of the guests would disclose her age, but the combined years would reach a goodly sum.

The Christmas tree and holiday decorations still being in place, Mrs. Johnson's gifts were placed on the tree and she enjoyed a second Santa Claus. Beautiful red carnations added to the Yuletide effect in the living room.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Presbyterian Aid

The spacious home of Judge and Mrs. William H. Thomas was thrown open in lavish Christmas hospitality Thursday afternoon to the members of the southwest section of the First Presbyterian Aid society and the executive board members of the other sections, assembled for an afternoon party.

Instead of having the usual Christmas tree for entertainment; the program committee offered an original entertainment in "The Missionary Box," an amusing little sketch in which those taking part were Mrs. J. J. Hershiser, chairman; Mrs. W. H. Thomas, Mrs. Frank Thomas, Mrs. G. B. Darnell, Mrs. Greene, Mrs. C. E. Searles and Miss Edith Ward.

In the sketch, two boxes were packed, one with a collection of shabby and moth-eaten garments and broken toys, to be sent to a missionary, the other with handsome articles of clothing and beautiful toys for wealthy relatives. When labels were mixed and the boxes reached destinations different from what was intended, the action of the play became most exciting, and yielded a happy afternoon for all who witnessed it.

After refreshments had been served by the hostess committee, a collection was taken for a worthy family in distress, a very satisfactory sum being raised. The guests were then entertained with music by an orchestra of young sons of section members, James and Edgar Thomas of the home, Clark and Floyd Best and Marion Nau.

There were 75 members and guests to share the afternoon's pleasures.

Annual Party

The annual Christmas party for the Bible classes of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Mercereau was held on Thursday evening in the basement of the Ramona building. Santa Claus was there and helped graciously in distributing the presents from a beautifully decorated tree.

A fine musical program was enjoyed and then refreshments of ice cream and cake. The rest of the evening was spent in games. There being plenty of room available it was possible to put on some outdoors sports, the main one of which was a football game between "Stanford" and "Berkeley." Some college yells were heard that sounded very real. Probably the most mirth provoking stunts was the witnessing of the get-away and return of two brides and grooms.

About 80 were present and every one reported having had a fine time.

Bible Class Meets

Mrs. O. S. Catland entertained the members of her Bible class of the First Baptist church at her home on Wellington street Tuesday afternoon. About 55 were present.

The house was decorated with Christmas decorations, refreshments were served of coffee and [illegible]

This lovely head of hair is not the result of excellent care and frequent brushings, but of wise expenditure. It is one of the transformations made of fine white silk floss which Parisian ladies like so much for evening wear. Besides its fascinating lustre, it will take a marcel as well as hair—and silk is easier to find than long hair these days.

Merrymakers Greet New Year at S. A. Country Club

With clashing of cymbals and beating of drums was the old year sent on his way as merrymakers at the Santa Ana Country club greeted the new year Friday night.

The 241 persons who greeted the new year at the country club were also guests there for dinner. Chapman's seven-piece orchestra provided the music which beguiled the time until the hour arrived for the greeting of the new year.

As 12 o'clock approached it was noticed that Father Time had arrived for one last look at the dancers before he should leave for another year. He was impersonated by Carl Mock. Miss Dorothy Tubbs represented the new year and was hailed with appropriate applause as she took the place just vacated by Father Time.

Starting with the dinner and lasting until last night the country club was the mecca for many who were taking advantage of the holiday season, according to T. F. McGilvray, manager.

8 ESCAPE WHEN YACHT GROUNDS ON BEACH SAND

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Burge, of Santa Ana, narrowly escaped death and the $65,000 yacht, Louise, owned by Burge, was wrecked late yesterday afternoon, when the boat went aground on the beach, near Twenty-Fifth street, west of the Newport pier, in a dense fog.

The lives of Mrs. Burge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Werner, and Mr. and Mrs. William Williams, of Los Angeles also were endangered, in the crash, according to reports received here. Ernest Delgato, engineer on the boat, and a cabin boy, who constituted the crew, escaped with a wetting.

Mr. and Mrs. Burge and party were returning from Catalina Island on the Louise. A heavy fog prevented Burge from seeing shore. Burge was acting captain of the boat and was steering by compass. According to reports, the compass was inaccurate.

The Louise was a 110-foot boat, with a capacity of 14 tons. She was purchased several years ago by Burge, who is a wealthy citrus grower and oil operator. Burge recently spent approximately $20,000 in repairs to the Louise. It was one of the finest boats in Newport bay.

The first warning of disaster came to the party as the boat entered the breakers. Burge signaled for reverse, but the clutch failed to work and the boat went aground. Breakers picked the boat up and soon broke it to pieces.

Only a few articles on the craft were salvaged. Mrs. Burge jumped overboard and waded ashore. Other members of the party were taken off the yacht in a life boat. Fishermen at Newport assisted in the rescue work.

The boat was not insured. According to reports, insurance companies refused to carry insurance on the boat because of the dangerous condition of the entrance to Newport bay.

Miss Clara Reed, 21, pretty modiste, drank poison, according to police reports, and died enroute to the hospital. Her suicide resulted from an unhappy love affair, police said.

Mrs. Estrella, 17, wandered from her home after a quarrel with her husband, and, according to eye-witnesses, threw herself under the wheels of a passing automobile. She suffered a fractured rib and other minor injuries.

Ventures of Valencia

Whenever an eddy of swirling wind stirs the dust into miniature cyclones that move across the fields, lifting bits of paper and dry leaves to the sky on otherwise calm days, people point to the phenomenon and say, "that's a Santa Ana." Thus, the vagrant winds advertise the city, which, my escort says, is a dandy "tie up."

A proprietor of a Santa Ana hotel told me an amusing incident that proves it's an ill wind that blows nobody good. A stranger, carrying a small bag, struggled against the wind as he made his way to the hotel. His overcoat was blown straight out, like a mains'l, his hat was jammed over his eyes, while the bag became a pendulum, swinging in the wind. He found a moment's calm beneath the hotel's marquee. The stranger set down the bag, adjusted his hat and coat and prepared to enter. A sudden blast threw the door wide, the bag slid into the lobby and the guest was urged through a portal, held open by magic hands. The wind subsided and the door closed. The man was comically startled for a moment and then said, "Boy, that's what I call service."

Saturday, Messrs. Hightower and Cromer placed at my disposal a Packard straight eight and, escorted by Mr. Greenleaf, sales manager, I went to Pasadena, to the Tournament of Roses. Originally sponsored by a few members of a hunt club, in 1889, who saw an opportunity for exploiting the town, which they were proud to call home, with the co-operation of the few merchants, the first tournament consisted of rose covered buggys, wagons, etc.

Quick to realize the importance to the community of the pageant, the idea has developed and Saturday there were 500,000 visitors in Pasadena and the tournament has made the city familiar to persons throughout the world. In a lesser degree, perhaps, the Orange County Personality pageant, scheduled for January 20, provides the nucleus of a similar project, whose future development depends entirely upon the vision and civic spirit of local organizations. Our pageant offers opportunity for portrayal of people, products, personalities and places of Orange county.

The Pasadena parade, the colorful carnival crowd and the hosts of automobiles all were so thrilling. The floats, typifying songs which the bands played, developed themes which are close to our hearts. The Salvation Army band, playing "Abide With Me," preceding a simple float, showing the Bible in the home, moved me to tears. By the way, Mr. Cianfoni, resplendent in a gorgeous uniform, led our own Santa Ana band.

I attended the afternoon's football game, between Stanford and Alabama. I wish I were my brother whenever the teams line up for the kickoff. I love the sport.

I was the guest, later, of Charles B. Hervey, of the famous Hotel Green social rendezvous of the tournament since its inception.

An imported fishscaled lace evening frock, from the Sample shop, with an imported "Charlotte Haibe" chapeau and my chinchilla wrap, from the Golden West Fur farms, gained me many compliments from the fashionably gowned assemblage during the tournament dinner, in the evening.

The average level of the cost of living in Great Britain on the first of October, 1926, was 74 per cent above that of July, 1914.

SCHOOLS AGAIN ARE IN SESSION AFTER HOLIDAY VACATION TIME

Santa Ana's 5000 Pupils Return to Classrooms And Resume Their Work

REPORT CARDS DUE AT END OF MONTH

Day Drawing Near for Semi-Annual Promotions; Alterations in Buildings

After enjoying two weeks' holiday vacation, the 5000 pupils in the Santa Ana public schools, today returned to their classes. From kindergarten to the junior college, they were back at their desks.

During the vacation period, the public school buildings were thoroughly cleansed, and numerous minor alterations were made.

The students, many armed with New Year's resolutions, were ready to attack their studies with renewed enthusiasm. The end of the first term already is in sight at the close of January, when Mary and John will receive their report cards covering the first half of the school year.

Advanced students of the mid-year class at Frances Willard and Julia Lathrop junior high schools are approaching the time when they will be promoted to the senior high school. Similarly, over the city, promotions will be made.

The Christmas holidays, just ended, comprise the longest vacation period granted the students during the year. Not until the Easter vacation, in April, will the students again put aside their books for any considerable length of time.

METROPOLITAN WATER BILL ONE OF MOST IMPORTANT ON STATE ASSEMBLY CALENDAR

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of five articles by James H. Howard outlining and explaining the provisions of the proposed metropolitan water district bill designed to enable Southern California cities to join together in securing a domestic water supply from the Colorado river. Mr. Howard, former city attorney of Pasadena, is secretary and a member of the committee appointed to draft this legislation for consideration at the 1927 session of the state legislature.

By JAMES H. HOWARD

At the 1925 session of the California state legislature, there was submitted for consideration and adoption a measure entitled the Metropolitan water district bill. This bill was designed to create legal machinery whereby the various municipalities in Southern California, desiring to do so, might join together in the formation of a district for the purpose of financing, constructing and operating an aqueduct to supply their several needs from the Colorado River.

The Metropolitan water district bill had been formulated following a meeting of the Colorado River Aqueduct association, at which a number of cities, through their representatives, had indicated a strong desire to share in the benefits of a domestic water supply from the Colorado. It was passed by the senate but was defeated in the assembly.

Strong Demand, Real Need

A strong demand and a very real need for this legislation still exists. In view of this fact, the Colorado River Aqueduct association some time ago appointed a committee to study the problem and draft a bill for submission at the 1927 session of the state legislature. This committee is composed of W. B. Mathews, Los Angeles, chairman; James H. Howard, Pasadena, secretary; William Johnstone, San Dimas; Chester Coffin, Santa Monica; Ray Morrow, Glendale; Grant Holcomb, San Bernardino. Hiram Wadsworth, president of the Colorado River Aequeduct association, and former State Senator William J. Carr, of Pasadena, have been made honorary members of the committee.

In naming the committee, President Wadsworth announced that he had made a special effort to obtain widely distributed representation, in order that the interests of no interested community might be overlooked.

The bill, as drafted by the committee, we feel, is in fairly good shape, but there always are opportunities for improvement in a measure of this character. It is, therefore, the purpose of these articles to present to the general public as much detailed information concerning the bill as possible. The committee welcomes suggestions and constructive criticism. Any such suggestions should be submitted to that member of the committee most accessible, or to the writer of these articles. My office now is in room 702, A. G. Bartlett building, Los Angeles.

Purpose of Bill

It is provided that the provisions of the Metropolitan water district bill shall be applicable to the incorporation, government and operation of a unified district composed of cities and local water districts. The bill further provides that the Metropolitan water district, when established, shall have power to acquire and operate a common domestic water supply and distribute water wholesale to the units constituting its membership.

The bill is an enabling act. It does not, in itself, create a water district. It only supplies the legal machinery under which such a district may be formed by any group of cities in the state seeking a water supply. Its terms have been drawn, however, having in mind primarily the problem of the cities of the coastal plane of Southern California in organizing for the purpose of bringing water from the Colorado river.

The act contemplates the formation of non-contiguous cities into a working unit. Inasmuch as there are, in Southern California, some extensive unincorporated areas with an urban character, typified by Altadena, it has been thought wise to include with cities, water districts incorporated for the service of water in other than municipal territory. Under the language of the act, as now written, it would be possible for such an area as Altadena, desiring to secure the benefits of the bill without assuming the full burdens of municipal incorporation, to organize a water district and thereby become a part of the Metropolitan water district. Such local water districts are to be considered as included in the meaning of the words city or cities wherever these terms appear in the bill as now drafted.

Reasons for Exclusion

Unincorporated territory generally has been excluded from membership in the district under the proposed bill. This has been done for several reasons, most potent of which is that while representatives of the areas within the Colorado river basin will not object to a diversion of a domestic water supply out of the basin and into the Southern California coastal plane, they would seriously object to such diversion of water for irrigation purposes, the framers of the bill have deliberately excluded agricultural territory. In this connection, it should be noted that water brought from the Colorado river, while not unduly expensive for domestic purposes, would be too costly for irrigation use.

In considering the Colorado river water from an agricultural standpoint, it must be borne in mind that the securing of an adequate domestic supply from this source will relieve the farms from the present danger of condemnation for municipal use of the water now in use for irrigation purposes. Colorado river water also will relieve the Southern California ground waters from the over drafts that have been necessary under existing conditions.

HANGING LAW ABOLITION IS URGED IN S. A.

Y. M. C. A. Toastmasters And S. A. Pastors Discuss League Formation

Preliminary steps toward securing organized support of a bill to be introduced shortly in the state legislature for the abolition of capital punishment, were taken by a number of persons interested in the proposal.

A meeting will be called within the next few weeks for the purpose of organizing a county section of the California branch of the National League for Abolition of Capital Punishment. The time and place of this meeting will be announced later.

The matter has been discussed in an informal way by the Santa Ana Ministerial association, the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. Toastmasters' club and by private citizens. While the ministerial association did not commit itself to any definite stand on the issue, it is understood that some of its members are in sympathy with the proposal.

Women Indorse Proposal

Prominent among those who are interested in the movement are Mrs. J. V. Kelsey, Garden Grove, president of the Fourth (Orange county) district, California Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Fay R. Spangler, president of the Santa Ana City Federation of the P.-T. A.; Mrs. Ada King Wallis, publisher of the Western Woman; Mrs. Barbara Brooks; and other women identified with social welfare activities.

Inquiries revealed that the California Branch of the National League for Abolition of Capital Punishment has been conducting a campaign in the state for the last three months to secure support for the bill to be introduced in the legislature.

It also was disclosed that efforts will be made to have as many organizations as possible to go on record as favoring the abolition of the death penalty. Private citizens, interested in the proposal, will be asked to communicate their views to State Senator Chester M. Kline and Assemblyman C. D. Ball, representing the county in the legislature.

Seek P.-T. A. Indorsement

In line with this activity, it was intimated that the matter of endorsing the anti-capital punishment measure will be presented at the general membership meeting of the Orange county P.-T. A., set for January 8, in the Tustin high school.

The bill providing for the abolition of the death penalty will be introduced under the auspices of the league.

It reads:

"An act to amend section 190 of the penal code, relating to the punishment of persons found guilty of murder.

"Every person guilty of murder in the first degree shall suffer confinement in the state prison for life; every person guilty of murder in the second degree is punishable by imprisonment in the

JUNIOR COLLEGE WILL BE REPRESENTED IN ORATORY CONTEST ON CONSTITUTION

A contestant will be selected to represent the Santa Ana junior college in the third National Intercollegiate Oratorical contest on the constitution, this year, according to Cecil C. Stewart, forensic coach at the college here.

The first announcement of the contest, in which student orators from colleges and universities over the United States will compete, was made today in plans outlined by the Better American Federation of California, under auspices of which the contest is being conducted.

Last year, Edward Riniker represented the Santa Ana junior college in the regional semi-finals. Riniker is a second-year student at the junior college now and, by the contest rules, again is eligible to compete. Other student orators of the Santa Ana college are expected by Stewart to prepare speeches for the elimination within the Santa Ana junior college to a single spokesman.

Entries Close March 15

If Santa Ana goes into the contest, an entry must be made by March 15, at the contest headquarters, in Washington, D. C.

The contestants from the colleges and universities are to be chosen by April 15 for the elimination meets in the seven regions over the nation. Regions have not been outlined until entries are in, but Santa Ana likely will be in the Pacific southwest section.

The first regional semi-final is set for April 29. The seven regional finals will be held in the period from May 17 to May 29. Grand finals, at which the seven national champion orators will speak, are to be held in Los Angeles, June 23.

Cash prizes, ranging from $1500 to $350, will be awarded the seven national champions, according to their rating in the grand finals.

Nine Subjects Announced

According to the rules, the orations must be original and must not require more than 10 minutes for delivery. Nine subjects have been announced. These are: The Constitution, Washington and the Constitution, Hamilton and the Constitution, Jefferson and the Constitution, Marshall and the Constitution, Franklin and the Constitution, Madison and the Constitution, Webster and the Constitution, and Lincoln and the Constitution.

Undergraduate students in any of the colleges or universities of the United States are eligible to enter the contest.

The purpose of the contest, as stated in the pamphlet issued by the Better American Federation of California, is to increase interest in and respect for the constitution of the United States.

Louis XIV deserved the title of "grand monarch" for his treatment of doctors. He was subjected to an operation for fistula in 1686, which cost him $200,000.

YOUNG PLAYERS OFFER COMEDY AT JR. COLLEGE

Dramatic students of the Santa Ana junior college are to present a two-act play, "A Successful Calamity," at an evening performance, January 14, in the Santa Ana high school auditorium. The cast is composed of 12 students, who are being rehearsed in their parts under the co-direction of Ernest Crozier Phillips and Emil Foust.

Ingenue leads in the cast are taken by Bill Homan, as Henry Wilton, and Miss Lorene Croddy, as Emmie Wilton.

For several weeks, including Christmas vacation, the students have been rehearsing the play, the biggest that has been attempted by the dramatic class of the junior college. Four changes of scenes are required.

The play, written by Clare Kommer, had a run on Broadway for several weeks. In the plot, the "successful calamity" is, in reality, a test of the loyalty of the Wilton family. Henry Wilton doubts that his family would remain to support him in serious straits. He pretends to have been impoverished by reverses. The "calamity" proves successful, as the Wilton family rally to his side.

Ernest Crozier Phillips, dramatics teacher, has left to Emil Foust, advanced dramatics student, most of the details of directing, while he acts as general supervisor.

The cast of characters includes Bill Homan, as Henry Wilton; Miss Lorene Croddy, as Emmie Wilton; Miss Helen Young, as Marguerite; Charles Thorman, as George; Charles Haas, as Conners; John Fitts, as Eddie; Val Clark, as Belden; Irwin Sipherd, as Dr. Broodie; Miss Eulah Barker, as Julia; Milton Davis, as Rafaelo; Miss Goldie Jacobson, as Albertine; and Emil Foust, as Clarence.

OBJECTS TO 'CHICAGO'

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 3.—One product of Yale's new dramatic department is too much for Prof. John C. Acher of the divinity school. After the first act of "Chicago" at a public theater the professor left, saying that while the play might be distressingly true to life, the stench might be kept from the nostrils of the eastern public. "Chicago" is a satirical comedy, written by Maurice Watkins, a student.

SEK STATUE NAMES

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—A committee is having difficulty in finding appropriate names for statues in the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Says the Very Rev. G. Howard C. Robbins, dean of the Cathedral: "One list submitted contained the names of Catherine De Medici and Mary Baker G. Eddy and I cannot guarantee that a statue to either will be placed in the Cathedral."

WORK WILL BE FINISHED SOON ON WATER LINE ALONG COAST

Main Metween Corona del Mar and Laguna Will Be Completed by February 1

COST OF PROJECT IS PLACED AT $900,000

Job Is One of Largest of Its Kind in Southland; Big Feat in Engineering

Construction of the $900,000 water main, now being laid between Corona Del Mar and Laguna Beach will be completed and water turned into the lines by February 1, it was announced here today by H. W. Rohl, general contractor in charge of construction.

The water main is one of the largest of its kind in Southern California and has attracted the attention of engineering men all over the United States. Engineers of Southern California will inspect the pipe line some time this week, according to reports.

The line is regarded as an excellent engineering feat. J. B. Lippincott of Los Angeles and C. R. Browning, engineer for the Irvine Ranch company, are the chief engineers on the project.

Cement Covered Mains

One of the features of the water main is the cement covered welded steel mains, which are being laid. The cement is put on the pipes with a cement gun. A three-sixteenths-inch steel pipe is used for the main. The pipe is 30 inches in diameter. It is covered inside and out with a protective coating of tar and a three-fourths-inch layer of concrete is placed on the exterior of the pipe. The cement covering is re-inforced with a network of wire.

Approximately 43,500 feet of concrete coated steel pipe is being laid to care for the Laguna Beach water supply. Great care is being exercised in laying the pipe. The pipe units are 32 feet in length and weigh 3200 pounds. They are lowered into trenches with block and tackle and are thoroughly inspected for flaws. Each pipe is lapped one inch at the joint and is welded. The pipe is tested every few hundred feet. Where the cement covering has been knocked off in handling, it is replaced.

Before the pipe is laid, it is given a special treatment. The cement is allowed to dry for 10 days before being placed in the ground and during the time of its curing, the pipe is kept wet. Inspection insures first class workmanship.

The concrete covered steel pipe is being used in the portion of the water line which will be under pressure. This will take the line from the source of the water to the highest point on the range of hills over which it must go. A special constructed concrete pipe will be used to carry the water from the high point into Laguna Beach. Approximately 18,000 feet of concrete pipe will be laid.

Cast Iron Pipe

Cast iron pipe will be laid under all highways and railways on the line, according to the engineers. The cast iron pipe is especially designed to withstand the vibration which results from heavy loads passing over the roadways.

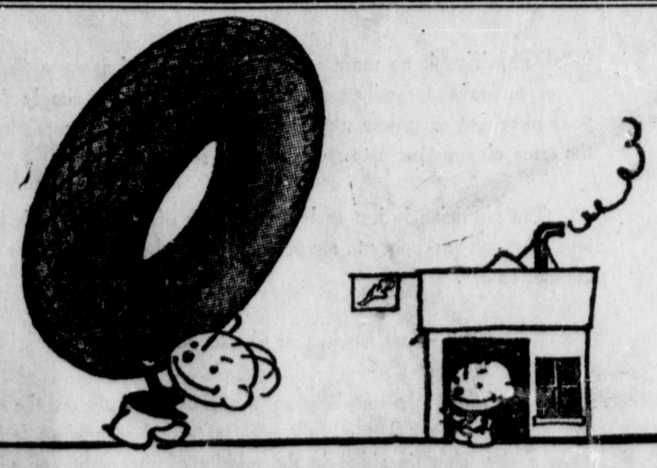
WE WISH to express our appreciation for the wonderful business accorded us this past year and wish everyone a 1927 of health, happiness and prosperity.



Let us help you make 1927 a GOODYEAR!

It seems to us that in the very beginning of 1927 is a good time to call your attention to a GOODYEAR. And with Goodyear tires on your car you have the best assurance in the world that 1927 will be a good year as far as motoring is concerned. Remember, too, that time flies and that you won't want to spend any part of the year tied up on the road with tire troubles. Follow the lead of a lot of motorists whose time is worth a lot to them and they are saving time (and money, too) with Goodyear tire equipment all around.

Then remember that—more people ride on Goodyear Tires than any other make!

AT THE THEATERS

Thoma Meighan in a scene from "The Canadian," picture showing at the Yost Broadway theater tonight and tomorrow.

Dolores Costello in a scene from "The Third Degree," current attraction at the West Coast-Walker theater.

WEST COAST-WALKER

If you remember back to the thrill you experienced when you saw "The Third Degree" on the stage, you will not want to miss being thrilled anew by the screen version of this well known melodrama, which opened yesterday at the West Coast-Walker theater.

The melodrama brings to Dolores Costello, the star, the most dramatic role of her highly successful career. As Annie, the little trapeze performer of a side show in Coney Island, who marries a young millionaire and is estranged from him by his proud father, she gives a beautifully balanced emotional performance.

Louise Dresser, who is featured in the supporting role of Annie's mother, surpasses her moving performance of the mother in "Broken Hearts of Hollywood." The scene where she confesses to Dolores Costello that she is her mother, as well as the murderer of the man who had threatened her happiness, is one of the most perfect in the production.

The special vaudeville numbers selected by Fanchon and Marco are all good. The Orange Grove Trio stopped the show at every performance. The boys offer great harmony.

YOST THEATER

The successful race of a gearless motor against a fast trans-continental express train through the snows, floods and landslides of eight states is the thrilling situation in Priscilla Dean's new picture "The Speeding Venus" which will be the big feature at the Yost theater for the next three days.

In addition, Priscilla manages to crash into a plate glass window, overturn her car several times, cross railroad tracks a fraction of an instant before the train and otherwise fearlessly disport herself at the risk of life and limbs.

The plot of "The Speeding Venus" has to do with a millionaire inventor of a gearless motor, who directs that his fortune be paid to one of two nephews who first perfects his invention and exhibits it at a Los Angeles automobile show.

One of the nephews is unscrupulous and steals the plans which the other has assiduously worked and perfected. When the time comes to ship the two cars by freight, the villain wrecks his rivals machine and safely ships his own.

MURPHY'S COMEDIANS

"The Bride," a thrilling crook comedy in three acts opened Sunday night at Murphy's theater at Orana.

"The Bride" is one of the latest releases for stock, having but recently finished successful runs in the large production centers of the country.

The play is really of a very high class and the comedy is not objectionable. It is well cast and produced in a pleasing manner by the popular company of Murphy's Comedians.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

There are no battles, snow avalanches, cyclones, or Indian stuff in "The Canadian," starring Thomas Meighan at the Yost Broadway now.

It's just a study of the Canadian wheat fields with a farm hand finally winning the love of a cultured girl come over from the "old country." But the picture has a persuasive charm, a quiet, self-contained mood that is easily felt.

The play shows Meighan in a happy light, shows him at ease and acting with his old time sincerity. He looks younger with the years and should be given more parts like this. Mona Palma, graduate of the first Paramount school for training screen players, has the lead, and she brings to a somewhat unthankful kind of a part a gentle dignity that makes it plausible.

The first number on the vaudeville bill is Anderson and Yuel in a novelty skating act from the Orpheum. Then come Gibson and Betty in a humorous little skit called "A Counter Proposal."

The closing act, however, is the outstanding hit of the entire show, Judge Charles Bull of Reno, Nev., assisted by several people gives a "Tribute to Abraham Lincoln." Judge Bull uses no makeup whatever and his resemblance to Lincoln is startling to say the least.

How Would You Like To Be A Physician?

Most men have certain hours that are theirs. They use them as they see fit. Some spend them in various forms of recreation with their families. In these periods, it is seldom that any one feels free to intrude on either business or professional matters.

WHAT about our physicians? Did you ever think of them and wonder when they had their leisure hours? When they spent an evening with their children or had a night with their families? Probably not. Have you ever noticed that at most every public place you go there comes a call for Doctor So and So?

We know of doctors who for months at a stretch have not had an evening at home. These same men answered hundreds of calls at all hours of the night. Why? Because of the small fee they would get for their services? No! Emphatically No!

THE Physician is no more anxious to get out of a warm bed late at night or to leave a family gathering or a good show simply for a fee than your merchant or grocer would be to be called at the same hour and under the same circumstances to make a small sale.

The physician is just as human as any of us. Yet he is bound by custom, tradition and honor to answer the call of the sick wherever and whenever the call comes.

We repeat—How would you like to be a physician?

It is impossible to place an accurate estimate on the value of our physician's service. Certainly the relief afforded an anxious father or mother when a sick child is aided in the middle of the night can not be figured in monetary value.

Our physicians are serving us faithfully day and night. Is the value of such services appreciated? We must say no. Because it has been shown that less than 10% of our physicians' calls are paid when the call is made, over 75% of the calls are not paid for within thirty days; nearly 50% are not paid for at least sixty days and 25% are not paid for within three to six months.

Considering the anxiety of all concerned when the physician is called; the promptness and faithfulness with which he responds and the character of the service rendered is it fair to your physician to delay payment longer than the first of the month? Much of his work is necessarily of a charitable nature. Certainly those who can, should pay promptly. Think it over!

BEAUTY HONOR WILL BE GIVEN COLLEGE GIRL

Co-eds and, for that matter, the men students also, of the Santa Ana junior college, are anxiously awaiting the return, today, of the Asilomar delegation to learn which fair miss was hoisted atop the pulchritude pedestal as the choice of the delegates in their election on the question of which girl is the prettiest in the junior college student body.

Students were speculating on who might win the palm, which is bestowed annually.

Mis Sara Hales and Miss Helen Young were advanced as likely candidates. Besides naming the prettiest, the Asilomar delegates make a list of the girls, ranking them according to their ideas of beauty.

Election 'Without Malice'

The election has become a custom with the student "Y" leaders during the annual Pacific Southwest conference, held at Asilomar, near Monterey. The balloting is voluntarily undertaken "without malice," but generally ends in some spirited "sour grapes" arguments.

Last year, the girls countered to the men's move and drew up a list of the "sheiks" they voted the most handsome and most popular.

The members of the junior collego delegation, accompanied by McKee Fisk, faculty "Y" advisor, were due to arrive back in Santa Ana late tonight, after having attended the eight-day conference, under auspices of the national Y. M. C. A. Those in the delegation were Ray Griset, Allen Goddard, Ross Fields and Melvin Harter.

National Speakers

At the conference, which was attended by nearly 300 students of colleges and universities of California, Nevada and Arizona, speakers of national prominence made addresses on current topics of world-wide importance. A meeting of the Campus "Y" of the Santa Ana junior college is to be held this week for the purpose of hearing the reports of the representatives.

Cigar Stand Punch Boards Are Robbed

Thieves entered the cigar stand of W. L. Barge, 106 East Fourth street, some time last night, after breaking a padlock on the door, and stripped several punch boards of prizes, according to a report filed today with city police.

The boards contained gold coins, two watches and two diamond rings, according to officers.

The theft was discovered by Officer Dean, while making his rounds early this morning.

DEER MAY REPLACE DOGS FOR HAULING

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 3—Tobacco-chewing reindeer, possessing the stubbornness of a mule and the fighting qualities of Gene Tunney, bid fair to challenge the supremacy of the malamutes in the field of Alaskan transportation.

This is the belief of W. G. Culver, formerly of the U. S. bureau of education, who says Eskimo herders of Broad pass are finding a ready sale to prospectors of sled-broke reindeer for draught purposes.

The use of dogs entails hauling dog feed to a base of operations and feeding the animals during the summer months when they have no work to perform. It has been found more economical to utilize a pair of reindeer for hauling supplies over the spring snow crust and then butcher the animals for meat at the end of the journey.

Where it once required 50 pounds of tallow, 100 pounds of corn meal and 100 pounds of rice with addition of dried salmon to feed a dog during the summer, 100 pounds of corn meal and a small quantity of reindoor moss suffices to cover a journey of a hundred miles with a reindeer team, and the prospector's grub bill is reduced to the extent of about 160 pounds of reindeer meat.

Reindeer are extremely temperamental and must be handled with diplomacy and discretion, says Culver.

"Better call a truce when 'Reiny' becomes temperamental," he advises. "Offer him a chew of the various brands of strong plug tobacco, then sit down and wait until the steed's mental process digests his single idea—that of adamant stubbornness—and supplants it with something bespeaking a desire to travel."

RITES TUESDAY FOR J. J. ROPER, S. A. PIONEER

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m., tomorrow, in the Smith and Tuthill chapel, for J. J. Roper, pioneer business man of Santa Ana who died here Friday, at the age of 87 years.

Coming here in 1897, from Jamestown, N. D., Mr. Roper purchased a stationery business of his brother, H. H. Roper, and with his son, P. S. Roper, operated the enterprise for many years, the Stein store of today being the successor of the Roper business. The Ropers discontinued business when the present Spurgeon block was erected.

John J. Roper was born Dec. 28, 1839, in England, and, with his parents, came to the United States when he was 13 years of age. The family located in Garden Prairie, Ill.

Lured to Gold Fields

Lured by the tales of fabulous wealth in the gold fields, Mr. Roper joined a party of gold seekers and came to California in 1863, after 108 days of travel with oxen and horse teams. Mr. Roper's first California activity was in Round valley, where he mined and farmed. His search for gold was unproductive and he later returned to Garden Prairie, where he was married in 1869. Following his marriage, he settled on a farm in that region and resided there for a number of years. For many years during his residence there, he was deputy assessor in his district.

Locating in Jamestown, N. D., later, he engaged in mercantile business and, becoming interested in politics, was elected and served for several terms as county treasurer of Stutsman county, severing his official connection with the county there to come to Santa Ana.

Mr. Roper was of the type of the early day pioneer—rugged, honest and sincere in his friendship. He was preceded in death by Mrs. Roper by five years.

Rev. Benton to Officiate

The Rev. W. H. L. Benton, rector of the Church of the Messiah, will officiate at the services and Cecil Fross Willits will sing. Pallbearers will be C. S. Kendall, I. W. Van Cleve, H. C. Dawes, L. L. Shaw, L. J. Carden and E. B. Smith, who were pallbearers at the funeral of Mrs. Roper.

The pioneer is survived by two sons, P. S. Roper, Santa Ana, and Dr. Ralph Roper, Prescott, Ariz.; two daughters, Mrs. Maude France, Los Angeles, and Mrs. Ethel Sinke, Santa Ana; two sisters, Mrs. Anna Porter and Mrs. Rosa Beckington, Belvidere, Ill., and a brother, S. I. Roper, San Jose.

TO FINISH WATER LINE WORK SOON

Approximately 4000 feet of cast iron pipe will be used.

The Laguna Beach water system is regarded as one of the finest on the coast. It is expected that the cost of the entire system will be more than $900,000. Laguna Beach will be furnished water from two large reservoirs. One of the reservoirs, located in the western section of town, has a capacity of 1,200,000 gallons. The other reservoir, located near Arch Beach, has a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons. Force pumps also will be used to supply the houses located on the hills.

The steel pipe is being supplied by the Steel Pipe and Tank company, of Berkeley. The Western Reinforced Concrete Pipe company, of Los Angeles, is supplying the concrete pipe. The Cement Gun company, of San Francisco, is treating the steel pipe.

Work on the pipe line was started Oct. 20, 1926.

Credit for the line goes to C. R. Browning, an Orange county man. Browning conceived the idea of taking water from the Santa Ana basin, near the ocean, and transporting it across the hills to Laguna and, with the assistance of Lippincott plans for the line were made.

The system is so designed that it is believed it will care for all development along the coast between Corona Del Mar and Arch Beach for many years. Enough water can be taken through the lines to furnish 175,000 persons, Browning claims.

Cognizance is taken of the fact that there is considerable criticism against "life imprisonment" as understood and practiced in the administration of justice, the charge being made that in many instances those sentenced to life imprisonment are released after having served a number of years.

Remove Pardon Power

To offset such criticism, those favoring the abolition of the death penalty, will propose that a sentence to life imprisonment for murder shall be beyond the pardoning power of the governor or the prison board.

INJURIES FATAL TO VICTIMS OF CANYON CRASH

The automobile collision in Brea canyon, Saturday morning, has resulted in the deaths of the drivers of the two machines in the crash, Oscar Tunneson, 30, and Paul Omohundro, both of Long Beach. Tunneson died yesterday morning and Omohundro died this morning.

Both men received fractured skulls in the accident. With the other victims of the New Year's day crash, they were taken to the Fullerton General hospital.

An inquest over the bodies will be held in the Seale parlors, Fullerton at 3 o'clock this afternoon, by Coroner Charles D. Brown.

Miss Mamie Carey, Mrs. Paul Omohundro and Miss Elva Walker, also hurt in the collision, are expected to live. Miss Carey, who was cut about the face, was taken to her home yesterday. Mrs. Omohundro and Miss Walker are suffering from shock.

According to witnesses, the accident occurred when the Tunneson car, reported to be traveling at a high rate of speed down a grade, got out of control, crashing into the Omohundro car.

Both machines were demolished in the collision. The victims were all residents of Long Beach.

Funeral arrangements for Tunneson and Omohundro will not be made until after the inquest.

Here is answer to yesterday's crossword puzzle.

EVANGELIST IS READY TO MAKE EASTERN TOUR

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Aimee Semple McPherson is so confident that the conspiracy charges pending against her will be dismissed that she announced today that she will leave Los Angeles next Monday, on her eight weeks' evangelistic tour of the east.

"The state's case has collapsed and I feel certain I will not have to be humiliated by any further prosecution," the evangelist told the United Press in the first definite announcement she has made concerning her contemplated tour.

"It is my firm belief that the Los Angeles county grand jury, after hearing witnesses tomorrow, will refuse to return indictments and that the case will be thrown out of court.

Will Leave With Staff

"I plan to leave next Monday morning with my preaching staff. I will visit principal cities in the east, and tell of the Lord's work that has been carried on by Angelus temple in the face of legal persecution, but I will not stress the conspiracy case, which has been an ugly and unfortunate thing."

Mrs. McPherson said she had not yet worked out the details of her itinerary. She declared she was being helped in her promotion by certain eastern newspapers, which she declined to name.

It is her plan, she said, to put on a nation-wide revival, patterned after her California crusade of recent years, which has won her thousands of followers and made her independently wealthy.

Her tour will be in the nature of a barnstorming, she admitted. She will be accompanied by a corps of expert singers and Musicians, and she may stage for the easterners some of the allegorical tableaux which have featured her Sunday sermons at Angelus temple.

Probability of a blanket dismissal of the conspiracy charges against Aimee Semple McPherson and her associates increased today, following the disclosure of "new evidence" by the district attorney's office.

Charles Maas, proprietor of the Hotel Virginia, at Santa Barbara faced the evangelist at Angelus temple and told investigators that she was not the "Miss X" who registered at his hotel on the night of May 29.

"Miss X" was the feminine companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio man and co-defendant at armel-by-the-Sea. State's investigaors traced "Miss X" to the Hotel Virginia, where she registered as "Elizabeth Tovey."

"I am certain that Mrs. McPherson was not the woman who registered at my hotel on the night of May 29," Maas said.

District attorney operatives claim was at the Hotel Virginia on that to have established that Ormiston night, and the radio man has admitted that he took a "Miss Tovey" to the Santa Barbara hostelry.

Upsets Strong Link

The hotel proprietor's failure to identify the evangelist is said to have upset the state's strongest remaining link in the chain of asserted evidence linking Ormiston and the evangelist in a flight from Carmel, where District Attorney Asa Keyes once contended the pair were from May 18 to 28, following the evangelist's disappearance at Oecan Park.

The Los Angeles county grand jury is to reconvene tomorrow to complete its revived inquiry into the McPherson riddle. Ormiston was scheduled to resume a story he began last week end, in which he denied that Mrs. McPherson was his companion on the Carmel trip, contending it was another woman.

The radio man's testimony is expected to absolve the evangelist from connection with the Carmel episode of the muddled case. Keyes expects to ask the grand jury to indict Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, on the conspiracy charges. If this is denied, the case will be thrown out of court, the prosecutor, declared, intimating that this would be the probable ending of the long-standing McPherson puzzle.

FRANCE AWAITS A. E. F. RETURN 10 YEARS AFTER

PARIS, Jan. 3—What will happen when some 30,000 ex-doughboys swarm into gay Paree "ten years after," in September, 1927, for their national convention?

The far-reaching potentialities for good and evil in the coming Paris convention of the American Legion are keenly realized by the Americans in France, as well as those in the United States who are paving the way for the invasion of "the second A. E. F."

New testimony of this fact is given by Maj. Gen. Albert Greenlaw, representative of the Legion's national headquarters, addressing the Anglo-American press luncheon. He admitted he had had certain misgivings himself regarding thousands of ex-soldiers returning like an army to Paris before he came here.

Expects Order and Dignity

"But now I'll say I have no fears whatever about the Legion putting across the convention in a dignified and orderly manner," Greenlaw declared, "and the delegates will leave France with the bonds of Franco-American friendship strengthened by the visit."

To this end the Legion is paving the way, with officials here working strenuously, but with the full realization of their big job. Probably none is more anxious that the visiting Legionnaires do nothing in any way to embarrass the ties of amity of the two nations than the American residents in all parts of France, who already are appealing to Amreican authorities to do the utmost to assure a beneficial outcome to the Paris convention.

Possibly prohibition and the reports of the extremes to which it has driven many in large cities back home are responsible for much of this pessimism. At any rate they say they would rather not be in Paris when the 30,000 arrive.

Foch Trusts Doughboys

Nevertheless, Marshal Foch is not alarmed at the prospect. He is willing to trust to the good will and level heads of America's former doughboys, thereby paying high tribute to the prospective visitors in Paris next September.

One factor on which Greenlaw relies is a great aid in achieving this end he disclosed in his address: "In the first place, out of 30,000 attending the convention 10,000 will be ladies—wives, mothers and sisters of veterans. These ladies will be a powerful influence in keeping the menfolk orderly." It also is said that the stay in Paris would be reduced to the minimum time required for business; the rest would be occupied with battlefield and cemetery visits.

CHICAGO BD. OF TRADE

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Firm cables from Liverpool and Buenos Aires which came unexpectedly in view of the late slump in December wheat here Friday and the enormous world's shipments, checked selling on the Chicago board of trade today and the prices closed about steady with Friday close. Wheat closed unchanged to ¼ up. The cash market was steady and unchanged.

Corn was under pressure throughout the session, prices closing off ¾. The cash market was 1½ cents lower. Country offerings were moderate.

WALL ST. JOURNAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Large selling orders greeted the new year on the stock exchange. Stocks were thrown on the market in steady volume, practically throughout the session and bad breaks took place in active stocks of most departments. Sugar shares were strong in response to better price levels for both the raw and refined products, but inestrength of this group only temporarily checked the downward movements in the general list.

Money conditions were easy. Call money renewed at 5 per cent and was available in the outside market at 4½ per cent. This commercial situation reflected the strong showing made in Saturday's clearing house statement, which set forth a surplus of $21,807,170, compared with a deficit for a corresponding date last year.

DID CONFESSED MURDERER KILL FAMILY HERE?

Was Santa Ana the scene of the murder of three small children and a woman and are the bodies of the victims buried somewhere under a house here?

George J. Hassell, held in Plainview, Tex., for the murder of his wife and eight step-children, to which he is said to have confessed, was reported to have murdered another woman and three children, presumably in Whittier, but Mrs. Nora Guidry, oldest and only living stepchild of Hassell, in an interview in Amarillo, Tex., today is reported as saying that Hassell never lived in Whitier, but that he formerly was a resident of Santa Ana.

Following Hassell's arrest in Texas, he is said to have readily admitted to the wholesale murders but would not state in what town in California the first murders were committed. It was believed that the crimes might have been committed in Whittier.

"As far as I know, Hassell never lived in Whittier," Mrs. Guidry said. "He lived in Santa Ana. For a time he had his mail sent to Whittier and then had it transferred to Santa Ana."

Officers here have not been officially notified of the murders and it is doubtful if the bodies of the first victims will be looked for here until some definite word is received from the Texas city.

NINE CONFIRMED IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

A class of seven was confirmed last night at the Church of the Messiah, Protestant Episcopal, by the bishop coadjutor, William B. Stevens, of Los Angeles.

In his sermon following the confirmation, Bishop Stevens stressed the point that, even though one should have individual experiences which seem to shake one's faith in Christ that, taken as a whole, the world had benefitted by a faith in Him, and Christ and faith in Him survive.

Bishop Stevens told of the necessity of obedience in all things and illustrated his point by taking the life of Christ as an example. He stated that obedience to one's parents and to one's God is one because neither can be taken without the other.

LANDIS TO PUT ORGANIZED BALL ON TRIAL

Cards Should Have Won From Tide, Claim

STANFORD TEAM BETTER, CLAIM SPORT WRITERS

Alabama Varsity Got Lucky Break, Cashed in On It Is View of Scriveners

LOS ANGELES, Jan 3.—Stanford should have won the east-west battle with Alabama in the Pasadena Rose Bowl Saturday in the opinion of the majority of Pacific Coast sports writers today.

While playing great tribute to the Crimson Tide's performance against the Cardinals, most of the coast scribes attribute the Alabama touchdown to a fortunate "break," a blocked punt. The southern champions were praised, however, for their fighting spirit and their defensive skill against the offensive attack of Stanford, one of the greatest exhibitions of the forward passing game ever witnessed on a Pacific Coast gridiron.

Got Lucky Break

"It was a case of a hard-fighting but inferior team getting a break and cashing in on that break," said Harry Grayson, sporting editor of the Los Angeles record. "Alabama was superb on the defensive, but Stanford should have had at least three touchdowns."

Braven Dyer, of the Los Angeles Times, said: "Second guests are always best, and it occurs that had Wilton punted on the third instead of the fourth down, things would have turned out better for Stanford. Wilton's inexperience probably caused him to stand closer to the line when he prepared for that punt. Alabama showed great defensive work when they kept Stanford from "cashing in" on some apparently sure touchdowns."

Had No Offense

"Alabama is not a great football team," said Howard Langley, football critic of the Illustrated Daily News, Los Angeles. The Crimson Tide is a superior defensive aggregation but it lacks a versatility in the offense that was most disappointing. They showed none of the speed, dash and deception portrayed by Stanford. The fighting spirit of the southerners, together with the overconfidence of Stanford brought about the tie."

"Stanford was a constant threat and should have scored at least three times," said Mark Kelly, sports editor of the Los Angeles Examiner. "Fumbles were disastrous for the Cardinals. Alabama took advantage of a break,

RISBERG LINKS MANY PLAYERS IN ALLEGATION

Accuses Chicago White Sox Of Paying Detroit Team For 'Sloughing' Series

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Organized baseball is to be placed on trial here Wednesday before its own highest court, Commissioner K. M. Landis.

From all corners of the land, players and former players were gathering in Chicago to appear before Landis and give their versions of the charges made Saturday night by Charles ("Swede") Risberg and any other charges of corruption which have been or may yet be made.

In telegrams which preceded their personal appearances, most of the players branded Risberg's charges as "lies." Virtually all of them agreed to come before Landis and tell everything they know.

Risberg, who was banned from organized baseball in 1920 for his participation in the 1919 "Black Sox" scandal when the Chicago White Sox threw a world's series to Cincinnati, opened the way for this thorough investigation by telling Landis in the presence of newspaper reporters that in 1917 the entire White Sox team organized a pool and paid the Detroit players for "throwing" a four-game series to the Sox.

Collins, Schalk Accused

Risberg not only named those players who were banned with him from baseball, but he included Eddie Collins, recently manager of the White Sox; Ray Schalk, newly-appointed pilot, and "Red" Raber, who for many years has been the White Sox's pitching ace.

All of the players whom Risberg accused, with the exception of "Chick" Gandil and Oscar ("Happy") Felsch, hotly denied his charges. Collins said they were so "silly" that he wouldn't even come to Chicago to deny them. Schalk was just as insistent in denying them, but hurried at once to Chicago to appear before Landis. Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox at the time, mention by Risberg, came to Chicago from Milwaukee and proclaimed that he would make Risberg "take back those ugly lies." George Burns and "Pep" Young, who were playing with Detroit in 1917, denied the charges jointly in Philadelphia.

Gandil 'Confirms' Charge

But Gandil, in a statement at El Paso, Texas, "confirmed" Risberg's charges, adding that Risberg "hasn't told half of it."

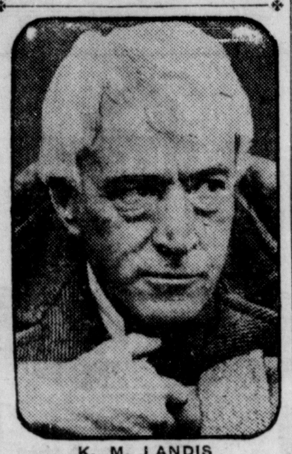
Gandil, star first baseman on the old White Sox team and now manager of a ball club at Hurley, N. M., said that it was he who collected $45 each from the White Sox players.

"I handled the money," Gandil stated. "I took it from the Sox and gave it to Bill James (a Detroit pitcher) and he paid it over to the Detroit players. I didn't regard it as bribe money. It was just a little present to the Detroit players."

Felsch, at his home in Milwaukee, also "confirmed" the Risberg charges, saying that he contributed to the fund.

"And the Swede can tell a lot more on Wednesday if he wants to," Felsch added.

HOLD 'ER, JUDGE



K. M. LANDIS

"What next?" wonders Kenesaw M. Landis, high mogul of organized baseball as he calls such notables as Eddie Collins, "Red" Faber, George Burns, Ray Schalk, Clarence Rowland and "Pep" Young to a conference Wednesday to answer charges by "Swede" Risberg, erstwhile White Sox infielder, that they all were involved in the throwing of ball games in 1917.

HERB SALVESON HOLDS ARTISTS TO SINGLE HIT

One healthy scratch hit by Valente, after two were out in the ninth inning, prevented Herb Salveson from registering a no-hit, no-run game against the Laguna Beach Lumber company team at Skidmore park yesterday.

Joe Rodgers, manager of the Republic Supply company team, that defeated Laguna Beach 7 to 0, was deeply disappointed but agreed that Valente would have to be credited with a safe swat. Valente met the ball on the nose with a clean cut and it went like a bullet toward the outfield to the right of the box. Salveson made a try for the ball and touched it with his glove, deflecting the pellet at a sharp angle. Ihrig made a try for the ball and fielded it cleanly, but the fleet-footed "wop" beat the throw to the bag.

Salveson has pitched shut-out ball for 54 innings. His game at Laguna Beach Sunday was the best of his season. He fanned 11 men and passed only one. Only 26 men faced him legally and the batters went out in one, two, three order in eight of the nine innings. Four men faced him in the other inning.

Salveson's support was good. White, too, pitched excellently but five errors behind him, eight passes and a hit batsman, ruined his good work in keeping the seven hits off his delivery scattered over as many innings. Only two of the seven Republic Supply runs were earned. Two errors netted the visitors three runs in the ninth after two were out.

Eddie Gripp made two sensational catches out of his total of five for the day in left field. White and Marshall thrilled the crowd with catches of difficult fouls.

Deitzel and Callan hit for three bases each. Beeson enhanced his chances for the Ernie Johnson cup with two hits out of two times at bat.

TIERNANS WIN FROM ORANGE; CINCH SECOND

Playing sensationally behind the brilliant slinging of their big mound ace, "Boissy" Boisseranc, the Tiernan Typewriter company of Santa Ana cinched second place in the Orange County Harbor league by defeating Charley Bustillos' Orange Merchants, 3 to 1, at Irvine park yesterday.

Orange gave its moundsman, Bracamontes, errorless support but the Merchants weren't hiting in the pinches like the Santa Anans and were blanked in every frame but the third one.

George Lackaye's men got to Bracamontes for a couple of counters in the fifth and cinched things with another marker in the eighth. The Daley brothers, Ed and Levitt, were the hitting heroes for the locals, both getting a single and a double. Every Tiernan got a hit but Boisseranc.

The Santa Anans touched Bracamontes for 10 hits. Boisseranc held Orange to four scatered blows.

RICKARD PLANS CONFERENCE ON TUNNEY MATCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Practicing that brand of oratory which ends with the persuasive plea, "sign right here, please," Tex Rickard will go to St. Louis this week in an effort to induce Gene Tunney to defend the heavyweight title championship this summer.

Tunney, doing a vaudveille turn at a reported $7,000 a week, has notified Rickard that he will hear the promoter's proposition.

When Rickard speaks of championship bouts his voice is as melodic as a cash register.

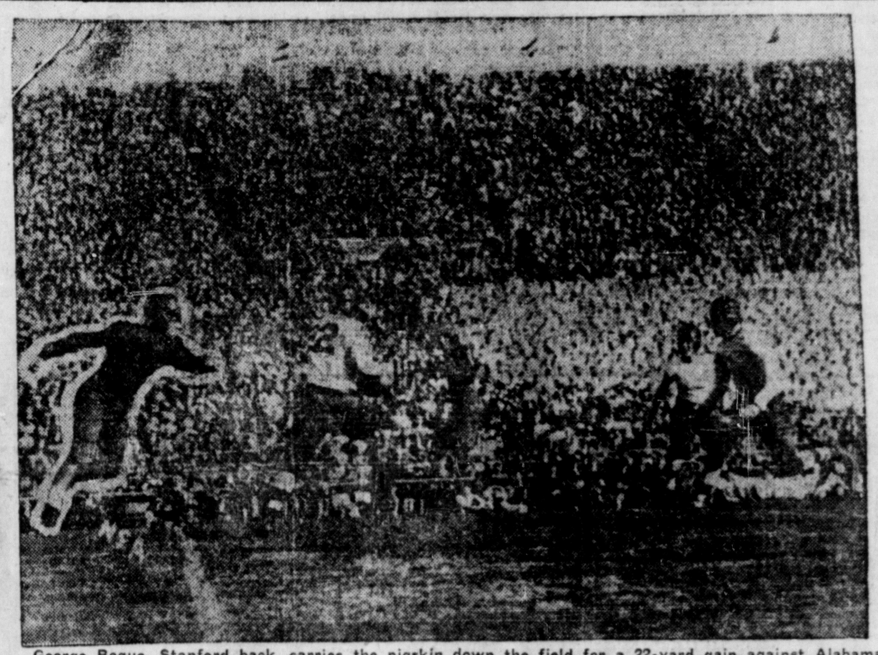
The situation is as complicated as the threat of Humbert Fugazy, rival promoter, to invade St. Louis. Fugazy already has made his offer to Tunney and believes that the champion is disposed in his favor, but Fugazy has always been inclined to over optimism.

Tunney frankly has passed the word that he will accept the offer which is most advantageous financially. If the bout is held in this state as it probably will be the law allows him a maximum of 37½ per cent of the gate receipts and the champion must decide which promoter is likely to provide a show that will attract the most fans.

Many fight fans believe that since it was Rickard who gave Tunney his chance against Jack Dempsey, the champion owes Rickard another bout, but sentiment probably will have no place in the financial battle of St. Louis.

King George never has been a keen lover of the racing game, as was his father, Edward VII., and the experience of the past season is not calculated to increase His Majesty's interest in the sport. Although the king had a score of horses in training, only three could win three insignificant races, worth in all scarcely $3000.

HEY THERE, GEORGE! WHERE YA GOIN'?



George Bogue, Stanford back, carries the pigskin down the field for a 22-yard gain against Alabama. This play proved one of the exciting moments in the New Year's Day game at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena,, Calif. The final score was 7 to 7.

Harbor League Club Men To Hold Meet

Representatives of Orange County Harbor League baseball clubs will meet at the Victor Walker sporting goods store here tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock.

The Republic Supplies of Huntington Beach already have cinched first place and it is probable that the representatives will vote to award the Joe Rodgers outfit the championship and declare the season ended.

LONG BEACH TOURNAMENT IS WON BY ARMOUR; GOLFERS IN BIG LOS ANGELES OPEN NEXT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Following Tommy Armour's sensational victory in the $2500 Long Beach Open tournment, amateurs and professionals from all over the country began tuning up today for the west's greatest golf event, the $10,000 Los Angeles Open. The Los Angeles open has drawn the largest list of national and international professionals ever to show in the west. The first qualifying round starts Friday.

Leo Diegel, Al Watrous, MacDonald Smith, Cyril Walker, Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Farrell, Joe Turnesa, Mike Brady and Tommy Armour are among the pros who start the battle against par for the $10,000 purse.

George Van Elm, national amateur champion, will be the outstanding amateur entered.

Armour, professional at the Congressional Country club, Washington, D. C., by shooting under par twice and equalling par on the other of the three 18 hole rounds romped home an easy winner in the Long Beach tourney.

Armour shot a 69 on his qualifying round, 71 on his second trip and made the last 18 in 67 for a total of 207. Par for the Virginia Country club course is 71.

MacDonald Smith, present Canadian Open champion and internationally known professional, finished second with a 211, four strokes behind Armour.

Bill Mehlhorn and Al Watrous finished one stroke behind Smith, both scoring 212's for the 54 holes.

Officiating in sports will become a part of the curriculum of Indiana university's summer coaching school next year. It is said to be the first course of its kind ever offered.

BILLY EVANS Says

BASEBALL CONSERVATIVE

Baseball is not without its faults. Every now and then it is apparent certain changes in the rules would better the game, but the suggestions are not always acted upon.

When the football rulemakers believe some reform will work for good, it is incorporated in the rules and given a thorough trial. If it fails of its objective, then the following year the solons go back to the old interpretation.

In that sense football is more progressive, despite the fact it has no opportunity to try out suggested reforms before actual play.

* * *

EXPERIMENTAL STATIONS

I would like to see the major leagues' training camps in the south used as experimental stations for some of the reforms that it is believed would help the sport.

The spring games are under the supervision of competent major league umpires. These officials would be in a position to form a definite opinion of the various reforms after seeing them executed in actual competition.

Incidentally, the managers and players would have an opportunity to judge the merits of any suggested change, also the newspapermen following the teams.

This would eliminate the necessity of changing a rule in mid-season, as was the case several years ago relative to what constituted a home run.

MID-SEASON SHIFT

Back in 1920 the rulemakers decided that after a batted ball passed out of the playing field, the jurisdiction of the umpire over it immediately ended.

If the player were fair, in the opinion of the umpire, when it passed out of the playing field, it was a home run, even though it finally curved foul before passing out of his sight.

The rule seemed fair enough and I am still rather partial to it, but the consensus of a majority of the umpires and managers was that it was more accurate for the umpire to render a decision of fair or foul as to where the ball was when it passed out of his view.

This decision was reached after about two months of play, so that part of the season was played under one rule and the rest under just the opposite.

Babe Ruth profited to the extent of six home runs that spring and lost perhaps a dozen others as a result of the chance.

* * *

INTENTIONAL PASS

The first experiment I would like to see the teams make in the south would have to do with the intentional pass. Probably there is no solution of this play that would satisfy, yet an experiment would be well worth while.

The other day I received the following suggestion from a California fan, Alfred Lengel. While it is not an exactly new idea, it is one that I have always believed worth experimenting with. Here is his proposed rule.

"It shall be optional with the batter to accept a base on balls after receiving four legal balls and before receiving three strikes." Here is the way such a rule would be interpreted:

* * *

CONCRETE EXAMPLE

Babe Ruth is at bat. He is pitched four balls but refuses to take his base. He finally gets two balls good enough to swing at and fouls off both, making the count three balls and two strikes. Then Ruth, if he desired, could continue to hit until he had his third strike, or, if he preferred, he could walk, provided there had been four wide ones prior to the second strike.

Off hand, as I see it, the one greatest flaw to such a rule would be that it wold tend to greatly delay the game, which is always objectionable.

Dr. Patton and Crenshaw had 87's, less 14 handicaps, while Collier shot an 91, less 18 handicap.

H. B. Van Dien, president of the club, and C. W. Holcombe tied in the blind bogey tournament, both with 72's.

The first American pugilist to win recognition as champion in the lightweight division was Abe Micken, who claimed the title, and defeated Pete McGuire in six rounds at Perryville, Md., in 1868.

TEXAS WIVES SEEK EQUALITY IN LEGAL EYES

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 3.—A Texas wife lost a foot in a street car accident. She won a judgment of several thousand dollars in a suit for loss of the member, but her husband collected and spent the money.

Another woman worked for her living. Her spouse, who was a wastrel, appropriated her week's pay and applied it to his own debt. The court upheld him, reiterating the law that in Texas a wife's earnings are under her husband's exclusive control.

Such is the legal status of some wives in Texas as the state's first woman governor prepares to leave office. Many maintain that the election and the defeat of the woman governor had nothing to do with the emancipation of woman. The presence of a woman governor, however, has accentuated the legal status of women.

There are evidences of revolt. Mrs. Sarah Menezes, assistant U. S. district attorney here, has prepared a digest of some legal points affecting women for the Texas League of Women Voters, which may propose remedial legislation, Mrs. Menezes declares that the chief need is a definite law clarifying statutory confusion.

In Texas, rents and revenues from a wife's separate property, and her wages, do not belong to her, but are a part of the community property which is under the husband's exclusive control.

She cannot encumber or convey her separate real estate without her husband's signature. She cannot be the joint maker of a note nor the surety on a bond without the joinder of her husband. If she is in business, her profits are in his control.

If an unmarried woman is a partner in business, her marriage dissolves the partnership, because a married woman's disabilities are such that she cannot continue in the relation of a partner, even with her husband.

When Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson became governor, she had a court declare her a "feme sole" (unmarried woman), for trading purposes, under a 1911 statute, but lawyers state this law has little practical effect on a married woman's status, since she is bound by constitutional limitations.

EACH SHIP LIKE PERSON TO SKIPPER OF IDLE FLEET THAT NOW RUSTS AT ANCHOR

Shipping Board Vessels Stretch for Mile on Hudson River

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—"Yes, sir; they're all individuals to me. Landsmen may call them a bunch of rustling hulks if they like, but I know 'em, every one, just as persons. They're sound, true ships."

Capt. A. S. Lewis withdrew a hand from the breast slits of his great coat and gestured out over the fleet slumbering below the bridge of his flagship, "The Lockport."

Along the bank, where the Hudson rounds Jones point, the vessels stretched away at anchor in a mile of funnels, masts and deck rails. Every railroad passenger between New York and Albany has wagged a head at them.

Fleet Now Halved

"There used to be 140 of 'em," said Captain Lee. "But now there are only 74. I came here with the first of them and know them all. Now and then we break one out to put her in service and once in a while another comes here to anchor.

"The South Pole," now she's the gangway ship. Lying nearest the shore, we use her as a base for the spankers and the launches. If any of the men come back drunk, we throw 'em in the brig there and let 'em sober up till morning.

Captain Lee pointed out with pride the excellent condition of the Conetton. Inside and out she shone, fresh from the paint pot.

"She's one of the best," he said. "Here's my report showing just how we fixed her up. Pretty soon she's going out into service.

"They've said they are falling to rot and ruin. Look at those hulls! Climb over the decks. Go through the engine rooms, the holds, the fo'castles. With nothin' else to do, you don't suppose we're going to sit by idly and let 'em fall apart, do you?

"Buyers come up here quite often. These ships have to be kept in just the condition that attracts them. And that goes for the machinery, too. And below the water line. Not only what you can see."

As captain of the shipping board's Caldwell inactive fleet, perpetually in port, this deep and hairy-chested Norwegian-American is no less extraordinary than his command.

Runs Away From Home

At 12 he ran away from home to sail before the mast. In his early 20's, he rose from mate to master of the three-masted schooner "Mexico," which was blown on the rocks of the Irish coast. Fourteen men lost their lives.

Then he saw brief service on a Dominican gunboat in the Gulf of Mexico, later becoming naturalized and joining the shipping board. During the war, while most of his present charges were being rushed to completion in the shipyards, he was piloting a powder boat from Delaware bay to the hungry guns in France. And now he's at anchor 40 miles from the Atlantic.

"It's better here than being on the ocean, I guess," said he. "I go ashore once a week now and get home to Brooklyn to my wife and boy.

"All day, of course, it's work. At night I read and read. Used to play chess with Freyschmidt, the chief engineer, but we've kinda stopped that since I took to making a model two-master for the youngster.

Bi-weekly Movies

"The men? Well, we have movies for 'em twice a week in the little theater we built on the shelter deck of one of the ships. Then they go ashore every night if they like. But there's nothing there but a store. The railroad was about to give up the station when the fleet came. And the last boat comes out to the fleet at 11 o'clock each night, so they have to be back by then."

If ever there were such paradoxes as landlubbing seafarers, here perforce they are—199 officers and men.

For five years, they've trod the decks and bridges of stout, fit, ocean-going merchantmen which never get farther than 100 yards from land, never sailing, they are neither ashore nor asea.

26 CASES GIN, WHISKEY FOUND NEAR GUN CLUB

Mystery surrounds the finding, yesterday afternoon, of 26 cases of Scotch whiskey and gin on the beach near Bolsa Chica Gun club, about two miles west of Huntington Beach. The liquor evidently had been washed ashore.

Huntington Beach police are in possession of the liquor. Officers were notified of the liquor by Hugh Walters, superintendent of the Bolsa Chica club. The booze was cased in sacks.

It is believed that a rum boat, unloading liquor, became fearful of a raid from the sea and tossed its remaining cargo overboard.

The liquor is valued at approximately $2500. There were about 300 quarts originally, but, according to the officers, many of the bottles had been broken by the waves.

Sheriff's officers captured over 100 cases of liquor two weeks ago in a raid on the beach, near the gun club.

Movie Chatterbox

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Jan. 3.—This story deals with the lives of four men whose great pictures have carried them beyond the heights of their actors and actresses. They are the directors.

Dean of all is D. W. Griffith—under whose banner many celebrities have risen from obscurity. Griffith spent his early years touring with a cheap stock company. For several years his company played one or two-night stands and were lucky to eat regular meals.

Later he appeared on Broadway—always an actor's goal. It was then that he wrote his idea of a scenario for the old Biograph company. They paid him $25. He wrote other scenarios and then started to direct, being one of the pioneers to found Hollywood as a film center. He recently returned "home" after spending seven years in the east.

An Idea at Lunch

One day in 1913, Cecil B. DeMille and Jesse Lasky went to lunch together. They decided to form a partnership for a venture into the motion picture industry—then a mere "babe." Prior to that day, DeMille had been an actor—and not a very good one—often tramping the streets of Manhatten for weeks in search of work.

DeMille came west in 1913, rented an old barn and started production on his first picture, "The Squaw Man." He was the first to produce a feature length picture.

James Cruze literally stepped from a fishing scow to the stage in San Francisco some years ago. Cruze wanted to be an actor, but he couldn't get work because he had had no experience. So he worked as a waiter and on a salmon boat for three years. Then, with the money he had saved, he enrolled in a dramatic school.

Joined Tent Show

Two days later he quit because he didn't like the instructor's methods and got a job as leading man in a tent show. Through a period of years he rose to a Broadway actor. In 1908, Cruze cast his lot with the movies as a leading man for Pathe. Eight years later he induced Jesse Lasky to sign him as a director.

Fifteen years ago, Edwin Carewe was a hobo. It was while "burning" through Kansas that he met Jim Tully, now a noted author. One rainy night the two of them caught a westbound freight out of a Kansas siding. That long ride under box cars was—though unknown to him—to start him on his career as a motion picture director.

The two vagabonds landed in Los Angeles without a dime between them. Carewe had had some stage experience so he went to Hollywood and talked the Blaney Brothers into signing him as a director. Then he drew some salary in advance so the two of them could eat.

Right to Divert Water Is Sought

MADERA, Calif., Jan. 3.—Asking that its right to divert and store water for the development of hydro-electric power be determined, the Southern California Edison company has filed a suit in superior court here similar in every respect to the suit filed in Fresno superior court, early last week. Both suits, which name the heirs of the Herminghaus estate as defendants, will be pressed, according to attorneys for the Edison company.

Farm Life Costs As Much as City

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Living on a farm is just about as expensive as city life, according to the agricultural department. Actual living expenses of the average farm family total $1598 a year, the department announced today, after a survey of 2886 farms. This includes food, house rent and fuel for a family of four and one-half persons.

A new type of field-glass which can be attached to the spectacle frame has been invented.

Greetings for the New Year!

WE EXTEND TO ALL OUR FRIENDS a cordial, hearty wish for happiness and prosperity.

And this is a fitting occasion to reaffirm our creed, with hopes that it will make us as many friends in the future as it has in the past.

We believe in a steadfast policy of offering only good furniture, and of offering it at fair prices—based on sound values.

We believe that there are enough people in the Santa Ana trading territory who care for furniture of distinction, beauty and permanent qualities to justify our policy of excluding everything that does not come up to the high standards we have always maintained.

This is our creed, and we take this opportunity to repeat it and to pledge that it will be lived up to as scrupulously through the new year as it has been through former years—and as it will be throughout our whole future of steadfast service.

ASSOCIATED ETHYL GASOLINE — MORE MILES TO THE GALLON — Knocks out that "knock."

Licensed Ethyl Gasoline Corporation

A premium gasoline? .... You said it! .... Associated Ethyl Gasoline requires 3 cents per gallon over market price .... After you have used a tank full you will wonder why it sells for only 3 cents additional .... You would willingly pay 5 cents.

And here's why:

ACTUALLY TURNS CARBON INTO POWER! Associated Ethyl Gasoline neutralizes the ill effects of carbon and utilizes it to produce greater power. If your car is full of carbon, Associated Ethyl makes it run like new! Your engine takes on new vigor and pep.

STOPS THAT "KNOCK"—whether on hills or in slow traffic now. Associated Ethyl eliminates the cause of knocks and maintains the proper revolutions-per-minute of your engine.

OVER THOSE HILLS IN HIGH. Hills that have forced you to shift to second will now melt away on high gear. On hills that require a shift, you can now go a greater distance before the shift is necessary. And when you start up a hill, put your foot right down to the floor board. Feel your car slip forward in smooth, rapid pick-up!

STOPS THAT "BUCK" IN TRAFFIC. Creep along in high. Then with an opening ahead, jam your foot down to the board. Instant response—smooth, fast, gliding.

SAVES EXPENSE. No more carbon removal. Occasional valve grinding is all that will be required. Harmful knocks and straining jerks eliminated. Far less tendency to motor-overheating. Greater driving satisfaction.

Associated Ethyl Gasoline is truly a super-fuel. It is simply regular sustained quality Associated Gasoline (with its distinctive chain of boiling points) to which has been blended a small quantity of Ethyl brand of Anti-Knock Compound—a compound perfected in the great research laboratories of the General Motors Corporation after seven years of constant experimenting and study.

The addition of Ethyl compound will not make a high-grade gasoline out of a mediocre or poor fuel. It does develop the inherent power-qualities of good gasoline. It merely creates improved conditions of combustion within the cylinders, so that the gasoline can perform to its full capacity. The better the gasoline to which Ethyl is compounded, the better the performance of the resulting combination.

The color of Associated Ethyl Gasoline is red. But it does not follow that all "red" colored gasolines are Ethyl gasolines. For your protection, fill from Associated Ethyl Gasoline pumps at Associated Service Stations or the best independent dealers displaying the red, green and cream diamonds pump. Try a tank full today!

Associated Ethyl Gasoline is sold for 3 cents above the regular market price of gasoline.

Associated ETHYL Gasoline

NOTICE: Dilution of Associated Ethyl Gasoline with other gasoline destroys its effectiveness. Therefore it is important to have gasoline tank as empty as possible before filling with Associated Ethyl Gasoline.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Tecumseh

Sketches By Kroesen
Synopsis By Braucher

Tecumseh, outstanding among the Indians, who have played important parts in early American history, was born in 1768 in the Indian village of Piqua, near the present city of Springfield, O. At that time pioneer white men were pushing into Kentucky, a favorite hunting ground of the Shawnees, to which tribe Tecumseh belonged.

In 1780 Piqua was burned to the ground by a raiding party of nearly 1000 white men from Kentucky who defeated the Shawnees.

Tecumseh was eager to avenge the disaster. When he was 17 he was one of a band which captured a party of white men in Kentucky.

The Indians killed all but one of the men they captured. The one unfortunate they spared the horror of the massacre only to burn him at the stake. Tecumseh was sickened by the scene, and while an implacable enemy of the white invader, he swore never to be unnecessarily cruel in warfare. He kept that oath.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinymites, all full of cheer, have started on the brand new year, and now we find them turning to their snow man once again. Said Scouty, "Gee, but he looks fine. I'm proud the job was partly mine. I surely think he looks just like a lot of living men."

And then he added, "Goodness be, how can our funny snow man see?" And, when the whole crowd turned to look, they came to realize that through a lot of pains you take, you often make a sad mistake. The Tinymites forgot to give the snowman any eyes.

Then, Coppy to the rescue came, Said he, "This may be quite a shame, but I am going to cut some nice black buttons off my shirt." The ones he picked were proper size to make the snowman two nice eyes, and when they put them into place, he surely looked alert.

"Hello, there, Tinymites, I say, I'm feeling pretty good today. Oh, please don't look so scared because you've really heard me talk." It was the queer snowman who spoke. The Tinies thought it all a joke, until they stared and saw the happy snowman start to walk.

"Well, howdy do," wee Scouty cried, "You'd better stand right by my side. I'm afraid that you might slip and fall and break yourself apart." And then the snowman laughed in glee. "Now don't you start to fret," said he. "I came to life so I could have some fun. When do we start?"

They played a game of hide and seek, and watched the funny snowman sneak into the shade to keep out of the hot rays of the sun. Of course they all knew how he felt. He feared that he would likely melt. If such a thing should happen, it would promptly spoil his fun.

(The snowman melts away in the next story.)

BEAUTY CHATS

ICE

One of the best and most refreshing face treatments you can give yourself, is a thorough rubring with ice, over the face and the neck, and if you want to, over the shoulders, too. At first you may not like the extreme cold of the ice, but it is good for the skin, and, if used on the neck, not only helps iron out the wrinkles, but also makes the neck less sensitve to draughts and yourself less liable to catch cold.

In the summertime when the skin is relaxed and the pores naturally a little open from the heat, ice is a marvellous astringent and can be used over the face and neck immediately after washing with water and soap. But in the winter, when cold damp winds take a certain amount of oil from the skin anyway, ice should be used following an oil rub or a cold cream massage. Otherwise, the skin may chap.

The best daily treatment, preferably in the morning, is to rub the skin quickly with a little cleansing cream, wash it off, using fairly hot water and a mild soap, (castile or cold cream soap if you can get either) and then rub with ice. The drying effect of the ice is balanced by the oiliness of the cream, and by the fattiness of the soap ,which will not take natural oils from the complexion as a stronger soap would. Another freshening up treatment, which can be given in the evening if you want to make your skin look fine and pretty and if you haven't a great deal of time, is to cleanse the skin quickly with cleansing cream, wash this off with a cloth wrung from hot water, dry with a towel (this takes all the dirt from way down in the pores and is itself very refreshing) and then rub on a little vanishing cream. Rub with ice, over the vanishing cream. It will take off some of the cream, but that does not matter. The combination of the vanising cream and ice is a very good one, it makes the skin soft and clear and fresh, and it will keep on powder all evening.

PRAYER FOR THE NEW YEAR

Lord, I have wished them a glad New Year,
Wished them all joy as they come and go,
But I must go farther than that, I know,
For time is barren of mirth and cheer
And the day brings little of gladness here.
I have wished them a glad New Year, but oh,
I pray for the wisdom to make it so,
Help me to spare them the needless tear.

Let me go forth with a smiling face,
Clean and strong till each day shall end,
Big enough always to play the friend,
Let me brighten their lives with a touch of grace.
Manly, and kindly, and true, I'd be,
So that never their heartaches shall come from me.

If Woman Ever Is Freed From Domestic Routine, Nature Will Do It

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The world goes marching on! "The path of progress is marked by the graves of martyrs," so goes an old saying, and now it is woman who has been chosen for the role.

Close observers of progress tell us that no lasting reform has ever been an abortion of true civilization. Instead, the advance of religion, science, and all the "ologies" that have made for the betterment of man, have been of natural conception and birth.

We have had the renaissance, the age of exploration and settlement, then the age of invention; and now it would appear to be the age of woman!

Just where in the future does civilization intend woman to be? In the home? The agitation of the question is not a grandstand play rehearsed by the lady in question. The heavings and struggles in the economic world are not woman-made—or man-made. They are a natural result of other economic changes that have gone before, and conditions in which we live.

Our chief concern is with the future—and the child is the future. Back of every economic urge is the child.

Woman has been a domestic animal, with variations, according to creed and country, from time unknown.

But first and foremost, regardless of custom, has been her use to the child. She produced the child—she must serve the child. There you have a fixed law of nature that nature herself will not be likely to change.

Women are training themselves, their minds, their bodies, so that their children may have the benefits thus far established by civilization. By new occupations they are enabled, by greater buying power, to give the child the things he will need for a highly specialized future.

The pioneers are having a hard time of it. But they need not be discouraged. If Nature says that the time has come to remove woman from domestic routine so she can serve her children in a different way, no law of man can change it.

We do not know yet if the change taking place in the status of woman is another step toward the great ultimate end or not, but it looks like it.

QUEER QUIRKS of NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Assn.

Do you remember when you used to scramble through swamps, with water up to your ankles, to get some leaves from the cat-tails?

The Indians found many uses for what is to us a common plant; the Iroquois found that the heavy matted roots were fairly rich in starch and sugar. They dried and pulverized these roots, which yielded a sweet-tasting flour from which excellent bread and pudding were made.

Hard pressed for food during the war, the German people followed the example of the Indians and the lowly cat-tail was made a boon to many a hungry family.

Flour Nutritious

The flour is similar in composition to rice and corn flour and is highly nutritious. In well-infested swampy land from two to four tons of flour per acre may be secured, and the commercial utilization of cat-tails for this purpose has frequently been discussed.

The Indians discovered still another use for the fleshy roots. When mashed and boiled, a syrup of an excellent flavor was produced, which was commonly used by the Iroquois on cornmeal pudding and as a sweetening for other favorite Indian dishes.

Cat-tail roots are said to contain as high as 30 per cent of sugar and starch. At this rate, imagine the quantities of flour or other substances that could be obtained from the common cat-tail and the narrow-leaved cat-tail, both of which are found in such abundance in the swampy regions of the United States and southern Canada.

Cotton Substitute

The root is not the only part of the plant that is useful, for it has been discovered that a cotton substance can be secured from the brown spikes, and that the fine fluffy down that comprises a large part of the heads is also of value in stuffing pillows and cushions.

All of these virtues masking under the belittled cat-tail!

EXCHANGE RUSK OF YULE GIFTS ON AT STORES

Did Aunt Jessie send you an elaborate hair brush for Christmas when the only instrument you can use on your ungarnished dome is a sponge? Don't swear about it! Exchange it! Did your highbrow Cousin Amelia give you the five-foot shelf when the only literature you can assimilate is Elinor Glyn's? Exchange it!

One of the most useful of great American "institutions" is the annual habit of getting rid of white elephants foisted upon us by well-meaning relatives and friends whose generosity is more to be commended than is their discrimination.

Right on the heels of the buying frenzy at Christmas time comes the orgy of exchanging. No sooner do foot-weary salesmen and saleswomen take time out for a deep breath than they are on the job again, soothing savage citizens intent on realizing on Cousin Minnie's stupidity.

The author listened in on a knot of women in a department store, their arms telescoping with bundles.

"She sent me an electric curling iron. Imagine it!" exploded one woman. "That makes three this Christmas. After all the meals that woman's lapped up at my expense she might have made it a waffle iron."

"You've nothing on me," retorted a second. "Santa certainly did me dirt. Brought me six pairs of candlesticks when I needed shoes, and every stocking I have is out at the toes."

"If there's anything in the world I abominate it's Maxfield Parrish," said another, indicating one of her bundles, "and how many 'Gardens of Allah' do you suppose I got? Three, my dear. Three! I can give the other two away as bridge favors, and I'm going to exchange this one for a lamp if I can."

The fourth laughed mirthlessly. "My husband pulled one, as usual," she said. "He knows very well what I wanted, and what did he give me? A pair of bedroom slippers. Applesauce!"

"Mine gave me a lounging robe. Fat chance I have to lounge," seconded the lady with the superfluous curling irons.

All through the store it was the same. Every one seemed to have something to get rid of. The faded little mother of six children, who needed new bungalow aprons and some shiny pans for the kitchen, in which she passed the major part of her existence, was passing over a counter a magnificent Mandarin jacket fit for an empress.

Of course those of us who received candy when we expected diamond bracelets, or cards when we expected candy, are out of luck.

If disappointed, remember that Christmas comes only once a year and that disappointment is purifying.

No protest has been made to American government officials, but action has been started in the Mexican courts for reopening of the mission, Beauchamp said. He denied that any religious training was given at the schools.

SAYS WARSHIP NECESSARY IN U. S. DEFENSE

ANAHEIM, Jan. 3.—Airplanes may be and probably are important as weapons of national defense, but they cannot be relied upon to bear the complete burden, according to Lieutenant Dale Quarton, U. S. N., who spoke last week before the Anaheim Lions club.

Lieut. Quarton is visiting in Anaheim with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Quarton. Soon he will go to Bremerton, Wash., to fill an assignment to the Puget Sound navy yard. He is a graduate of the Anaheim union high school, and of the Annapolis Naval academy.

"American planes have been placed at a disadvantage in comparison with foreign planes because all factors were not taken into consideration," said Lieut. Quarton. "For instance, we learn that foreign planes can climb to an altitude of 25,000 feet—5000 higher than can be attained by our ships.

"But those giving out this information fail to state that our plane builders have designed our ships so they will climb more rapidly than the heavy winged foreign type. In order to obtain a high 'ceiling' it is necessary to build with a big wing spread.

"Again, we hear that European bombers are so much more speedy than are ours. In Europe, a bomber is a plane that will carry a load of 150 pounds. In the United States we require our bombers to carry a load of from 1500 to 2000 pounds. Naturally the small plane has a much greater speed than has our heavier type.

"We must rely on history as our guide to the fture. There often has appeared a factor in national defense that caused people to say, 'The day of the battleship is over.' This occurred when the torpedo was invented. We heard it again when the submarine came into use. We hear it now about the plane.

"The plane has an effective traveling range of 250 miles. Hence any battleship 300 miles from shore is safe from plane attack. So, until the plane is developed to a greater range we cannot say that the battleship is doomed.

"There has been much agitation against the use of chlorine gas. It has been argued that as a weapon of warfare this gas is barbarous. But after giving the subject considerable thought, I am not so convinced.

"Statistics show that gas has a fatality average of two per cent. Shell fire fatalities amount to 25 per cent. I believe that gas as a weapon of warfare is far more humane than are other modern weapons."

50-ACRE TRACT EAST OF HUNTINGTON BEACH TO BE DRILLED FOR OIL, REPORT

HUNTINGTON Beach, Jan. 3.—Property owners in Huntington Beach are going to get a run for their money. According to late reports, one of the largest and most responsible oil companies has already signed up a 50-acre lease on the lowlands close to the ocean and immediately east of the Huntington Beach townsite. The tract lies just east of the ball grounds on Ocean avenue and just north of the old Santa Ana car tracks. It is stated that the lease has a 90-day drilling clause.

If this report is true—and there is evidence to substantiate it—it means that in the opinion of some of the largest oil companies the east side of Huntington Beach may have as much oil as the newly developed west end.

It is also rumored that negotiations are under way by D. O. Stewart to lease his large tract in the lowlands just east of the city.

If drilling on these two locations east of the city should begin within 90 days, it will lend strength to the belief that oil might underlie the entire city, and this belief may lead to very intensive drilling in the next six months.

On account of the scattered location of the pioneer wells, every property owner may be given a chance to know the oil possibilities of his section of the city. Inasmuch as the voters have gone on record as favoring turning the city into an oil town, this news will be very welcome.

H. B. OIL FIELD INCREASES FLOW

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 3.—Huntington Beach, which reached the top of the list of California's producing fields two weeks ago, went still father ahead last week, increasing its margin over its nearest competitor to 10,000 barrels a day, its total being 105,000 barrels. Of this production more than half, or 70,000 barrels, is due to development in the west end of the city where five new wells were brought in during the week for a total of 8000 barrels a day. The new field now has 105 producing wells, with about 125 others drilling.

Development is spreading rapidly in the area east of Seventeenth street, in the district thrown open to drilling early in November. About 30 derricks are up or are being built in this area, and most of them are regarded as being in productive territory, although the extreme outposts are considered somewhat doubtful.

The Standard Oil company continues to lead the producers with about 15,000 barrels per day from forty wells, Julian Petroleum corporation being second with 12,000 barrels from 11 wells, and Superior Oil company third with 10,000 barrels from 12 wells.

The outstanding completion of last week was a McKeon Drilling company well, which came in at about 2800 barrels a day, and held within 100 barrels of that mark for three days. It is now making 2600 barrels a day and is said to be the best producer in the field.

Fire Destroys La Habra House

LA HABRA, Jan. 3—Fire of unknown origin destroyed an unoccupied house on South Cypress street, owned by Mrs. Sarah Wilbur, Saturday morning at 1 o'clock.

Prompt action on the part of the fire department prevented the blaze from spreading to surrounding dwellings and garages. A garage belonging to Mrs. Wilbur on an adjoining lot was partially destroyed.

MESA NOT TO PAY INJURED MOTOR OFFICER

COSTA MESA, Jan. 3.—Costa Mesa has been freed of all liability in the matter of compensation for Frank Vaughn, injured traffic officer, according to a decision just rendered before the state industrial accident commission, sitting at San Francisco.

Action had been brought against the division of motor vehicles and the town of Costa Mesa, on behalf of Frank Vaughn who was seriously injured several months ago when his motorcycle collided with a sedan. The injury caused temporary disability since last August and Vaughn was entitled to $20.83 a week.

The question had arisen over the fact that some 80 subscribers had agreed to raise a sum of $75 a month for the services of Vaughn as traffic officer, the balance of his salary being paid by the state motor vehicle department. Attorneys held that the subscribers were equally liable as employers with the state department and an action was brought against the town of Costa Mesa.

The decision says: "The evidence does not establish that the applicant was in the employ of the defendant, town of Costa Mesa, at the time of said injury. Award is made in favor of Frank Vaughn against division of motor vehicles, for the sum of $122 and the further sum of $20.83 a week beginning November 10, 1926, and continuing until the termination of disability."

THE NEW ADMINISTRATION

There is greater prospect of achievement at Sacramento this session of the legislature than in any session in years.

In the Stephens and Richardson administrations, there was a minority always strong enough to make the passage of legislation difficult. While it is not expected that legislation will go through the new legislature without fights, the Young administration is strong enough numerically to put through almost any legislation that it may desire put through.

The situation is one that might prove disastrous where the administration controlled by a governor with ideals otherwise than high and for the best public service. Gov.-elect C. C. Young, in taking office tomorrow noon, enters upon the work of his office with an exceptional aptitude and exceptional training for initiating and carrying through constructive legislation. He has the confidence of the people of the state.

Much of importance is to come before the legislators during the next four months. The message of the incoming governor, which will be an outline of the things he hopes to see accomplished, will be read with tremendous interest. With a friendly legislature, with an intimate knowledge of the state's business, with a wide experience in legislation, with a distinct and prevading desire to be fair and honest in his investigations and conclusions, the new governor has an opportunity for getting somewhere that he is not going to overlook.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR DOCTOR?

"Man, know thyself," and "When doctors disagree"—these aphorisms suggest the thought that it is important that a man should know his doctor. His doctor knows him—don't doubt that for a minute,—and to be fair to his doctor and to himself he should know his doctor.

So The Register begins today the publication of a series of educational publicity articles, designed to bring about a better understanding of the relations between physicians and their patients, individually, and between the general public and the medical profession as a whole.

These articles have been prepared for regular ethical physicians and approved by the American Medical association.

There is no individual or group or mass relationship of greater social, moral or economic importance than that between the medical profession and the general public; no relationship more sacred, or requiring more intelligent and sympathetic discernment and interpretation for its efficient functioning.

This relationship is one of mutuality—of mutual advantage and mutual obligation; and neither advantage nor obligation is primarily of a material nature—indeed both are peculiarly and in large measure elevated above the material, but must necessarily rest upon a business basis.

It is the hope and belief of those promoting this campaign of educational publicity that, through more intelligent and sympathetic co-operation on the part of their patients, physicians will be enabled to render better service, and that both physicians and patients will profit both morally and materially by a better understanding of each other's problems and points of view.

BIG GAME MULTIPLIES

What protection will do for wild life is shown strikingly in Jasper National Park, which corresponds in Canada to our Yellowstone Park. Big game, which has feared and shunned civilized man and all his works for generations, adapts itself to kindly treatment with remarkable promptness and intelligence.

Elk and deer are feeding within a stone's throw of the railroad yards at Jasper. Mountain sheep and goats visit the outskirts of the town. Bears make regular visits to the back doors of hotels and boarding houses. Deer which formerly fled at the distant sight of human beings are keeping down the grass on the local golf course and taking the place of lawn mowers.

Game of all kinds is multiplying again in the vicinity. There are said to be 10,000 to 15,000 mountain goats within the park, and there are big herds of caribou beyond. Even the grizzly bears, though not fraternizing with men like the black and cinnamon bears, are increasing back in the hills. The Canadian Rockies are being replenished with noble game animals that were on the point of vanishing altogether.

It is always so when society curbs the "killers" and gives wild life a fighting chance. Thanks to the new humanity, the unsportsmanlike folk who seem to kill for the sheer pleasure of killing, without regard to consequences, are no longer having their way on this continent. The result is good for true sportsmen as well as for the constantly growing number of men and women who can look upon beautiful animals and birds in their native habitat without wanting to shoot them.

THE MIGRATORY AGE

Mrs. Agnes Stearns of Leicester, England, who just died at the age of 100, was born, married and lived all her life in the same house.

Will that ever happen again?

Human civilization was migratory in the beginning. It started with the pastoral age, when cave men and hunters tamed animals, acquired herds and had to move with them from pasture to pasture. Then came agriculture, which fixed families rather permanently on the land; then industry and commerce, which packed populations in cities and kept them there.

Doubtless hundreds of millions of people, in these thousands of years, have been born, married and died without moving. You may find houses in old world cities where several generations in succession have done that.

But it is a new age. Transportation, communication, the spread of civilized life, the growth of wealth, all combine to make travel and change easier than ever before. A family or individual now can move to another city or another country as easily as a shepherd in Abraham's time could move to the next valley.

JOHN J. ROPER

His span of life having taken him through days and scenes historic in the history of California, John J. Roper closed his eyes in the city that he loved best of all the places on earth.

He crossed the plains in early days, saw life in mining camps, and had a part in early industry. Though thrown in rough places, there was nothing of roughness in his life or character. He was always a gentleman, kindly in his impulses and in his deeds, thoughtful and likeable and liked.

In his daily affairs, always he was interested in life about him, friendly in his attitude toward others, and his friendships were firm and lasting. Men like Mr. Roper leave a finer, sweeter world behind them than the one into which they come.

Citizenship Along the Border

Fresno Republican

We can not blame Canadians, employed in Detroit and other border cities, with being impatient on being told by their employers to become naturalized Americans or be fired.

The habit of easy indifference to citizenship has been so general that little has been thought of naturalization, especially along the border.

There is such a free intercommunication, and so little difference between persons on the Canadian and the United States side, that such a rule seems an intrusion.

But a little inconvenience of this sort is worth the while, even with accompanying social irritations, if it creates a greater respect for citizenship.

All residents should be citizens as far as possible. Every man who lives in the United States, and every woman, should be a citizen, or seek to become one, unless here on temporary business that requires a continuance of home ties.

There should be no such thing as a sentiment that prevents citizenship. We can not blame immigrants for continuing to have a love of native country. But if this love is so great as to prevent change of citizenship, it should be great enough to prevent a change of residence.

Make residence and citizenship as nearly the same as possible.

And make citizenship, no matter how easy its burdens, at least worth while getting, and keeping.

This Club Not Crowded

San Francisco Chronicle

Time was when the word "club" connoted something exclusive. That was before it was appropriated by the high-pressure salesman. Even now, when an enterprising and colorful reporter wants a word to carry the idea that a man moves in a carefully selected orbit, he calls him a clubman. Club woman means something different, for after all nearly every adult female American citizen is a member of some club or other.

But, howsoever the meaning of the word club has been dissipated, it has been brought back to its pristine significance by the Polar club. This, as the name indicates, restricts its membership to those leaders of expeditions who have carved their names on the projecting ends of the earth's axis. The charter membership consists of Ellsworth, Amundsen and Byrd. Posthumous honorary memberships have been bestowed on Peary and Scott. Here is a club which makes St. Botolph's of Boston look like a town meeting, and Philadelphia's exclusive Rittenhouse resemble the muster roll of the militia.

There is only one possibility of the Polar club's ever becoming overcrowded. That is if "Doc" Cook should apply for membership.

Messengers of Good Will

San Francisco Chronicle

The five army airplanes that took off yesterday from San Antonio to visit twenty nations lying to the south are so many messengers of good will. This is an increasing use for flying craft. Spain sent Commander Franco to Argentina to revive the interests of that Western empire in the motherland. Britain sent Alan J. Cobham on a 28,000-mile flight to Australia to forge new links between the commonwealth and the homeland.

In like manner, friendship is at the steering gear of the army's Pan-American flight. We wish to draw these neighboring cities closer to us by this friendly gesture. It is an enterprise fostered by the state department and conducted by the war department only because the army has the planes and the personnel.

Quite apart from this ambassadorial feature of the flight, however, are the good results looked for in the development of the airplane industry, the testing of new types of planes and the training of pilots in long-distance flying. The flight over the Andes itself should be an absorbing adventure.

MENINGITIS TREATMENT MUST BE PROMPT

Meningitis is an infectious disease, scientifically known at least since 1805.

Early epidemics occurred in the United States previous to 1811. It occurs both as an epidemic and in the form of occasional cases breaking out in various communities.

It is transmitted from one person to another, but is not nearly so infectious as some of the common infectious diseases.

It is generally believed that the bacteria enter the body through the nose and throat and that the disease may be transmitted by contact with a person who is infected and who may cough and sneeze. There also are probable carriers of the disease who carry it about with them but who do not get sick with meningitis.

In meningitis the disease usually sets in suddenly with headache, pains in the back, loss of appetite, chills and vomiting and fever.

The most important early symptom is painful stiffness of the muscles of the neck which may contract so greatly that the head will be drawn back. Sometimes there are tremors of the muscles and spasms of the arms and legs.

Obviously a disease with such serious symptoms should receive the most prompt medical attention. This is absolutely important, since the physician will make an exact diagnosis by the use of the examination of the blood and of the spinal fluid, and will then apply the specific medical treatment which has been shown to have great value in controlling this disease.

The serum, the discovery of which is accredited to Dr. Simon Flexner, must be given as early as possible, in severe cases being injected directly into the veins.

When it is injected into the spine, as is usually done when the organism causing the disease is found in the blood, some of the spinal fluid is first withdrawn.

Since the discovery of this serum, the death rate from this disease has fallen greatly, so that vast numbers of children are now saved who formerly would have died. The many serious complicating results of the disease also are thus avoided.

Some More of the Same

It Is the Human Heart That Holds Holy Grail

San Francisco Chronicle

The Associated Press properly reverts to its traditional guardedness in sending a story from Manchester, England, about the finding of a cup "which it is thought might have been" used by Christ at the Last Supper. But however difficult to prove or disprove the claims for this particular chalice, it is a subject that challenges the imagination and the reverence of mankind. The search for the Holy Grail was an inspiration to anchorites and warriors, to poets, romancers and musicians through the centuries when Christian civilization was formative and faith was finding expression in great art which still overawes a world grown skeptic.

In a later and unbelieving age, when Richard Wagner had stirred the soul of Christendom with his music dramatizing the mythology of the northern heathen, he wrote the Christian epilogue of his life-work about the search for Christ's cup, to be found only by him whose heart is pure.

Few will be ready to believe that it has turned up in Manchester. It would be a spiritual calamity to have it found. It is the figurative search for it that counts and that some time or other finds a response in every human soul.

Worth While Verse

THE PLEASURES OF MEMORY

Hail, Memory, hail! In thy exhaustless mine
From age to age unnumbered treasures shine!
Thought and her shadowy brood thy call obey.
And Place and Time are subject to thysway!
Thy pleasures must we feel, when most alone,
The only pleasures we can call our own.
Lighter than air. Hope's summer visions die,
If but a fleeting cloud abscure the sky;
If but a beam of sober Reason play.
Lo, Fancy's fairy frostwork melts away!
But can the wiles of Art, the grasp of Power,
Snatch the rich relics of a well-spent hour?
These, when the trembling spirit wings her flight,
Pour round her path a living stream of light;
And gild those pure and perfect realms of rest,
Where Virtue triumphs and her sons are blest.
—Samuel Rogers.

A WISE YOUTH

A small boy had just been vaccinated, and the doctor prepared to bandage the sore arm when the youngster said: "Put it on the other arm, doctor."

"Why, no," said the physician. "I want to put the bandage on your sore arm so the boys at school won't hit you on it."

"Then put it on the other arm please. You don't know the fellows at our school.—Boston Transcript.

AS WE SPEAK IT

Our language is a bit difficult for foreigners. A Frenchman who had come to America to master our vernacular was being shown behind the scenes by the manager of a vaudeville theater. "That actor," said the manager, pointing to one in the wings, "is taking off his make-up to make up for another take-off."

The Frenchman threw up his hands.—Boston Transcript.

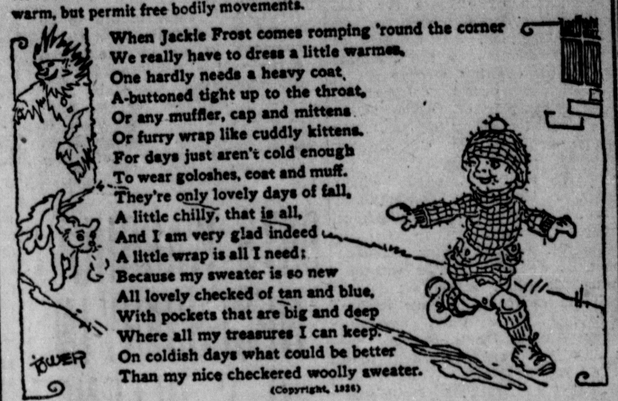
Sweater Days

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

FALL days are sweeter days. It isn't time for heavy wraps, but still the days are chilly and require a little extra clothing. I say "heavy wraps"—I should say warm wraps, for we should never burden a child with heavy clothing. Children are so active that in order not to be burdensome the clothing should be light but of warm materials. Heavy, hot caps, too long thick sleeves and burdensome flapping coats are irritating and cumbersome in play. More than that, children generate more heat and are therefore warmer than grown-ups, so that there is more danger of overdressing them than of clothing them too lightly. So in fall let them wear sweaters which serve the double purpose of being cuddly and warm, but permit free bodily movements.



When Jackie Frost comes romping 'round the corner
We really have to dress a little warmer,
One hardly needs a heavy coat,
A-buttoned tight up to the throat,
Or any muffler, cap and mittens
Or furry wrap like cuddly kittens.
For days just aren't cold enough
To wear goloshes, coat and muff.
They're only lovely days of fall,
A little chilly, that is all,
And I am very glad indeed
A little wrap is all I need;
Because my sweater is so new
All lovely checked of tan and blue,
With pockets that are big and deep
Where all my treasures I can keep.
On coldish days what could be better
Than my nice checkered woolly sweater.

Tax System Called Failure

San Bernardino Sun

Speaking before the tax authorities of the country, Ray L. Riley, state controller, declared California's taxation system to be a failure and charged "it has encouraged unwise state expenditures and will continue to do so—"

We could wish that Mr. Riley could place his expert opinion of California's taxation system in the hands of every property owner within California. He shows that instead of relieving the burden on real property the system—known more familiarly in San Bernardino county as Amendment No. 1—actually increased it.

Mr. Riley was thinking of his old home county when he declared:

"A grave injustice was perpetrated in California upon those counties who happened to possess a considerable railroad mileage and in some instances separation caused a loss of one-third of the taxable property within the county."

That sympathy interests San Bernardino county, but probably few others outside of the counties so seriously injured by the system. The entire state will be interested in Mr. Riley's charge that the system has encouraged unwise state expenditures.

Very probably the state is headed toward a revision in the taxation system. Governor-elect Young know of the impossible situations that have been created by the dual system of taxation and he has pledged himself to name a commission to make a careful survey of the taxation methods.

But what of San Bernardino county in the meantime?

Influential members of the new administration have long recognized that San Bernardino county should be reimbursed for at least a portion of its loss. The San Bernardino county delegation in the legislature should investigate the situation. For years the general county fund has been called upon to keep open schools at Needles and some other districts on the desert which were so heavily hit by the withdrawal of railroad property from local taxation. Certainly this burden at least is not the burden exclusively of the people of San Bernardino county but of the entire state. It cannot be hoped that the legislature would make a reimbursement sufficient to set the county's entire loss, for even during the 10-year period the law itself provides such reimbursement should be made by the legislature fell far short of its duty; but it would be a callous legislator who would take the position the responsibility of keeping the schools of Needles open because of absence of taxable property is not the burden of the state rather than of the county.

The situation at least calls for the effort.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

THAT business today is organized for the purpose of meeting and satisfying the wants of all the people.

THAT business not organized to do this needs working over.

THAT when a business does not function properly and is in the dumps, it needs to be awakened.

THAT advertising with its great pulling and boosting power will do much to get any business out of the dumps.

THAT there is no question but that the least expensive and most effective way to revive a business is by the right kind of advertising.

THAT it "can't be done" are words that should be forgotten. There are men everywhere every day doing things that some people think can't be done. If it needs to be done it can be done.

THAT when a business feels it must be done, then is the time to increase advertising and do it.

THAT a lot of business concerns are always waiting until they think conditions are right. In their way of thinking right conditions never come.

CONDITIONS ARE ALWAYS FAVORABLE FOR GOOD ADVERTISING. ADVERTISING IS NECESSARY IN EVERY BUSINESS.

It's Up to You!

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

It's up to you if you hope to be
A dominant leader of men.
It's up to you if you wish to see
Advancement again and again.
Whatever you think you would like to do,
It's up to you, my boy, it's up to you!

It's up to you if your heart is set
On winning a difficult game.
It's up to you if you plan to get
A measure of glory or fame.
No matter what goal you may have in view,
It's up to you, my boy, it's up to you!

It's up to you if your joy depends
On filling your coffers with gold.
It's up to you if you want your friends
To love you until you are old.
Whatever good fortune you may pursue,
It's up to you, my boy, it's up to you!

STATE LEGISLATURE IN SESSION

Two Asphyxiated at Huntington Beach

CURRENT COMMENT By Chester H. Rowell

VICE President Dawes made another speech in New York against the direct primary. In these days of discouraged reaction, there may be many who agree with his conclusion. But there will be none who test theories by facts who can agree with some of his arguments.

For instance, speaking of some recent unfit nominations by majority parties, he says that the old convention system would encourage the drafting and nomination of clean candidates by the opposition party. "Under the primary system, however, the opposition can not draft its strongest men as candidates, to emphasize the issue. The opposition party is as likely to choose unknown and incompetent men as candidates."

• • •

THIS sounds plausible. But what are the facts? The opposition party to Vare, in Pennsylvania, chose William R. Wilson, one of the best men in the state. He was not only able and upright, but well known and popular. No convention could have done better. The opposition in Illinois, to be sure, chose Boss Brennan, but he was neither "unknown" nor "incompetent." His disabilities were moral. And he would have owned the Democratic convention, if there had been one. No convention system could have improved these shameful conditions, and they have happened oftener in conventions than in primaries.

THE next objection is that the primaries are so expensive that only a wealthy man, or one backed by a wealthy or powerful organization, can run.

This also sounds plausible until you inquire what actually happened. Smith and Vare, to be sure, were wealthy, and spent indecent sums of money. What did they get for it? But in New York, two poor men, the Democratic candidates for Governor and Senator, defeated two very rich Republicans. Every Governor of California, since the primary was introduced, and every Senator but one, has been either poor or of moderate means. Senator Phelan, the one wealthy Senator, was not successful the first time by reason of his wealth, and he was defeated the second time by a poor man. Governor-elect Young, of California, doubtless not exactly "poor," but not a man of large wealth, defeated in the primary Governor Richardson, who had a powerful organization. Fewer of the United States Senators are wealthy now than under the convention system, and certainly no more governors.

FINALLY, the argument is that, under the primary, men are elected "whose chief effort, after election, seems to be to disorganize their party and fight its policies."

This, indeed, does happen under the primary system. So did it under the convention system. So would it, in the same places, still happen if the convention system were substituted. Brookhart could carry the Iowa convention, unless that convention were deliberately made misrepresentative of the party voters. The same is true of the other unorthodox states to the North. The elder La Follette was originally the product of the convention system, and the younger La Follette could have carried a convention in Wisconsin as easily as a primary. It was under the convention system that the Populists captured first many state organizations and finally the national convention of the Democratic party and, under Bryan, reversed its whole character and policies. It was an elected delegate Republican convention in California which repudiated the national Republican nominee, denounced the record of the Republican party in California, and endorsed Republican nominees pledged to fight the Republican party. If these are political wrongs, at least they did not begin with the primary and would not be cured by ending it.

ONE additional stock argument the vice president forgot to make. That is "party responsibility." If the party delegates, in convention, choose the nominees, the party will be responsible for them, and can be punished if they do not make good, but if all the party members choose them, in the primaries, no such responsibility is possible.

This also sounds plausible. But who can remember it ever happening? "Party responsibility" is indeed a good thing. But the direction to look for it is not backward. Nobody can cite any actual instances of its existence or exercise under the old system. If it does not exist now either, the lack is not due to the loss under the primary, of any thing which we ever had before. We may get it someday. Let us hope so. But not by the vain expedient of restoring a device which did not work that way when we had it.

OIL WORKERS ARE FOUND DEAD IN BED

Woman Owner of Cottage Discovers Bodies As She Starts to Investigate

MYSTERY IN DEATHS

Men, Declared to Have Been Out of Work, May Have Committed Suicide

MYSTERY SURROUNDS the deaths of V. E. McLaughlin and C. P. Newell, oil workers, whose bodies were found this morning in a small house at the rear of 303 Sixth street, Huntington Beach.

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. W. I. Clapp, when she went into the cottage to investigate as to whether her tenants were present. She had not seen them for a week and did not know whether they had vacated.

Opening the door to the little house, she was horrified to find the two men dead in bed, and with a gas heater burning in the little room.

The men, it was said, were out of employment. Whether they participated in a suicide pact or were accidentally asphyxiated is not known.

No notes were found in the house or in the clothes of the dead men. The presumption is that the oil workers went to bed and left the fire burning to keep the room warm.

Whether they had been dead for several days or whether they succumbed to the fumes of the deadly gas last night could not be determined by a superficial investigation made immediately following discovery of the bodies, at 10 o'clock.

Jack Tinsley, Huntington Beach police chief, and other members of the force were making investigations as to when the men were last seen and whether there were circumstances that would support a theory of suicide.

Mrs. Clapp is understood to have said that her tenants had paid their rent. Location of relatives is unknown to officers engaged in the investigation.

The bodies are at the Harrell undertaking parlors, Huntington Beach, where Coroner C. D. Brown will conduct an inquest, probably tomorrow.

NAVAL MONEY BILL REPORTED TO HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Slashed by the Coolidge economy mandate, the annual naval appropriation bill, carrying $324,394,680—nearly $10,000,000 below current appropriations—was reported to the house today.

The appropriations committee, acting on the president's counsel, asked no appropriations for three authorized cruisers and two giant dirigibles and left the navy personnel at its present figure of 82,500 men.

The recent proposal for 10 cruisers, approved by the president, stands independently in another bill, calling for no actual appropriation of funds.

Hence, as matters now stand, there is no actual demand for money for new fighting craft, though this may develop as the session progresses.

JOHNSON DEMANDS INCREASE IN NAVY

WASHINGTON, Jan 3.—Declaring the U. S. navy is "woefully weaker" than that of Great Britain and "far inferior" to that of Japan, Senator Johnson, Republican, California, demanded in the senate today that it be brought up to the 5-5-3 ratio.

This, he declared, will require construction of 17 new cruisers by 1932, elevating of guns, increased speed for capital ships and strengthening of Hawaiian defenses.

"We have made the experiment of setting an example of refraining from competition in naval armaments," Johnson said. "That experiment has failed. There is but one thing left to do, unless we wish to fall hopelessly behind in sea power. We must begin at once a light cruiser program which will at least bring us within sight of the other powers."

Man With $3700 Held for Forgery

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 3.—C. J. Dryden, wanted for forgery in New York, will be held in jail here until a telegraphic warrant for his arrest on a felony charge, on its way from New York, arrives, Chief of Police James Patrick said today.

Patrick said the warrant will be sufficient to block any attempt by Dryden to gain release on habeas corpus proceedings. Word that the warrant was being sent was received this morning from William J. Fahey, chief inspector of police in New York.

Search of Dryden's baggage failed to reveal the $150,000 in cash he is alleged to have obtained through forged checks, in New York. When he was arrested, Saturday night, Dryden had $3700.70 on his person. He claimed this was part of $12,000 he had won at the Saratoga races before he came west.

Natives In Sumatra Again Rebel

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 3.—Dispatches from Batavia today said rebellion against Dutch rule was in progress in the entire district of Siloengkang, on the west coast of the island of Sumatra.

One Dutch officer and 30 rebels were said to have been killed today, and several Dutch soldiers were wounded in an attack on military automobiles. The engagements followed an attack by rebels on Sawahlonto, from which they were repulsed.

Many natives were arrested today.

U. S. FOREIGN POLICY CRITICS IRK PRESIDENT

Secretary of State Cancels Regular Press Conference

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Withdrawal of American marines and warships from Nicaragua is asked in a resolution introduced in the senate today by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana. "The landing of our marines on Nicaraguan soil, the establishment of a censorship and the declaring of a territory occupied by the Liberal forces as neutral zones are, under the circumstances, in violation of the principles of international law," the resolution declared.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—With American relations in Mexico, Nicaragua and China in the most critical state of recent years, and President Coolidge asking the press to stop criticizing the administration's foreign policy, Secretary of State Kellogg today cancelled his regular press conference.

Special significance was attached in diplomatic and congressional circles to Kellogg's action, because of disquieting major developments since the secretary received the press, on December 30, when he declined to discuss foreign affairs.

Ready for Compromise

Pressed by senatorial and foreign criticism of U. S. occupation of Nicaraguan rebel ports, and faced by military defeats of the American-recognized Diaz regime there, the administration is ready to compromise.

Administration officials are advising Diaz to accept mediation in the civil war and to agree to practically any compromise solution with the rebels which eliminated the Liberal chief, Sacasa, as a presidential aspirant, the United Press learned today from reliable diplomatic sources.

At the same time, strict orders have been issued to Admiral Latimer, commander of U. S. forces, to avoid further acts, such as the recent criticized American censorship, which could be interpreted as intervention of partisanship.

Settlement of the Nicaraguan dispute, in which Mexico recognizes the rebels, would lessen the strain on United States-Mexican relations, now acute because of the oil land controversy, it is said.

Resent Senatorial Criticism

Officials here, led by President Coolidge, resent as unjustified the senatorial and foreign allegations of imperialism, as applied to the administration's policies in Nicaragua and Mexico, and are anxious to prove by future acts that the United States' only concern in those countries is for legitimate protection of American lives and property.

While there is evidence of some change in method to meet what is considered criticism, the president and Secretary of State Kellogg have no intention of relaxing the basic policy of defending U. S. interests south of the Rio Grande.

In Nicaragua, U. S. warships and marines will not be withdrawn until American lives and property are considered safe from civil war injury, officials said today.

In Mexico, any attempt of the Calles government to seize American property, under the alleged confiscatory oil law, which became effective January 1, will be followed by retaliation by this government, it is understood.

Whether this would be a break in diplomatic relations or lifting the embargo on arms shipments to Mexico, which would aid the counter-revolutionary enemies of Calles, has not been decided.

Officials are watching closely the preparations of De la Huerta, Mexican counter-revolutionary leader, now in Los Angeles, for a possible drive across the border.

RESIDENTS IN QUAKE ZONE SURVEY LOSS

Imperial Valley Tremors Recur and Throw Fresh Scare Into Inhabitants

VOLCANO EMITS SMOKE

Mass of Debris Still Litters Downtown Areas of Calexico and Mexicali

(By United Press)

CALEXICO, Jan. 3—Calexico and Mexicali set about the task of rehabilitation today in the calm wake of the series of earth tremors which partially razed buildings and caused damage in the two cities totaling approximately $1,000,000.

Two light tremors, barely discernible, were felt here early this morning. They were not distinct enough to rouse many residents and caused no apprehension among the populace.

Recurrent temblors early Sunday threw a fresh scare into residents of the quake area, and caused two minor fires, which added to the losses. Black Butte, a volcano, dormant for 40 years, gave forth ominous clouds of black smoke during the day, but the crater was quiet today.

Most of the damage here and across the Mexican border was caused by the series of shocks early New Year's day, and Sunday's quakes were believed to have been merely the customary recurrent tremors which follow severe quakes.

Downtown streets here and at Mexicali still were littered with debris today from falling walls and broken glass fronts, but the wreckage was being removed rapidly by workmen.

Lighting and water service was restored to normal, and the populace felt at ease for the first time since the severe tremors began, shortly after midnight, New Year's, and interrupted the revelry of merrymakers.

Damage in El Centro, Yuma, and other cities which felt the tremors on New Year's morning, was comparatively negligible although several buildings at El Centro were cracked and will have to be rebuilt.

PACKERS DENIED DECISION APPEAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Five major Chicago packing companies today were denied an appeal from a decsion of District of Columbia supreme court, which denied a motion of the packers to set aside a consent decree of 1920, binding them exclusively to the meat packing business.

Swift and company, Armour and company, Morris and company, Wilson and company, and the Cudahy Packing company are involved.

The district court of appeals, in denying the appeal, supported the district court's decision that it had no jurisdiction and that the case should have been taken directly to the U. S. supreme court.

WILL DEDICATE HOSPITAL

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 3.—Formal dedication of an extension to the Mercy hospital, here, will take place next Sunday, according to an announcement. The extension cost $200,000.

Editor Must Serve Term For Contempt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—George R. Dale, Muncie, Ind., editor, must serve his jail sentence for contempt of court, imposed because he criticised the courts of his county in an editorial in his paper, the Muncie Post-Democrat.

The U. S. supreme court today dismissed Dale's petition for a review of the Indiana supreme court decision upholding the decision because the record of the case had not been printed.

No further appeal is possible except a petition for a rehearing and Dale is said to be unable to make it for financial reasons.

BOLD BANDITS GET $11,000 IN L. A. ROBBERIES

Playhouse Theater Safe And Downtown Cafeteria Looted

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Two bold robberies were staged by yeggmen here early today, at a cafeteria and theater, the holdup men escaping with loot totaling more than $11,000.

The Playhouse theater was invaded by a pair of expert safeblowers, who tied the night watchman, broke open a big vault, and fled with $10,000 cash and a diamond-set watch, valued at $1300.

At Leighton's cafeteria, nine employes were pounced upon by two bandits as the establishment was being opened this morning. The bandits forced the manager to open the safe, and escaped with $375 cash. The bandits overlooked $700 in the vault.

Blamed for Both Robberies

Police suspect that both robberies were executed by the same pair of yeggs.

The bandits worked like professionals.

In the cafeteria holdup, the bandits had hidden all night in a washroom. When the employes arrived, they were attacked, and Sam Hamss, the manager, was knocked in the head with the butt end of a pistol when he delayed opening the safe.

Matilda Soehnel, a waitress, also was hit in the head, the blow inflicting a severe flesh wound.

The theater robbery was performed shortly after midnight. O. C. Baker, night watchman, was seized and tied to a chair when he returned from his midnight lunch.

Hears Muffled Explosion

A few seconds later, he heard a muffled explosion and, after he had worked loose from his bonds, three hours later, Baker discovered that the safe had been blown open and emptied.

The diamond-set watch was the property of Louis O. Macloon, lessee of the theater. The loot comprised the returns of the Orange Grove and Playhouse theaters for the holiday period. It was partly covered by insurance.

Police investigators were unable to find finger-prints on the safe. The cracksmen evidently had used gloves in their operations to avoid leaving any clues.

Call Issued for Bank Statement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Comptroller of the Currency McIntosh today issued a call for the condition of all national banks, as of Dec. 31, 1926.

"Registering" Our Progress

By J. Albert Dennis

Mr. J. P. Baumgartner, Editor The Register:

Many metropolitan newspapers issue a New Year's edition, reviewing the past year's activities, take a panoramic glance into the future with its general outlook, etc. In this respect The Register on Saturday fairly eclipsed itself and I doubt if it has been surpassed by any paper in a city of 30,000 inhabitants. Nothing was left to be added, and the staff scored a journalistic feat that merits the plaudits of all citizens who are proud of the progress and prosperity of the city they call their home.

What a fine thing it would be if the county or Chamber of Commerce would send tens of thousands of copies of the paper back east to tell the story of our growth during the past year,—a mine of information, retrospective and prospective, a comprehensive review of the activities of beautiful Santa Ana and Orange county in which

Her roses bloom forever beneath an azure sky,
Her sunlight fadeth never for summer linger'd nigh,
Here at the gateway of the east, in tropic garlands dressed,
She smiles in budding beauty, the Queen of the American West.

COUNTY ROAD PROGRAM TO BE CHANGED

4 SUPERVISORS AGREE

Division Engineer Will Lose Position Through New Plan to Be Put in Effect

UNDER AN agreement reached among four members of the board of supervisors, drastic changes in the highway construction and maintenance systems will be instituted tomorrow.

J. L. McBride, present superintendent of the county road department, will be left in charge of highway construction contracts. All control and superintendency of dirt roads, hitherto, for some years, under McBride's management, will be put under the control of each supervisor for his own district.

Each supervisorial district is to have its own equipment and crews of employes.

Name DeWolfe, Selbrede

Two dirt road and paved highway superintendents are to be instituted to that extent carrying on the present organized system of road department operations. One of these superintendents will be C. H. Selbrede, who will have general supervision in the second and third supervisorial districts. The other will be W. F. DeWolfe, who will have general charge in the fourth and fifth districts. Selbrede, at present, is an inspector in the highway department, and DeWolfe is a division engineer, in charge, under McBride, of maintenance work in the fourth and fifth districts.

The changes include the separation from the service of Harry J. Parker, who has been division engineer over the second and third districts under McBride. Parker's presence in the road department under McBride is known to have been a storm center. Supervisor William Schumacher failed to get along with Parker, or Parker with him, and McBride refused to fire Parker.

That Supervisors Schumacher and Jeffrey were in favor of taking the dirt road and repair work out of the hands of the county road department under McBride's supervision became known last week. Supervisor-elect John Mitchell, of Garden Grove, also became a convert to that way of thinking. Supervisor S. H. Finley of Santa Ana favored retaining the present system, as did Supervisor Willard Smith of Orange. However, no county roads are located in Finley's district.

It seems that a conference was called recently attended by all of the supervisors excepting Finley, who was left out because he has no road work in his district, and by McBride.

At this meeting the plan for breaking up the present road department was outlined, to become effective tomorrow.

New Duties for McBride

Under the program as agreed upon, the present highway department will be divided up, on the surface, into two separate departments each to be operated separately. Into the paved highway department will go McBride, who, it is understood, has agreed to accept appointment as superintendent of that department at the same salary as he now draws. McBride will have entire charge of getting rights-of-way, of drawing up specifications, of arranging for receiving of bids, of seeing that contracts are properly drawn, of seeing to it that contractors live up to their contracts. He is to have nothing to do with dirt roads and nothing to do with repairing of paved roads.

The two division engineers, or superintendents, are to have a bookkeeping department at the courthouse, and there accounts are to be kept of the operations of each supervisorial district.

Each supervisor is to be supreme in his own district so far as directing the improvement of dirt roads and the repair of paved highways, his instructions to be carried out through the division engineer, in charge of his district.

The tractors, graders and other equipment now congregated in the highway department are to be divided up among the four districts, and each district is to organize its own highway department. Whether that department will revert to the old road boss system remains to be seen. It appears that whether it does is a matter to be determined by each supervisor for his own district. Supervisor John Mitchell said today that so far as his district is concerned, he does not intend to use the road boss system, but proposes to operate his equipment and crews as a district unit.

Acting under the agreement, Mc-

High Court to Review Teapot Suit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The government's sweeping St. Louis victory in the Teapot Dome oil suit, annuling leases held by three Harry F. Sinclair companies, will be reviewed by the U. S. supreme court.

The supreme court today granted a review of the circuit court of appeals decision, holding the leases on the rich naval oil reserve lands in Wyoming had been obtained fraudulently.

Similar government victory in the Doheny-Elk Hills annulment case from California now is under advisement by the court, the appeal having been argued last fall, and it is believed probable the cases may be decided together.

130 DEPUTIES IN COURTHOUSE ARE RENAMED

New Appointments Made By County Officials As Matter of Form

In compliance with the law requiring reappointment of all deputies in county offices with the beginning of new terms of office, various officials today were filing written certificates of appointment with the county clerk. The new appointments, affecting about 130 deputies, became effective at noon today.

New "faces" at the courthouse today were few, outside of the district attorney's office, where an entirely new "lineup" accompanied Z. B. West jr. into office, as the successor of A. P. Nelson. L. W. Blodget, of Huntington Beach; Sam L. Collins, of Fullerton, and Roy V. Shafer, of Santa Ana, are West's deputies. Shafer has been in the office a month under Nelson's regime. Mrs. Ruby Bush, former deputy city clerk of Santa Ana, is West's office clerk.

Elsewhere at the courthouse, the only new face noted was that of Elmer Schaniel, adjutant of Santa Ana post, American Legion, who was appointed deputy county clerk by J. M. Backs. Schaniel relieves H. M. Head, who has been a department clerk of superior court, since department 3 was established in 1923. Head has joined the law offices of his father, H. M. Head, of the firm, Head, Rutan and Scovel, Santa Ana.

Preparations were being made today for reorganization of the county board of supervisors which is scheduled to hold its first meeting of the new term tomorrow.

Election of Supervisor William Schumacher of Buena Park, as chairman of the board, was forecast in today's discussion of the approaching meeting. Schumacher, member from the third district, is the veteran of the board, and his selection to succeed T. B. Talbert, of Huntington Beach, retiring supervisor from the second district, is understood to be virtually assured.

John C. Mitchell, of Garden Grove, elected from the second district to fill Talbert's place, is the only new member. Willard Smith, of Orange, starts a new term as representative of the fourth district, as does George Jeffrey, of Irvine, supervisor from the fifth district. S. H. Finley, of Santa Ana, supervisor from the first district, is a holdover member, with Schumacher.

ARIZONA SOLONS IN EXTRA SESSION

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 3.— Arizona's eighth legislative session opened here today, with Democrats, led by Gov. G. W. P. Hunt, dominating, by a big majority.

This was a special session, called by Governor Hunt, the regular biennial meeting of the legislators to start on January 10.

A tentative organization was perfected at caucuses Sunday.

E. Winsor, of Yuma, twice president of the senate, was re-elected a third time.

The preliminary meeting of the legislature was called by Governor Hunt to pass legislation "to protect Arizona's rights on the Colorado river," and for special funds for the state highway department.

LAWMAKERS ASSEMBLE IN SACRAMENTO

California's 47th General Assembly Convenes, with Flood of Bills Impending

LEVEY NEW SPEAKER

Important Matters Coming Up Include Reapportionment and Road Financing

(By United Press)

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 3.—Edgar C. Levey, of San Francisco, was elected speaker of the assembly, at the opening of the California legislature, this afternoon.

Levey overwhelmed Bradford Crittenden, of Tracy, and Isaac Jones, of Ontario, receiving 57 of the 79 votes cast. Crittenden and Jones each polled 11 votes.

Senator Arthur Breed, of Piedmont, was named speaker pro tem of the senate for another term, without opposition.

Levey's election gives San Francisco its first speakership in 24 years.

The galleries of both houses were well filled with spectators and the assembly chamber was given a touch of color by the bright dresses of wives and women friends of the assemblymen, who were honored with seats for the opening.

Arthur Ohnimus, of San Francisco, veteran clerk of seven sessions, was unanimously re-elected to the post of chief clerk of the assembly.

Young Starts Senate Moving

Lieutenant Governor and Gov.-elect C. C. Young set the wheels of the senate in motion and Arthur Ohnimus, of San Francisco, dropped the gavel in the assembly.

William M. Byrne, of Los Angeles, nominated by Charles F. Reindollar, of San Rafael, was elected speaker pro tem, without opposition in the assembly.

Drizzling rain and heavy fog hung over Sacramento this morning, as legislators, attaches, lobbyists and visitors flocked into the city for the opening of the 47th legislature.

Skids were well greased for the legislative offices, and the session today was apparently to be of brief duration. Gov.-elect C. C. Young arrived from Berkeley on an early train, and went immediately to his room to confer with his advisors. Lt. Gov.-elect Buron R. Fitts was still writing on his message to the legislature early today.

Plenty of Bills Coming

There will be no dearth of bills for presentation at the coming session, it was indicated by questioning the legislative arrivals.

Reapportionment, highway financing, reorganization of state departments and budget stand out as the important questions to be considered.

Assemblyman Morgan Keaton, of Long Beach, was here with his measure proposing a poll tax of $5 on every person who doesn't vote.

Assemblyman Dan Wilson, of Chinese Camp, would put tuberculosis under the head of occupational disease within the meaning of employers' liability. Assemblyman Van Bernard, of Butte City, will recommend a separate ward at San Quentin for youthful prisoners, and a constitutional amendment making terms of assemblyman four years instead of two.

Stockton's appeal for money for a deep water canal will be presented by Assemblyman F. Charles Cloudley, of Stockton, more salary for superior judges of Alameda, Los Angeles and San Francisco is sought by the State Bar association, which would raise the annual pay of these judges from $7000 to $10,000.

Would Abolish Executions

The bill to abolish capital punishment will be presented by Senator T. C. West, of Alameda, who has added a new feature, providing that persons convicted of capital offenses shall not be paroled. Repeal of the corporations securities act, substituting the Colorado fraud act, will be sought in a bill introduced by Assemblyman Walter Little of Los Angeles.

A whole flock of bills to remedy the state highway building situation will be presented, ranging from bond issues to a new gasoline tax.

Following adjournment this afternoon, the committee appointed to prepare the inauguration program, which starts tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, will immediately get to work. At the inauguration, Governor Young will outline in his message the policies of state government he proposes to follow during his administration, together with laws he desires passed by the new legislature.

SEVEN PERSONS ARE INJURED IN AUTO MISHAPS

Seven persons were injured, none critically, in three automobile accidents reported to officers over the week end. One of the accidents occurred in Santa Ana, one near Talbert and one in Brea canyon.

Broken ribs and serious cuts about the head were suffered by Archie Shearer, last night, when the car, in which he was a passenger, overturned on the highway in Brea canyon. Lee Tride was the driver of the car. He was uninjured. Mrs. H. Shearer, Mrs. Pearl Shearer, Mrs. Lee Tride and Pauline Tride, small daughter of the driver, were slightly injured.

According to the occupants of the car, another car, driven by a person whose name was not learned, cut in front of the Tride car in the heavy traffic in the canyon. The front fender was caught in the wheel of the other car, causing the Tride machine to overturn.

The injured were removed to their homes, where they were treated by physicians.

Donald McIntosh, small son of M. S. McIntosh, 932 East Fourth street, Santa Ana, was slightly injured at 4 p. m., yesterday, when the machine, in which he was riding with his father, collided with a car driven by J. R. Goodwin, 55, 501 South Main street, at the intersection of Third and Bush streets.

The McIntosh machine was travelling west on Third street and the Goodwin car was being driven north on Bush street at the time of the accident.

Young McIntosh was taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital, where medical aid was given, and later removed to his home.

Tom Stonaker, 620 Twelfth street, Huntington Beach, suffered a severe cut on his face, when the automobile, in which he was riding, collided with a machine on the Edinger road, one mile east of Talbert, yesterday afternoon, according to a report filed by George Stinson, state traffic officer.

Stonaker was taken to the emergency hospital, in Huntington Beach, and later removed to his home.

..o one in the other machine was reported injured.

CONVICTS BALKED IN PRISON BREAK

SAN QUENTIN, Jan. 3.—"Big Bill O'Conor was in solitary confinement and Ernest Booth was in the prison hospital, with both legs broken, today, at the result of a daring but futile attempt to shorten their sentences of five years to life, by escaping.

O'Connor and Booth are two of the most notorious criminals in San Quentin. The attempted escape was thwarted by guards, forewarned, who watch Booth partially descend a makeshift rope of blankets and clothing from the window of his room in the tuberculosis ward of the prison hospital. The rope broke and Booth fell 30 feet, to break both legs.

O'Connor, who was just preparing to descend, was overpowered by guards. He was sentenced from San Francisco and Booth from Oakland, both for robbery.

PRISON URGED FOR ALCOHOL POISONING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Criminal prosecution on homicide charges of persons responsible for poisonous substances being placed in industrial alcohol was demanded in a resolution introduced in the house today by Representative Black, Democrat, New York.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon today urged all possible speed by federal chemists to remove poison ingredients from denatured alcohol.

Mellon summoned Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews, Under Secretary of the Treasury Winston and Dr. J. N. Doran, chief prohibition chemist, to his office to discuss the alcohol situation.

Afterwards, Andrews said the Industrial Alcohol association had established a fellowship at the Mellon institute, Pittsburgh, to find a non-poisonous denaturant for the commercial alcohol.

The American Chemical society has requested its 15,000 members to make suggestions for a non-poisonous denaturant that would make alcohol unfit for drink.

ROAD PROGRAM TO BE CHANGED

Bride today has been busy "firing" crews of men who have been at work under his department. Several dozen men have been let out. Some of these men will secure employment, doubtless, through the new supervisorial district organizations. Others are out looking for new jobs elsewhere.

The old road boss system, long in use in this county was one in which each supervisor had his district broken up into road districts, each in charge of a boss. Dissatisfaction with the system resulted in instituting the county road department about six years ago.

The supervisors who made their fight against the road department have declared that the new system, under which a supervisor can have a district organization, or separate road boss districts if he desires, will save money for the county as a whole.

No New Year's Baby? Doctors, Hurry Reports!

What? No New Year's baby? Santa Ana merchants, who offered an extensive array of infant equipment to the first child born within the city in the new year, were becoming desperate today.

Will they be forced to bestow the collection upon a baby born on January 2.

Inquiry at the Santa Ana Valley and Orange County hospitals today again failed to locate a single cherub who cried his, or her, first on January 1. Several husky youngsters made their appearance on January 2, but the conditions of the award were that the child should be born on January 1 and be the first child of 1927.

One hope was held out today—that the doctors of the city will make belated reports, indicating the identity of the fortunate youngster.

What's a new year baby contest without a baby?

HURLS GARBAGE CAN AT JAILER AND ESCAPES

Taking advantage of the fact that he was selected to carry garbage out of the county jail, Saturday night, E. G. Gammell, 26, Seal Beach oil worker, a prisoner in the county jail since December 20, made his escape by dashing down the alley in the rear of the jail, after throwing the garbage can at Jailer Bray, who had followed him out of the building, according to a report filed at the sheriff's office.

Gammell had been made a trusty the day before.

He walked out a side door with several other prisoners, who also carried garbage cans. Emptying the can, he threw it at Bray and disappeared around the corner. Bray was not armed at the time, it was said.

Sheriff's officers immediately searched the city for the man, but thus far he has not been apprehended.

Gammell came to jail from Huntington Beach, where he was found guilty on a charge of reckless driving, in Justice C. W. Warner's court. He was sentenced to serve 250 days or pay a fine of $250.

Gammell's time would have expired on Aug. 26, 1927.

RECKLESS DRIVER GETS LONG TERM

Ninety days in jail was the sentence meted out to W. F. Ficke, of Orange, when he appeared before Recorder B. B. Brown, in Seal Beach, this morning, charged with reckless driving.

Ficke was arrested at 3 a. m., Saturday, on the Coast highway, when officers were attracted by the screams of a woman companion.

According to officers, Ficke frightened his companion by his erativ driving. She leaped from the car and screamed.

Paper Companies Lose Trust Suit

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—The federal trade commission today won in U. S. supreme court its anti-trust suit against the Pacific States Paper Trade assoc., which includes 5 local association of wholesale paper dealers in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Spokane, Seattle and Tacoma. The court reversed a circuit court ruling against the commission, in which it was held that sales to retail dealers within the state were not interstate commerce when the goods were shipped in from another state direct to the retailer.

McReynolds May Get Federal Job

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews is considering Maj. Frank R. McReynolds, internal revenue supervisor at Los Angeles, for prohibition administrator for Southern California and Arizona.

McReynolds will arrive in Washington tomorrow, to confer with Andrews.

Capt. James Everington, former Los Angeles police chief, now studying smuggling conditions on the south Atlantic coast for the prohibition organization, also is under consideration for the post.

STUDENT KILLS SELF

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 3.—Convinced that he had experienced everything that life had to offer, Joe N. Moore, a 21-year-old University of Illinois student, killed himself here Sunday. Moore left a note in which he told of his determination to die because he had lived "life in full."

Police News

Guy W. Stull, 514 South Ross street, returned to Santa Ana Sunday, from Tia Juana, minus the automobile which he drove to the border, according to a report filed with the sheriff's office. Stull reported that his machine was stolen while he was visiting the Mexican city. A description of the car was sent to a number of cities in Southern California.

An automobile, owned by Russell Hall, 519 Ninth street, Huntington Beach, was stolen in the beach city January 1, according to a report filed with the sheriff's office.

1926 MARRIAGE MART BROKEN BY DAN CUPID

The marriage market closed strong in Orange county, establishing a new December record and setting, also, a new high mark of 5026 for the year 1926.

The year's total, passing the 5000 mark for the first time, showed a gain of 262 over the total for 1925, which was 4764. This figure is expected to give Orange county third rank among the 58 counties of the state, in number of marriage licenses issued. Los Angeles and San Francisco counties ranked ahead of this county in 1925.

During December, there were 495 licenses issued, according to the records of County Clerk J. M. Backs. December, 1925, had 405 licenses. The month just closed showed a gain of 71 over the preceding month, November.

The usual "after the holiday" slump now is anticipated by Backs, whose records show that the first quarter of each year always is the "dull" season at the license bureau. This is apparent in the record for 1926, which is as follows:

January, 380; February, 296; March, 362; April, 392; May, 432; June, 522; July, 439; August, 416; September, 450; October, 418; November, 424; December, 495.

Nineteen applicants reported for the examinations held here last week. Of this number, only seven made the required percentage, the others failing in prescribed subjects.

Temporary certificates were issued today to the following successful candidates:

Jesson, 2180 West Twenty-sixth Place, Los Angeles; Alice Anita Wheeler, 229 Colorado avenue, Santa Monica, and J. A. Reed, Spadra.

Frank L. Worden, Former Business Man Here, Visitor

Frank L. Worden, former business man of Santa Ana, is here upon a business and pleasure trip. He is accompanied by Mrs. Worden and they are guests in the home of Frank Taylor, Tustin, father of Mrs. Worden.

Worden formerly was in the printing business here, having been the owner of a job printing shop. He now is located in Tacoma, Wn., where he is secretary and manager of the Tacoma division of the United Typothetae of America, the organization being an association of master printers.

Worden left Santa Ana when he went to an officers' training camp, at the presidio, during the World war, and located in Tacoma following his release from service.

Veteran Is Freed From Bastile to Go to Sanitarium

Paul Tucker, former service man, held in the county jail as a parole violator and on a charge of passing alleged worthless checks, was freed yesterday by the county parole board on condition that he be sent to the Compton sanitarium, according to A. P. Nelson, former district attorney and member of the parole board of 1926.

Nelson said that Tucker's status as a parole violator stood, but that the criminal charge against him had been dropped on condition that he be sent to the hospital.

The board was told that the man would be removed to Compton as soon as possible, according to Nelson.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DE LA HUERTA GETS READY TO STRIKE CALLES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Reports from Guaymas, Sonora, Mex., telling of brisk encounters in that vicinity between Yaqui Indians and Mexican federal troops, received here today, tended to substantiate statements fo Adolfo De la Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, that he was directing a concentration of rebel forces to strike against the Calles government.

In two clashes near Ortiz, according to the Guaymas dispatches, received by El Eco de Mexico, here, from its Guaymas correspondent, Yaqui insurrectionists, who recognize De la Huerta as their leader, were at first forced to retreat, but in the second engagement defeated the federal forces.

Eighteen Yaquis and 22 federals lost their lives in the two skirmishes, according to the dispatches. Scores were wounded on both sides.

Ready to Strike

That De la Huerta, who has figured prominently in six Mexican revolutions, two of which he led himself, is ready to strike against Calles, his former colleague, has been known to department of justice agents here for some time.

The U. S. officials have maintained a "hands off" policy, pending developments, which thus far have not included any move, it was said, which could be interpreted as a violation of American neutrality laws.

Reports of munitions smuggling across the border into Mexico, via Tucson, which reached here today, were considered significant also, in the light of recent declarations of De la Huerta.

The famous revolutionist is in hiding at his Los Angeles home, where he is surrounded by a bodyguard of six armed men. He is under constant surveillance of U. S. department of justice agents.

Mexicans to Be Tried

Gen. Enrique Estrada, former Mexican secretary of war, and nearly 100 alleged associates, are scheduled to go on trial in federal court here tomorrow, on charges of violating American neutrality laws.

Estrada and an "army" of 150 men were captured last fall, near San Diego, on the eve of an asserted movement into Lower California to stage a rebellion.

A fleet of armored trucks, and a large quantity of munitions and machine-guns, were confiscated by the federal agents at the time.

Fifty of the accused Mexicans have pleaded guilty and will be sentenced after the trial.

SAILOR BRINGS FIANCEE TO SANTA ANA AND DAN CUPID OPENS 1927 MARRIAGE BOOK

Obeying the slogan of "shop early," Mary Rudy, 19, of Los Angeles, was the first 1927 bride in Orange county.

Mary appeared at 8 o'clock on New Year's morning, on the arm of Claudius Morris La Bean, 22, a sailor on the U. S. S. Tennessee, at San Pedro. The courthouse being closed, because of the legal holiday, Mary and Claudius visited the home of County Clerk J. M. Backs, who obligingly opened the license bureau and issued them a license.

Although it was their first marriage, the occasion was not the first matrimonial venture for Mary and Claudius. They had visited Backs once before and Saturday showed him a license that had been issued to them here last December 7. At that time they had lost the copy of the certificate that must be filed with the state bureau of vital statistics, in Sacramento. When they appeared Saturday, they were merely looking for a duplicate of the lost certificate, but found that a new license was required as well.

Another sailor, Walter D. Huse, 20, a shipmate of La Bean, also appeared with the girl of his choice, Jane Kelly, 19, of Los Angeles, but were refused a license by Backs. Huse and La Bean had brought their fiancees to Santa Ana on December 7 for a double wedding, but both lost their certificates. In making out his second application, Saturday, Huse gave his age as 20. Backs compared this with the previous application which showed Huse's age to be 21. Accordingly, the license was refused.

—buy with a small amount down

We ran across one of our best manufacturers in December in a low frame of mind. He had overbought on upholstery fabrics; was stocked up with more than he ought to have.

We suggested that, instead of selling part of them to some fabric dealer, he make them up into regular suites and allow us to sell them at lower prices than usual.

Our idea was to bring our customers something worth while rather than to help him from under a heavy fabric investment, although it works that way.

He agreed, and here we are!

Fine, three-piece living room suites, with hardwood frames, spring seats and backs; davenport, high-back chair and low-back rocker; upholstered in jacquard velour, in taupe and blue.

Priced away down at $98 per suite.

Offered to you on EASY PAYMENTS—a small payment down brings one of these quality suites to your home—you can pay the balance in convenient monthly portions.

This sale begins TUESDAY MORNING. Be on hand and avail yourselves of this excellent opportunity.

Engagement of Former Santa Ana Girl Is Announced

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Hall, their daughter, Miss Daisy Leslie Hall, and her grandmother, Mrs. Kate K. Roberts, all of whom resided in Santa Ana for many years, will be interested in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Hall to Milton Lloyd Selby. The news was told last Wednesday at a delightful bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Hall at the Women's Atheltic club.

The engagement of Miss Hall to Milton Lloyd Selby was formally announced at the annual breakfast given by members of Alpha Phi sorority at University of California, Southern Branch, last June, when Mr. Selby sent an immense box of chocolates to his fiancee, following out the old custom of this sorority. The wedding will take place April 6, next in the Episcopal church of Alhambra.

The date was told by means of tiny booklets of gold with the single leaf inscribed with the two names and wedding date. The color scheme was attractively carried out in pink and white sweet peas, and roses, with tulle ribbons, and pink candles adding the artistic touch to the effect.

Those included were Mrs. Hoyt Hall, Mrs. Edward M. Selby, Mrs. Abe Roberts, of Alhambra; Mrs. E. E. Barnes, Mrs. P. E. Waugh, Mrs. Walter Noble, Mrs. Robert Holland, Mrs. Alice Blair, Mrs. Harry Warren, Mrs. Ruel Neizer, Miss Daisy Roberts, Miss Margaret Geer, Miss Eleanor Bunnell, Miss Christine Bauer, Miss Marjorie Newlin, Miss Adeline Shearer and Miss Janet Jepson.

The bride-elect, who will be graduated from University of California, Southern Branch, in February, is a member of the Alpha Phi sorority there and is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Hall of Marathon street, while Mr. Selby, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Milton Selby of Riviera, was graduated from University of California law college in Berkeley last June and is affiliated with the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity and is also a member of the national legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi.

Mrs. Addie Johnson Is Honor Guest at Birthday Party

Mrs. Georgia Stine, pioneer resident of this city, who has resided for many years at her home, 416 West Washington avenue, entertained at a delightful New Year's dinner, honoring the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Addie Johnson.

The sumptuous dinner with turkey as the piece de resistance, served with many appetizing accessories, was enjoyed at noon. The table was centered with delicate pink camelias, covers being laid for the hostess, the honoree and their old friends, Mrs. R. E. Lehmann, Mrs. E. E. Dibble, Mrs. Sarah Graham, Mrs. B. Green and Miss Pauline Parsons, who assisted the hostess during the day.

The feast was climaxed when a lovely birthday cake with its quota of twinkling candles was set before Mrs. Johnson, who extinguished them, while her friends expressed their good wishes and congratulations. None of the guests would disclose her age, but the combined years would reach a goodly sum.

The Christmas tree and holiday decorations still being in place, Mrs. Johnson's gifts were placed on the tree and she enjoyed a second Santa Claus. Beautiful red carnations added to the Yuletide effect in the living room.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Presbyterian Aid

The spacious home of Judge and Mrs. William H. Thomas was thrown open in lavish Christmas hospitality Thursday afternoon to the members of the southwest section of the First Presbyterian Aid society and the executive board members of the other sections, assembled for an afternoon party.

Instead of having the usual Christmas tree for entertainment; the program committee offered an original entertainment in "The Missionary Box," an amusing little sketch in which those taking part were Mrs. J. J. Hershiser, chairman; Mrs. W. H. Thomas, Mrs. Frank Thomas, Mrs. G. B. Darnell, Mrs. Greene, Mrs. C. E. Searles and Miss Edith Ward.

In the sketch, two boxes were packed, one with a collection of shabby and moth-eaten garments and broken toys, to be sent to a missionary, the other with handsome articles of clothing and beautiful toys for wealthy relatives. When labels were mixed and the boxes reached destinations different from what was intended, the action of the play became most exciting, and yielded a happy afternoon for all who witnessed it.

After refreshments had been served by the hostess committee, a collection was taken for a worthy family in distress, a very satisfactory sum being raised. The guests were then entertained with music by an orchestra of young sons of section members, James and Edgar Thomas of the home, Clark and Floyd Best and Marion Nau.

There were 75 members and guests to share the afternoon's pleasures.

Annual Party

The annual Christmas party for the Bible classes of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Mercereau was held on Thursday evening in the basement of the Ramona building. Santa Claus was there and helped graciously in distributing the presents from a beautifully decorated tree.

A fine musical program was enjoyed and then refreshments of ice cream and cake. The rest of the evening was spent in games. There being plenty of room available it was possible to put on some outdoors sports, the main one of which was a football game between "Stanford" and "Berkeley." Some college yells were heard that sounded very real. Probably the most mirth provoking stunts was the witnessing of the get-away and return of two brides and grooms.

About 30 were present and every one reported having had a fine time.

Bible Class Meets

Mrs. O. S. Catland entertained the members of her Bible class of the First Baptist church at her home on Wellington street Tuesday afternoon. About 55 were present.

Silken Tresses

This lovely head of hair is not the result of excellent care and frequent brushings, but of wise expenditure. It is one of the transformations made of fine white silk floss which Parisian ladies like so much for evening wear. Besides its fascinating lustre, it will take a marcel as well as hair—and silk is easier to find than long hair these days.

Merrymakers Greet New Year at S. A. Country Club

With clashing of cymbals and beating of drums was the old year sent on his way as merrymakers at the Santa Ana Country club greeted the new year Friday night.

The 241 persons who greeted the new year at the country club were also guests there for dinner. Chapman's seven-piece orchestra provided the music which beguiled the time until the hour arrived for the greeting of the new year.

As 12 o'clock approached it was noticed that Father Time had arrived for one last look at the dancers before he should leave for another year. He was impersonated by Carl Mock. Miss Dorothy Tubbs represented the new year and was hailed with appropriate applause as she took the place just vacated by Father Time.

Starting with the dinner and lasting until last night the country club was the mecca for many who were taking advantage of the holiday season, according to T. F. McGilvray, manager.

8 ESCAPE WHEN YACHT GROUNDS ON BEACH SAND

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Burge, of Santa Ana, narrowly escaped death and the $65,000 yacht, Louise, owned by Burge, was wrecked late yesterday afternoon, when the boat went aground on the beach, near Twenty-Fifth street, west of the Newport pier, in a dense fog.

The lives of Mrs. Burge's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Werner, and Mr. and Mrs. William Williams, of Los Angeles also were endangered, in the crash, according to reports received here. Ernest Delgato, engineer on the boat, and a cabin boy, who constituted the crew, escaped with a wetting.

Mr. and Mrs. Burge and party were returning from Catalina Island on the Louise. A heavy fog prevented Burge from seeing shore. Burge was acting captain of the boat and was steering by compass. According to reports, the compass was inaccurate.

The Louise was a 110-foot boat, with a capacity of 14 tons. She was purchased several years ago by Burge, who is a wealthy citrus grower and oil operator. Burge recently spent approximately $20,000 in repairs to the Louise. It was one of the finest boats in Newport bay.

The first warning of disaster came to the party as the boat entered the breakers. Burge signaled for reverse, but the clutch failed to work and the boat went aground. Breakers picked the boat up and soon broke it to pieces.

Only a few articles on the craft were salvaged. Mrs. Burge jumped overboard and waded ashore. Other members of the party were taken off the yacht in a life boat. Fishermen at Newport assisted in the rescue work.

The boat was not insured. According to reports, insurance companies refused to carry insurance on the boat because of the dangerous condition of the entrance to Newport bay.

Miss Clara Reed, 21, pretty modiste, drank poison, according to police reports, and died enroute to the hospital. Her suicide resulted from an unhappy love affair, police said.

Mrs. Estrella, 17, wandered from her home after a quarrel with her husband, and, according to eye-witnesses, threw herself under the wheels of a passing automobile. She suffered a fractured rib and other minor injuries.

Ventures of Valencia

Whenever an eddy of swirling wind stirs the dust into miniature cyclones that move across the fields, lifting bits of paper and dry leaves to the sky on otherwise calm days, people point to the phenomenon and say, "that's a Santa Ana." Thus, the vagrant winds advertise the city, which, my escort says, is a dandy "tie up."

A proprietor of a Santa Ana hotel told me an amusing incident that proves it's an ill wind that blows nobody good. A stranger, carrying a small bag, struggled against the wind as he made his way to the hotel. His overcoat was blown straight out, like a mainsail, his hat was jammed over his eyes, while the bag became a pendulum, swinging in the wind. He found a moment's calm beneath the hotel's marquee. The stranger set down the bag, adjusted his hat and coat and prepared to enter. A sudden blast threw the door wide, the bag slid into the lobby and the guest was urged through a portal, held open by magic hands. The wind subsided and the door closed. The man was comically startled for a moment and then said, "Boy, that's what I call service."

Saturday, Messrs. Hightower and Cromer placed at my disposal a Packard straight eight and, escorted by Mr. Greenleaf, sales manager, I went to Pasadena, to the Tournament of Roses. Originally sponsored by a few members of a hunt club, in 1889, who saw an opportunity for exploiting the town, which they were proud to call home, with the co-operation of the few merchants, the first tournament consisted of rose covered buggys, wagons, etc.

Quick to realize the importance to the community of the pageant, the idea has developed and Saturday there were 500,000 visitors in Pasadena and the tournament has made the city familiar to persons throughout the world. In a lesser degree, perhaps, the Orange County Personality pageant, scheduled for January 20, provides the nucleus of a similar project, whose future development depends entirely upon the vision and civic spirit of local organizations. Our pageant offers opportunity for portrayal of people, products, personalities and places of Orange county.

The Pasadena parade, the colorful carnival crowd and the hosts of automobiles all were so thrilling. The floats, typifying songs which the bands played, developed themes which are close to our hearts. The Salvation Army band, playing "Abide With Me," preceding a simple float, showing the Bible in the home, moved me to tears. By the way, Mr. Cianfoni, resplendent in a gorgeous uniform, led our own Santa Ana band.

I attended the afternoon's football game, between Stanford and Alabama. I wish I were my brother whenever the teams line up for the kickoff. I love the sport.

I was the guest, later, of Charles B. Hervey, of the famous Hotel Green social rendezvous of the tournament since its inception.

An imported fishscaled lace evening frock, from the Sample shop, with an imported "Charlotte Halbe" chapeau and my chinchilla wrap, from the Golden West Fur farms, gained me many compliments from the fashionably gowned assemblage during the tournament dinner, in the evening.

The average level of the cost of living in Great Britain on the first of October, 1926, was 74 per cent above that of July, 1914.

SCHOOLS AGAIN ARE IN SESSION AFTER HOLIDAY VACATION TIME

Santa Ana's 5000 Pupils Return to Classrooms And Resume Their Work

REPORT CARDS DUE AT END OF MONTH

Day Drawing Near for Semi-Annual Promotions; Alterations in Buildings

After enjoying two weeks' holiday vacation, the 5000 pupils in the Santa Ana public schools, today returned to their classes. From kindergarten to the junior college, they were back at their desks.

During the vacation period, the public school buildings were thoroughly cleansed, and numerous minor alterations were made.

The students, many armed with New Year's resolutions, were ready to attack their studies with renewed enthusiasm. The end of the first term already is in sight at the close of January, when Mary and John will receive their report cards covering the first half of the school year.

Advanced students of the mid-year class at Frances Willard and Julia Lathrop junior high schools are approaching the time when they will be promoted to the senior high school. Similarly, over the city, promotions will be made.

The Christmas holidays, just ended, comprise the longest vacation period granted the students during the year. Not until the Easter vacation, in April, will the students again put aside their books for any considerable length of time.

METROPOLITAN WATER BILL ONE OF MOST IMPORTANT ON STATE ASSEMBLY CALENDAR

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of five articles by James H. Howard outlining and explaining the provisions of the proposed metropolitan water district bill designed to enable Southern California cities to join together in securing a domestic water supply from the Colorado river. Mr. Heward, former city attorney of Pasadena, is secretary and a member of the committee appointed to draft this legislation for consideration at the 1927 session of the state legislature.

By JAMES H. HOWARD

At the 1925 session of the California state legislature, there was submitted for consideration and adoption a measure entitled the Metropolitan water district bill. This bill was designed to create legal machinery whereby the various municipalities in Southern California, desiring to do so, might join together in the formation of a district for the purpose of financing, constructing and operating an aqueduct to supply their several needs from the Colorado River.

The Metropolitan water district bill had been formulated following a meeting of the Colorado River Aqueduct association, at which a number of cities, through their representatives, had indicated a strong desire to share in the benefits of a domestic water supply from the Colorado. It was passed by the senate but was defeated in the assembly.

Strong Demand, Real Need

A strong demand and a very real need for this legislation still exists. In view of this fact, the Colorado River Aqueduct association some time ago appointed a committee to study the problem and draft a bill for submission at the 1927 session of the state legislature. This committee is composed of W. B. Mathews, Los Angeles, chairman; James H. Howard, Pasadena, secretary; William Johnstone, San Dimas; Chester Coffin, Santa Monica; Ray Morrow, Glendale; Grant Holcomb, San Bernardino. Hiram Wadsworth, president of the Colorado River Aequeduct association, and former State Senator William J. Carr, of Pasadena, have been made honorary members of the committee.

In naming the committee, President Wadsworth announced that he had made a special effort to obtain widely distributed representation, in order that the interests of no interested community might be overlooked.

The bill, as drafted by the committee, we feel, is in fairly good shape, but there always are opportunities for improvement in a measure of this character. It is, therefore, the purpose of these articles to present to the general public as much detailed information concerning the bill as possible. The committee welcomes suggestions and constructive criticism. Any such suggestions should be submitted to that member of the committee most accessible, or to the writer of these articles. My office now is in room 702, A. G. Bartlett building, Los Angeles.

Purpose of Bill

It is provided that the provisions of the Metropolitan water district bill shall be applicable to the incorporation, government and operation of a unified district composed of cities and local water districts. The bill further provides that the Metropolitan water district, when established, shall have power to acquire and operate a common domestic water supply and distribute water wholesale to the units constituting its membership.

The bill is an enabling act. It does not, in itself, create a water district. It only supplies the legal machinery under which such a district may be formed by any group of cities in the state seeking a water supply. Its terms have been drawn, however, having in mind primarily the problem of the cities of the coastal plane of Southern California in organizing for the purpose of bringing water from the Colorado river.

The act contemplates the formation of non-contiguous cities into a working unit. Inasmuch as there are, in Southern California, some extensive unincorporated areas with an urban character, typified by Altadena, it has been thought wise to include with cities, water districts incorporated for the service of water in other than municipal territory. Under the language of the act, as now written, it would be possible for such an area as Altadena, desiring to secure the benefits of the bill without assuming the full burdens of municipal incorporation, to organize a water district and thereby become a part of the Metropolitan water district. Such local water districts are to be considered as included in the meaning of the words city or cities wherever these terms appear in the bill as now drafted.

Reasons for Exclusion

Unincorporated territory generally has been excluded from membership in the district under the proposed bill. This has been done for several reasons, most potent of which is that while representatives of the areas within the Colorado river basin will not object to a diversion of a domestic water supply out of the basin and into the Southern California coastal plane, they would seriously object to such diversion of water for irrigation purposes, the framers of the bill have deliberately excluded agricultural territory. In this connection, it should be noted that water brought from the Colorado river, while not unduly expensive for domestic purposes, would be too costly for irrigation use.

In considering the Colorado river water from an agricultural standpoint, it must be borne in mind that the securing of an adequate domestic supply from this source will relieve the farms from the present danger of condemnation for municipal use of the water now in use for irrigation purposes. Colorado river water also will relieve the Southern California ground waters from the over drafts that have been necessary under existing conditions.

HANGING LAW ABOLITION IS URGED IN S. A.

Y. M. C. A. Toastmasters And S. A. Pastors Discuss League Formation

Preliminary steps toward securing organized support of a bill to be introduced shortly in the state legislature for the abolition of capital punishment, were taken by a number of persons interested in the proposal.

A meeting will be called within the next few weeks for the purpose of organizing a county section of the California branch of the National League for Abolition of Capital Punishment. The time and place of this meeting will be announced later.

The matter has been discussed in an informal way by the Santa Ana Ministerial association, the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. Toastmasters' club and by private citizens. While the ministerial association did not commit itself to any definite stand on the issue, it is understood that some of its members are in sympathy with the proposal.

Women Indorse Proposal

Prominent among those who are interested in the movement are Mrs. J. V. Kelsey, Garden Grove, president of the Fourth (Orange county) district, California Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Fay R. Spangler, president of the Santa Ana City Federation of the P.-T. A.; Mrs. Ada King Wallis, publisher of the Western Woman; Mrs. Barbara Brooks; and other women identified with social welfare activities.

Inquiries revealed that the California Branch of the National League for Abolition of Capital Punishment has been conducting a campaign in the state for the last three months to secure support for the bill to be introduced in the legislature.

It also was disclosed that efforts will be made to have as many organizations as possible to go on record as favoring the abolition of the death penalty. Private citizens, interested in the proposal, will be asked to communicate their views to State Senator Chester M. Kline and Assemblyman C. D. Ball, representing the county in the legislature.

Seek P.-T. A. Indorsement

In line with this activity, it was intimated that the matter of endorsing the anti-capital punishment measure will be presented at the general membership meeting of the Orange county P.-T. A., set for January 8, in the Tustin high school.

The bill providing for the abolition of the death penalty will be introduced under the auspices of the league.

It reads:

"An act to amend section 190 of the penal code, relating to the punishment of persons found guilty of murder.

"Every person guilty of murder in the first degree shall suffer confinement in the state prison for life; every person guilty of murder in the second degree is punishable by imprisonment in the

CONSTRUCTION OF LINE TO CARRY WATER TO LAGUNA BEACH IS ENGINEERING FEAT

Above are shown sections of pipe which will carry water to Laguna Beach. In the foreground the pipe is shown before it is given a cement coating. In the distance pipe, which already has been coated with cement, is shown being wetted down by workmen to prevent cracking. The pipe is allowed to cure for 10 days. Lower—A section of the 65,000-foot main, spanning an arroyo along the coast highway. The line is considered an engineering feat. Credit for the line is due C. R. Browning, of Irvine, and J. B. Lippincott, of Los Angeles, chief engineers on the project.

JUNIOR COLLEGE WILL BE REPRESENTED IN ORATORY CONTEST ON CONSTITUTION

A contestant will be selected to represent the Santa Ana junior college in the third National Intercollegiate Oratorical contest on the constitution, this year, according to Cecil C. Stewart, forensic coach at the college here.

The first announcement of the contest, in which student orators from colleges and universities over the United States will compete, was made today in plans outlined by the Better American Federation of California, under auspices of which the contest is being conducted.

Last year, Edward Riniker represented the Santa Ana junior college in the regional semi-finals. Riniker is a second-year student at the junior college now and, by the contest rules, again is eligible to compete. Other student orators of the Santa Ana college are expected by Stewart to prepare speeches for the elimination within the Santa Ana junior college to a single spokesman.

Entries Close March 15

If Santa Ana goes into the contest, an entry must be made by March 15, at the contest headquarters, in Washington, D. C.

The contestants from the colleges and universities are to be chosen by April 15 for the elimination meets in the seven regions over the nation. Regions have not been outlined until entries are in, but Santa Ana likely will be in the Pacific southwest section.

The first regional semi-final is set for April 29. The seven regional finals will be held in the period from May 17 to May 29. Grand finals, at which the seven national champion orators will speak, are to be held in Los Angeles, June 23.

Cash prizes, ranging from $1500 to $350, will be awarded the seven national champions, according to their rating in the grand finals.

Nine Subjects Announced

According to the rules, the orations must be original and must not require more than 10 minutes for delivery. Nine subjects have been announced. These are: The Constitution, Washington and the Constitution, Hamilton and the Constitution, Jefferson and the Constitution, Marshall and the Constitution, Franklin and the Constitution, Madison and the Constitution, Webster and the Constitution, and Lincoln and the Constitution.

Undergraduate students in any of the colleges or universities of the United States are eligible to enter the contest.

The purpose of the contest, as stated in the pamphlet issued by the Better American Federation of California, is to increase interest in and respect for the constitution of the United States.

Louis XIV deserved the title of "grand monarch" for his treatment of doctors. He was subjected to an operation for fistula in 1686, which cost him $200,000.

YOUNG PLAYERS OFFER COMEDY AT JR. COLLEGE

Dramatic students of the Santa Ana junior college are to present a two-act play, "A Successful Calamity," at an evening performance, January 14, in the Santa Ana high school auditorium. The cast is composed of 12 students, who are being rehearsed in their parts under the co-direction of Ernest Crozier Phillips and Emil Foust.

Ingenue leads in the cast are taken by Bill Homan, as Henry Wilton, and Miss Lorene Croddy, as Emmie Wilton.

For several weeks, including Christmas vacation, the students have been rehearsing the play, the biggest that has been attempted by the dramatic class of the junior college. Four changes of scenes are required.

The play, written by Clare Kommer, had a run on Broadway for several weeks. In the plot, the "successful calamity" is, in reality, a test of the loyalty of the Wilton family. Henry Wilton doubts that his family would remain to support him in serious straits. He pretends to have been impoverished by reverses. The "calamity" proves successful, as the Wilton family rally to his side.

Ernest Crozier Phillips, dramatics teacher, has left to Emil Foust, advanced dramatics student, most of the details of directing, while he acts as general supervisor.

The cast of characters includes Bill Homan, as Henry Wilton; Miss Lorene Croddy, as Emmie Wilton; Miss Helen Young, as Marguerite; Charles Thorman, as George; Charles Haas, as Conners; John Fitts, as Eddie; Val Clark, as Belden; Irwin Sipherd, as Dr. Broodie; Miss Eulah Barker, as Julia; Milton Davis, as Rafaelo; Miss Goldie Jacobson, as Albertine; and Emil Foust, as Clarence.

OBJECTS TO 'CHICAGO'

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 3.—One product of Yale's new dramatic department is too much for Prof. John C. Acher of the divinity school. After the first act of "Chicago" at a public theater the professor left, saying that while the play might be distressingly true to life, the stench might be kept from the nostrils of the eastern public. "Chicago" is a satirical comedy, written by Maurice Watkins, a student.

SEK STATUE NAMES

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—A committee is having difficulty in finding appropriate names for statues in the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Says the Very Rev. G. Howard C. Robbins, dean of the Cathedral: "One list submitted contained the names of Catherine De Medici and Mary Baker G. Eddy and I cannot guarantee that a statue to either will be placed in the Cathedral."

WORK WILL BE FINISHED SOON ON WATER LINE ALONG COAST

Main Metween Corona del Mar and Laguna Will Be Completed by February 1

COST OF PROJECT IS PLACED AT $900,000

Job Is One of Largest of Its Kind in Southland; Big Feat in Engineering

Construction of the $900,000 water main, now being laid between Corona Del Mar and Laguna Beach will be completed and water turned into the lines by February 1, it was announced here today by H. W. Rohl, general contractor in charge of construction.

The water main is one of the largest of its kind in Southern California and has attracted the attention of engineering men all over the United States. Engineers of Southern California will inspect the pipe line some time this week, according to reports.

The line is regarded as an excellent engineering feat. J. B. Lippincott of Los Angeles and C. R. Browning, engineer for the Irvine Ranch company, are the chief engineers on the project.

Cement Covered Mains

One of the features of the water main is the cement covered welded steel mains, which are being laid. The cement is put on the pipes with a cement gun. A three-sixteenths-inch steel pipe is used for the main. The pipe is 30 inches in diameter. It is covered inside and out with a protective coating of tar and a three-fourths-inch layer of concrete is placed on the exterior of the pipe. The cement covering is re-inforced with a network of wire.

Approximately 43,500 feet of concrete coated steel pipe is being laid to care for the Laguna Beach water supply. Great care is being exercised in laying the pipe. The pipe units are 32 feet in length and weigh 3200 pounds. They are lowered into trenches with block and tackle and are thoroughly inspected for flaws. Each pipe is lapped one inch at the joint and is welded. The pipe is tested every few hundred feet. Where the cement covering has been knocked off in handling, it is replaced.

Before the pipe is laid, it is given a special treatment. The cement is allowed to dry for 10 days before being placed in the ground and during the time of its curing, the pipe is kept wet. Inspection insures first class workmanship.

The concrete covered steel pipe is being used in the portion of the water line which will be under pressure. This will take the line from the source of the water to the highest point on the range of hills over which it must go. A special constructed concrete pipe will be used to carry the water from the high point into Laguna Beach. Approximately 18,000 feet of concrete pipe will be laid.

Cast Iron Pipe

Cast iron pipe will be laid under all highways and railways on the line, according to the engineers. The cast iron pipe is especially designed to withstand the vibration which results from heavy loads passing over the roadways.

AT THE THEATERS

Thoma Meighan in a scene from "The Canadian," picture showing at the Yost Broadway theater tonight and tomorrow.

Dolores Costello in a scene from "The Third Degree," current attraction at the West Coast-Walker theater.

WEST COAST-WALKER

If you remember back to the thrill you experienced when you saw "The Third Degree" on the stage, you will not want to miss being thrilled anew by the screen version of this well known melodrama, which opened yesterday at the West Coast-Walker theater.

The melodrama brings to Dolores Costello, the star, the most dramatic role of her highly successful career. As Annie, the little trapeze performer of a side show in Coney Island, who marries a young millionaire and is estranged from him by his proud father, she gives a beautifully balanced emotional performance.

Louise Dresser, who is featured in the supporting role of Annie's mother, surpasses her moving performance of the mother in "Broken Hearts of Hollywood." The scene where she confesses to Dolores Costello that she is her mother, as well as the murderer of the man who had threatened her happiness, is one of the most perfect in the production.

The special vaudeville numbers selected by Fanchon and Marco are all good. The Orange Grove Trio stopped the show at every performance. The boys offer great harmony.

YOST THEATER

The successful race of a gearless motor against a fast trans-continental express train through the snows, floods and landslides of eight states is the thrilling situation in Priscilla Dean's new picture "The Speeding Venus" which will be the big feature at the Yost theater for the next three days.

In addition, Priscilla manages to crash into a plate glass window, overturn her car several times, cross railroad tracks a fraction of an instant before the train and otherwise fearlessly disport herself at the risk of life and limbs.

The plot of "The Speeding Venus" has to do with a millionaire inventor of a gearless motor, who directs that his fortune be paid to one of two nephews who first perfects his invention and exhibits it at a Los Angeles automobile show.

One of the nephews is unscrupulous and steals the plans which the other has assiduously worked and perfected. When the time comes to ship the two cars by freight, the villain wrecks his rivals machine and safely ships his own.

MURPHY'S COMEDIANS

"The Bride," a thrilling crook comedy in three acts opened Sunday night at Murphy's theater at Orana.

"The Bride" is one of the latest releases for stock, having but recently finished successful runs in the large production centers of the country.

The play is really of a very high class and the comedy is not objectionable. It is well cast and produced in a pleasing manner by the popular company of Murphy's Comedians.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

There are no battles, snow avalanches, cyclones, or Indian stuff in "The Canadian," starring Thomas Meighan at the Yost Broadway now.

It's just a study of the Canadian wheat fields with a farm hand finally winning the love of a cultured girl come over from the "old country." But the picture has a persuasive charm, a quiet, self-contained mood that is easily felt.

The play shows Meighan in a happy light, shows him at ease and acting with his old time sincerity. He looks younger with the years and should be given more parts like this. Mona Palma, graduate of the first Paramount school for training screen players, has the lead, and she brings to a somewhat unthankful kind of a part a gentle dignity that makes it plausible.

The first number on the vaudeville bill is Anderson and Yuel in a novelty skating act from the Orpheum. Then come Gibson and Betty in a humorous little skit called "A Counter Proposal."

The closing act, however, is the outstanding hit of the entire show. Judge Charles Bull of Reno, Nev., assisted by several people gives a "Tribute to Abraham Lincoln." Judge Bull uses no makeup whatever and his resemblance to Lincoln is startling to say the least.

W. B. Martin, class president, announced that the class would hear the male quartet of the Cotton Blossom Singers on January 16. The quartet is made up of colored singers from the Piney Woods school, in Mississippi, and have been heard in Santa Ana before.

The January 16 meeting will be open to the public, both men and women being invited.

ORANGE FORCE TO BE HOST TO COUNTY POLICE

Orange police officers will be hosts at the next meeting of the Orange county Peace Officers' association, the session to be held in the American Legion rooms, city hall, Orange, Wednesday night, according to an announcement made today by Herman Zabel, president of the organization.

The business meeting of the association will be preceded by an entertainment program, being arranged by Chief B. F. Richards, and an address on "Education," by Judge James L. Allen, of the superior court.

Committees to handle the election of new officers of the organization will be selected at the meeting. New officers will be elected at the February meeting.

At the close of Wednesday night's meeting, refreshments will be served by the auxiliary of the Orange American Legion, it was announced.

Leatrice JOY in FOR ALIMONY ONLY

Intriguing situations, suspense, heart-throbs, and an amazing climax make this one of the most delightful comedies in which Leatrice Joy has ever been seen! Don't overlook it!

How Would You Like To Be A Physician?

Most men have certain hours that are theirs. They use them as they see fit. Some spend them in various forms of recreation with their families. In these periods, it is seldom that any one feels free to intrude on either business or professional matters.

WHAT about our physicians? Did you ever think of them and wonder when they had their leisure hours? When they spent an evening with their children or had a night with their families? Probably not. Have you ever noticed that at most every public place you go there comes a call for Doctor So and So?

We know of doctors who for months at a stretch have not had an evening at home. These same men answered hundreds of calls at all hours of the night. Why? Because of the small fee they would get for their services? No! Emphatically No!

THE Physician is no more anxious to get out of a warm bed late at night or to leave a family gathering or a good show simply for a fee than your merchant or grocer would be to be called at the same hour and under the same circumstances to make a small sale.

The physician is just as human as any of us. Yet he is bound by custom, tradition and honor to answer the call of the sick wherever and whenever the call comes.

We repeat—How would you like to be a physician?

It is impossible to place an accurate estimate on the value of our physician's service. Certainly the relief afforded an anxious father or mother when a sick child is aided in the middle of the night can not be figured in monetary value.

Our physicians are serving us faithfully day and night. Is the value of such services appreciated? We must say no. Because it has been shown that less than 10% of our physicians' calls are paid when the call is made, over 75% of the calls are not paid for within thirty days; nearly 50% are not paid for at least sixty days and 25% are not paid for within three to six months.

Considering the anxiety of all concerned when the physician is called; the promptness and faithfulness with which he responds and the character of the service rendered is it fair to your physician to delay payment longer than the first of the month? Much of his work is necessarily of a charitable nature. Certainly those who can, should pay promptly. Think it over!

BEAUTY HONOR WILL BE GIVEN COLLEGE GIRL

Co-eds and, for that matter, the men students also, of the Santa Ana junior college, are anxiously awaiting the return, today, of the Asilomar delegation to learn which fair miss was hoisted atop the pulchritude pedestal as the choice of the delegates in their election on the question of which girl is the prettiest in the junior college student body.

Students were speculating on who might win the palm, which is bestowed annually.

Mis Sara Hales and Miss Helen Young were advanced as likely candidates. Besides naming the prettiest, the Asilomar delegates make a list of the girls, ranking them according to their ideas of beauty.

Election 'Without Malice'

The election has become a custom with the student "Y" leaders during the annual Pacific Southwest conference, held at Asilomar, near Monterey. The balloting is voluntarily undertaken "without malice," but generally ends in some spirited "sour grapes" arguments.

Last year, the girls countered to the men's move and drew up a list of the "sheiks" they voted the most handsome and most popular.

The members of the junior college delegation, accompanied by McKee Fisk, faculty "Y" advisor, were due to arrive back in Santa Ana late tonight, after having attended the eight-day conference, under auspices of the national Y. M. C. A. Those in the delegation were Ray Griset, Allen Goddard, Ross Fields and Melvin Harter.

National Speakers

At the conference, which was attended by nearly 300 students of colleges and universities of California, Nevada and Arizona, speakers of national prominence made addresses on current topics of world-wide importance. A meeting of the Campus "Y" of the Santa Ana junior college is to be held this week for the purpose of hearing the reports of the representatives.

Cigar Stand Punch Boards Are Robbed

Thieves entered the cigar stand of W. L. Barge, 106 East Fourth street, some time last night, after breaking a padlock on the door, and stripped several punch boards of prizes, according to a report filed today with city police.

The boards contained gold coins, two watches and two diamond rings, according to officers.

The theft was discovered by Officer Dean, while making his rounds early this morning.

DEER MAY REPLACE DOGS FOR HAULING

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 3—Tobacco-chewing reindeer, possessing the stubbornness of a mule and the fighting qualities of Gene Tunney, bid fair to challenge the supremacy of the malamutes in the field of Alaskan transportation.

This is the belief of W. G. Culver, formerly of the U. S. bureau of education, who says Eskimo herders of Broad pass are finding a ready sale to prospectors of sled-broke reindeer for draught purposes.

The use of dogs entails hauling dog feed to a base of operations and feeding the animals during the summer months when they have no work to perform. It has been found more economical to utilize a pair of reindeer for hauling supplies over the spring snow crust and then butcher the animals for meat at the end of the journey.

Where it once required 50 pounds of tallow, 100 pounds of corn meal and 100 pounds of rice with addition of dried salmon to feed a dog during the summer, 100 pounds of corn meal and a small quantity of reindoor moss suffices to cover a journey of a hundred miles with a reindeer team, and the prospector's grub bill is reduced to the extent of about 160 pounds of reindeer meat.

Reindeer are extremely temperamental and must be handled with diplomacy and discretion, says Culver.

"Better call a truce when 'Reiny' becomes temperamental," he advises. "Offer him a chew of the various brands of strong plug tobacco, then sit down and wait until the steed's mental process digests his single idea—that of adamant stubbornness—and supplants it with something bespeaking a desire to travel."

RITES TUESDAY FOR J. J. ROPER, S. A. PIONEER

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m., tomorrow, in the Smith and Tuthill chapel, for J. J. Roper, pioneer business man of Santa Ana who died here Friday, at the age of 87 years.

Coming here in 1897, from Jamestown, N. D., Mr. Roper purchased a stationery business of his brother, H. H. Roper, and with his son, P. S. Roper, operated the enterprise for many years, the Stein store of today being the successor of the Roper business. The Ropers discontinued business when the present Spurgeon block was erected.

John J. Roper was born Dec. 28, 1839, in England, and, with his parents, came to the United States when he was 13 years of age. The family located in Garden Prairie, Ill.

Lured to Gold Fields

Lured by the tales of fabulous wealth in the gold fields, Mr. Roper joined a party of gold seekers and came to California in 1863, after 108 days of travel with oxen and horse teams. Mr. Roper's first California activity was in Round valley, where he mined and farmed. His search for gold was unproductive and he later returned to Garden Prairie, where he was married in 1869. Following his marriage, he settled on a farm in that region and resided there for a number of years. For many years during his residence there, he was deputy assessor in his district.

Locating in Jamestown, N. D., later, he engaged in mercantile business and, becoming interested in politics, was elected and served for several terms as county treasurer of Stutsman county, severing his official connection with the county there to come to Santa Ana.

Mr. Roper was of the type of the early day pioneer—rugged, honest and sincere in his friendship. He was preceded in death by Mrs. Roper by five years.

Rev. Benton to Officiate

The Rev. W. H. L. Benton, rector of the Church of the Messiah, will officiate at the services and Cecil Fross Willits will sing. Pallbearers will be C. S. Kendall, I. W. Van Cleve, H. C. Dawes, L. L. Shaw, L. J. Carden and E. B. Smith, who were pallbearers at the funeral of Mrs. Roper.

The pioneer is survived by two sons, P. S. Roper, Santa Ana, and Dr. Ralph Roper, Prescott, Ariz.; two daughters, Mrs. Maude France, Los Angeles, and Mrs. Ethel Sinke, Santa Ana; two sisters, Mrs. Anna Porter and Mrs. Rosa Beckington, Belvidere, Ill., and a brother, S. I. Roper, San Jose.

TO FINISH WATER LINE WORK SOON

Approximately 4000 feet of cast iron pipe will be used.

The Laguna Beach water system is regarded as one of the finest on the coast. It is expected that the cost of the entire system will be more than $900,000. Laguna Beach will be furnished water from two large reservoirs. One of the reservoirs, located in the western section of town, has a capacity of 1,200,000 gallons. The other reservoir, located near Arch Beach, has a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons. Force pumps also will be used to supply the houses located on the hills.

The steel pipe is being supplied by the Steel Pipe and Tank company, of Berkeley. The Western Reinforced Concrete Pipe company, of Los Angeles, is supplying the concrete pipe. The Cement Gun company, of San Francisco, is treating the steel pipe.

Work on the pipe line was started Oct. 20, 1926.

Credit for the line goes to C. R. Browning, an Orange county man. Browning conceived the idea of taking water from the Santa Ana basin, near the ocean, and transporting it across the hills to Laguna and, with the assistance of Lippincott plans for the line were made.

The system is so designed that it is believed it will care for all development along the coast between Corona Del Mar and Arch Beach for many years. Enough water can be taken through the lines to furnish 175,000 persons, Browning claims.

Cognizance is taken of the fact that there is considerable criticism against "life imprisonment" as understood and practiced in the administration of justice, the charge being made that in many instances those sentenced to life imprisonment are released after having served a number of years.

Remove Pardon Power

To offset such criticism, those favoring the abolition of the death penalty, will propose that a sentence to life imprisonment for murder shall be beyond the pardoning power of the governor or the prison board.

Prominent among those identified with the league in California are Dr. David Starr Jordan, Palo Alto; Dr. H. B. Bard, San Diego; District Attorney Matthew Brady, San Francisco; Mrs. A. G. Estes, state president of the W. C. T. U.; John Steven McGroarty, Los Angeles; Mrs. Kathleen Norris, Saratoga; Bishop Edward L. Parsons, San Francisco; Ellen B. Scripps, La Jolla; Judge Spencer M. Marsh, San Diego; and other well known citizens.

The snow came down again.

INJURIES FATAL TO VICTIMS OF CANYON CRASH

The automobile collision in Brea canyon, Saturday morning, has resulted in the deaths of the drivers of the two machines in the crash, Oscar Tunneson, 30, and Paul Omohundro, both of Long Beach. Tunneson died yesterday morning and Omohundro died this morning.

Both men received fractured skulls in the accident. With the other victims of the New Year's day crash, they were taken to the Fullerton General hospital.

An inquest over the bodies will be held in the Seale parlors, Fullerton at 3 o'clock this afternoon, by Coroner Charles D. Brown.

Miss Mamie Carey, Mrs. Paul Omohundro and Miss Elva Walker, also hurt in the collision, are expected to live. Miss Carey, who was cut about the face, was taken to her home yesterday. Mrs. Omohundro and Miss Walker are suffering from shock.

According to witnesses, the accident occurred when the Tunneson car, reported to be traveling at a high rate of speed down a grade, got out of control, crashing into the Omohundro car.

Both machines were demolished in the collision. The victims were all residents of Long Beach.

Funeral arrangements for Tunneson and Omohundro will not be made until after the inquest.

Beautiful CHEVROLET
The Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History

TRULY the most beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet history! Truly an achievement which must immediately change all existing ideas as to what the buyer of a low priced car has a right to expect for his money!

WASHINGTON TUBBS II — By CRANE

EVANGELIST IS READY TO MAKE EASTERN TOUR

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Aimee Semple McPherson is so confident that the conspiracy charges pending against her will be dismissed that she announced today that she will leave Los Angeles next Monday, on her eight weeks' evangelistic tour of the east.

"The state's case has collapsed and I feel certain I will not have to be humiliated by any further prosecution," the evangelist told the United Press in the first definite announcement she has made concerning her contemplated tour.

"It is my firm belief that the Los Angeles county grand jury, after hearing witnesses tomorrow, will refuse to return indictments and that the case will be thrown out of court.

Will Leave With Staff

"I plan to leave next Monday morning with my preaching staff. I will visit principal cities in the east, and tell of the Lord's work that has been carried on by Angelus temple in the face of legal persecution, but I will not stress the conspiracy case, which has been an ugly and unfortunate thing."

Mrs. McPherson said she had not yet worked out the details of her itinerary. She declared she was being helped in her promotion by certain eastern newspapers, which she declined to name.

It is her plan, she said, to put on a nation-wide revival, patterned after her California crusade of recent years, which has won her thousands of followers and made her independently wealthy.

Her tour will be in the nature of a barnstorming, she admitted. She will be accompanied by a corps of expert singers and Musicians, and she may stage for the easterners some of the allegorical tableaux which have featured her Sunday sermons at Angelus temple.

Probability of a blanket dismissal of the conspiracy charges against Aimee Semple McPherson and her associates increased today, following the disclosure of "new evidence" by the district attorney's office.

Charles Maas, proprietor of the Hotel Virginia, at Santa Barbara, faced the evangelist at Angelus temple and told investigators that she was not the "Miss X" who registered at his hotel on the night of May 29.

"Miss X" was the feminine companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio man and co-defendant at armel-by-the-Sea. State's investigaors traced "Miss X" to the Hotel Virginia, where she registered as "Elizabeth Tovey."

"I am certain that Mrs. McPherson was not the woman who registered at my hotel on the night of May 29," Maas said.

District attorney operatives claim was at the Hotel Virginia on that to have established that Ormiston night, and the radio man has admitted that he took a "Miss Tovey" to the Santa Barbara hostelry.

Upsets Strong Link

The hotel proprietor's failure to identify the evangelist is said to have upset the state's strongest remaining link in the chain of asserted evidence linking Ormiston and the evangelist in a flight from Carmel, where District Attorney Asa Keyes once contended the pair were from May 18 to 28, following the evangelist's disappearance at Oecan Park.

The Los Angeles county grand jury is to reconvene tomorrow to complete its revived inquiry into the McPherson riddle. Ormiston was scheduled to resume a story he began last week end, in which he denied that Mrs. McPherson was his companion on the Carmel trip, contending it was another woman.

The radio man's testimony is expected to absolve the evangelist from connection with the Carmel episode of the muddled case. Keyes expects to ask the grand jury to indict Mrs. McPherson and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, on the conspiracy charges. If this is denied, the case will be thrown out of court, the prosecutor, declared, intimating that this would be the probable ending of the long-standing McPherson puzzle.

FRANCE AWAITS A. E. F. RETURN 10 YEARS AFTER

PARIS, Jan. 3—What will happen when some 30,000 ex-doughboys swarm into gay Paree "ten years after," in September, 1927, for their national convention?

The far-reaching potentialities for good and evil in the coming Paris convention of the American Legion are keenly realized by the Americans in France, as well as those in the United States who are paving the way for the invasion of "the second A. E. F."

New testimony of this fact is given by Maj. Gen. Albert Greenlaw, representative of the Legion's national headquarters, addressing the Anglo-American press luncheon. He admitted he had had certain misgivings himself regarding thousands of ex-soldiers returning like an army to Paris before he came here.

Expects Order and Dignity

"But now I'll say I have no fears whatever about the Legion putting across the convention in a dignified and orderly manner," Greenlaw declared, "and the delegates will leave France with the bonds of Franco-American friendship strengthened by the visit."

To this end the Legion is paving the way, with officials here working strenuously, but with the full realization of their big job. Probably none is more anxious that the visiting Legionnaires do nothing in any way to embarrass the ties of amity of the two nations than the American residents in all parts of France, who already are appealing to Amreican authorities to do the utmost to assure a beneficial outcome to the Paris convention.

Possibly prohibition and the reports of the extremes to which it has driven many in large cities back home are responsible for much of this pessimism. At any rate they say they would rather not be in Paris when the 30,000 arrive.

Foch Trusts Doughboys

Nevertheless, Marshal Foch is not alarmed at the prospect. He is willing to trust to the good will and level heads of America's former doughboys, thereby paying high tribute to the prospective visitors in Paris next September.

One factor on which Greenlaw relies is a great aid in achieving this end he disclosed in his address: "In the first place, out of 30,000 attending the convention 10,000 will be ladies—wives, mothers and sisters of veterans. These ladies will be a powerful influence in keeping the menfolk orderly." It also is said that the stay in Paris would be reduced to the minimum time required for business; the rest would be occupied with battlefield and cemetery visits.

WALL ST. JOURNAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Large selling orders greeted the new year on the stock exchange. Stocks were thrown on the market in steady volume, practically throughout the session and bad breaks took place in active stocks of most departments. Sugar shares were strong in response to better price levels for both the raw and refined products. But investment in this group only temporarily checked the downward movements in the general list.

Money conditions were easy. Call money renewed at 5 per cent and was available in the outside market at 4½ per cent. This commercial situation reflected the strong showing made in Saturday's clearing house statement, which set forth a surplus of $21,807,170, compared with a deficit for a corresponding date last year.

DID CONFESSED MURDERER KILL FAMILY HERE?

Was Santa Ana the scene of the murder of three small children and a woman and are the bodies of the victims buried somewhere under a house here?

George J. Hassell, held in Plainview, Tex., for the murder of his wife and eight step-children, to which he is said to have confessed, was reported to have murdered another woman and three children, presumably in Whittier, but Mrs. Nora Guidry, oldest and only living stepchild of Hassell, in an interview in Amarillo, Tex., today is reported as saying that Hassell never lived in Whitier, but that he formerly was a resident of Santa Ana.

Following Hassell's arrest in Texas, he is said to have readily admitted to the wholesale murders but would not state in what town in California the first murders were committed. It was believed that the crimes might have been committed in Whittier.

"As far as I know, Hassell never lived in Whittier," Mrs. Guidry said. "He lived in Santa Ana. For a time he had his mail sent to Whittier and then had it transferred to Santa Ana."

Officers here have not been officially notified of the murders and it is doubtful if the bodies of the first victims will be looked for here until some definite word is received from the Texas city.

NINE CONFIRMED IN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

A class of seven was confirmed last night at the Church of the Messiah, Protestant Episcopal, by the bishop coadjutor, William B. Stevens, of Los Angeles.

In his sermon following the confirmation, Bishop Stevens stressed the point that, even though one should have individual experiences which seem to shake one's faith in Christ that, taken as a whole, the world had benefitted by a faith in Him, and Christ and faith in Him survive.

Bishop Stevens told of the necessity of obedience in all things and illustrated his point by taking the life of Christ as an example. He stated that obedience to one's parents and to one's God is one because neither can be taken without the other.

LANDIS TO PUT ORGANIZED BALL ON TRIAL

Cards Should Have Won From Tide, Claim

STANFORD TEAM BETTER, CLAIM SPORT WRITERS

Alabama Varsity Got Lucky Break, Cashed in On It Is View of Scriveners

LOS ANGELES, Jan 3.—Stanford should have won the east-west battle with Alabama in the Pasadena Rose Bowl Saturday in the opinion of the majority of Pacific Coast sports writers today.

While playing great tribute to the Crimson Tide's performance against the Cardinals, most of the coast scribes attribute the Alabama touchdown to a fortunate "break," a blocked punt. The southern champions were praised, however, for their fighting spirit and their defensive skill against the offensive attack of Stanford, one of the greatest exhibitions of the forward passing game ever witnessed on a Pacific Coast gridiron.

Got Lucky Break

"It was a case of a hard-fighting but inferior team getting a break and cashing in on that break," said Harry Grayson, sporting editor of the Los Angeles record. "Alabama was superb on the defensive, but Stanford should have had at least three touchdowns."

Braven Dyer, of the Los Angeles Times, said: "Second guests are always best, and it occurs that had Wilton punted on the third instead of the fourth down, things would have turned out better for Stanford. Wilton's inexperience probably caused him to stand closer to the line when he prepared for that punt. Alabama showed great defensive work when they kept Stanford from "cashing in" on some apparently sure touchdowns."

Had No Offense

"Alabama is not a great football team," said Howard Langley, football critic of the Illustrated Daily News, Los Angeles. The Crimson Tide is a superior defensive aggregation but it lacks a versatility in the offense that was most disappointing. They showed none of the speed, dash and deception portrayed by Stanford. The fighting spirit of the southerners, together with the overconfidence of Stanford brought about the tie."

"Stanford was a constant threat and should have scored at least three times," said Mark Kelly, sports editor of the Los Angeles Examiner. "Fumbles were disastrous for the Cardinals. Alabama took advantage of a break,

"What next?" wonders Kenesaw M. Landis, high mogul of organized baseball as he calls such notables as Eddie Collins, "Red" Faber, George Burns, Ray Schalk, Clarence Rowland and "Pep" Young to a conference Wednesday to answer charges by "Swede" Risberg, erstwhile White Sox infielder, that they all were involved in the throwing of ball games in 1917.

TIERNANS WIN FROM ORANGE; CINCH SECOND

Playing sensationally behind the brilliant slinging of their big mound ace, "Boissy" Boisseranc, the Tiernan Typewriter company of Santa Ana cinched second place in the Orange County Harbor league by defeating Charley Bustillos' Orange Merchants, 3 to 1, at Irvine park yesterday.

Orange gave its moundsman, Bracamontes, errorless support but the Merchants weren't hitting in the pinches like the Santa Anans and were blanked in every frame but the third one.

George Lackaye's men got to Bracamontes for a couple of counters in the fifth and cinched things with another marker in the eighth. The Daley brothers, Ed and Levitt, were the hitting heroes for the locals, both getting a single and a double. Every Tiernan got a hit but Boisseranc.

The Santa Anans touched Bracamontes for 10 hits. Boisseranc held Orange to four scatered blows.

HERB SALVESON HOLDS ARTISTS TO SINGLE HIT

One healthy scratch hit by Valente, after two were out in the ninth inning, prevented Herb Salveson from registering a no-hit, no-run game against the Laguna Beach Lumber company team at Skidmore park yesterday.

Joe Rodgers, manager of the Republic Supply company team, that defeated Laguna Beach 7 to 0, was deeply disappointed but agreed that Valente would have to be credited with a safe swat. Valente met the ball on the nose with a clean cut and it went like a bullet toward the outfield to the right of the box. Salveson made a try for the ball and touched it with his glove, deflecting the pellet at a sharp angle. Ihrig made a try for the ball and fielded it cleanly, but the fleet-footed "wop" beat the throw to the bag.

Salveson has pitched shut-out ball for 54 innings. His game at Laguna Beach Sunday was the best of his season. He fanned 11 men and passed only one. Only 26 men faced him legally and the batters went out in one, two, three order in eight of the nine innings. Four men faced him in the other inning.

Salveson's support was good. White, too, pitched excellently but five errors behind him, eight passes and a hit batsman, ruined his good work in keeping the seven hits off his delivery scattered over as many innings. Only two of the seven Republic Supply runs were earned. Two errors netted the visitors three runs in the ninth after two were out.

Eddie Gripp made two sensational catches out of his total of five for the day in left field. White and Marshall thrilled the crowd with catches of difficult fouls.

Deitzel and Callan hit for three bases each. Beeson enhanced his chances for the Ernie Johnson cup with two hits out of two times at bat.

RICKARD PLANS CONFERENCE ON TUNNEY MATCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Practicing that brand of oratory which ends with the persuasive plea, "sign right here, please," Tex Rickard will go to St. Louis this week in an effort to induce Gene Tunney to defend the heavyweight title championship this summer.

Tunney, doing a vaudveille turn at a reported $7,000 a week, has notified Rickard that he will hear the promoter's proposition.

When Rickard speaks of championship bouts his voice is as melodic as a cash register.

The situation is as complicated as the threat of Humbert Fugazy, rival promoter, to invade St. Louis. Fugazy already has made his offer to Tunney and believes that the champion is disposed in his favor, but Fugazy has always been inclined to over optimism.

Tunney frankly has passed the word that he will accept the offer which is most advantageous financially. If the bout is held in this state as it probably will be the law allows him a maximum of 37½ per cent of the gate receipts and the champion must decide which promoter is likely to provide a show that will attract the most fans.

Many fight fans believe that since it was Rickard who gave Tunney his chance against Jack Dempsey, the champion owes Rickard another bout, but sentiment probably will have no place in the financial battle of St. Louis.

King George never has been a keen lover of the racing game, as was his father, Edward VII., and the experience of the past season is not calculated to increase His Majesty's interest in the sport. Although the king had a score of horses in training, only three could win three insignificant races, worth in all scarcely $3000.

HEY THERE, GEORGE! WHERE YA GOIN'?

George Bogue, Stanford back, carries the pigskin down the field for a 22-yard gain against Alabama. This play proved one of the exciting moments in the New Year's Day game at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif. The final score was 7 to 7.

Harbor League Club Men To Hold Meet

Representatives of Orange County Harbor League baseball clubs will meet at the Victor Walker sporting goods store here tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock.

The Republic Supplies of Huntington Beach already have cinched first place and it is probable that the representatives will vote to award the Joe Rodgers outfit the championship and declare the season ended.

LONG BEACH TOURNAMENT IS WON BY ARMOUR; GOLFERS IN BIG LOS ANGELES OPEN NEXT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Following Tommy Armour's sensational victory in the $2500 Long Beach Open tournment, amateurs and professionals from all over the country began tuning up today for the west's greatest golf event, the $10,000 Los Angeles Open. The Los Angeles open has drawn the largest list of national and international professionals ever to show in the west. The first qualifying round starts Friday.

Officiating in sports will become a part of the curriculum of Indiana university's summer coaching school next year. It is said to be the first course of its kind ever offered.

Leo Diegel, Al Watrous, MacDonald Smith, Cyril Walker, Bobby Cruickshank, Johnny Farrell, Joe Turnesa, Mike Brady and Tommy Armour are among the pros who start the battle against par for the $10,000 purse.

George Van Elm, national amateur champion, will be the outstanding amateur entered.

Armour, professional at the Congressional Country club, Washington, D. C., by shooting under par twice and equalling par on the other of the three 18 hole rounds romped home an easy winner in the Long Beach tourney.

Armour shot a 69 on his qualifying round, 71 on his second trip and made the last 18 in 67 for a total of 207. Par for the Virginia Country club course is 71.

MacDonald Smith, present Canadian Open champion and internationally known professional, finished second with a 211, four strokes behind Armour.

Bill Mehlhorn and Al Watrous finished one stroke behind Smith, both scoring 212's for the 54 holes.

BILLY EVANS Says

BASEBALL CONSERVATIVE

Baseball is not without its faults. Every now and then it is apparent certain changes in the rules would better the game, but the suggestions are not always acted upon.

When the football rulemakers believe some reform will work for good, it is incorporated in the rules and given a thorough trial. If it fails of its objective, then the following year the solons go back to the old interpretation.

In that sense football is more progressive, despite the fact it has no opportunity to try out suggested reforms before actual play.

• • •

EXPERIMENTAL STATIONS

I would like to see the major leagues' training camps in the south used as experimental stations for some of the reforms that it is believed would help the sport.

The spring games are under the supervision of competent major league umpires. These officials would be in a position to form a definite opinion of the various reforms after seeing them executed in actual competition.

Incidentally, the managers and players would have an opportunity to judge the merits of any suggested change, also the newspapermen following the teams.

This would eliminate the necessity of changing a rule in mid-season, as was the case several years ago relative to what constituted a home run.

MID-SEASON SHIFT

Back in 1920 the rulemakers decided that after a batted ball passed out of the playing field, the jurisdiction of the umpire over it immediately ended.

If the player were fair, in the opinion of the umpire, when it passed out of the playing field, it was a home run, even though it finally curved foul before passing out of his sight.

The rule seemed fair enough and I am still rather partial to it, but the consensus of a majority of the umpires and managers was that it was more accurate for the umpire to render a decision of fair or foul as to where the ball was when it passed out of his view.

This decision was reached after about two months of play, so that part of the season was played under one rule and the rest under just the opposite.

Babe Ruth profited to the extent of six home runs that spring and lost perhaps a dozen others as a result of the chance.

INTENTIONAL PASS

The first experiment I would like to see the teams make in the south would have to do with the intentional pass. Probably there is no solution of this play that would satisfy, yet an experiment would be well worth while.

The other day I received the following suggestion from a California fan, Alfred Lengel. While it is not an exactly new idea, it is one that I have always believed worth experimenting with. Here is his proposed rule.

"It shall be optional with the batter to accept a base on balls after receiving four legal balls and before receiving three strikes." Here is the way such a rule would be interpreted:

• • •

CONCRETE EXAMPLE

Babe Ruth is at bat. He is pitched four balls but refuses to take his base. He finally gets two balls good enough to swing at and fouls off both, making the count three balls and two strikes. Then Ruth, if he desired, could continue to hit until he had his third strike, or, if he preferred, he could walk, provided there had been four wide ones prior to the second strike.

Off hand, as I see it, the one greatest flaw to such a rule would be that it wold tend to greatly delay the game, which is always objectionable.

RISBERG LINKS MANY PLAYERS IN ALLEGATION

Accuses Chicago White Sox Of Paying Detroit Team For 'Sloughing' Series

By CLARK B. KELSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Organized baseball is to be placed on trial here Wednesday before its own highest court, Commissioner K. M. Landis.

From all corners of the land, players and former players were gathering in Chicago to appear before Landis and give their versions of the charges made Saturday night by Charles ("Swede") Risberg and any other charges of corruption which have been or may yet be made.

In telegrams which preceded their personal appearances, most of the players branded Risberg's charges as "lies." Virtually all of them agreed to come before Landis and tell everything they know.

Risberg, who was banned from organized baseball in 1920 for his participation in the 1919 "Black Sox" scandal when the Chicago White Sox threw a world's series to Cincinnati, opened the way for this thorough investigation by telling Landis in the presence of newspaper reporters that in 1917 the entire White Sox team organized a pool and paid the Detroit players for "throwing" a four-game series to the Sox.

Collins, Schalk Accused

Risberg not only named those players who were banned with him from baseball, but he included Eddie Collins, recently manager of the White Sox; Ray Schalk, newly-appointed pilot, and "Red" Raber, who for many years has been the White Sox's pitching ace.

All of the players whom Risberg accused, with the exception of "Chick" Gandil and Oscar ("Happy") Felsch, hotly denied his charges. Collins said they were so "silly" that he wouldn't even come to Chicago to deny them. Schalk was just as insistent in denying them, but hurried at once to Chicago to appear before Landis. Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox at the time, mention by Risberg, came to Chicago from Milwaukee and proclaimed that he would make Risberg "take back those ugly lies." George Burns and "Pep" Young, who were playing with Detroit in 1917, denied the charges jointly in Philadelphia.

Gandil 'Confirms' Charge

But Gandil, in a statement at El Paso, Texas, "confirmed" Risberg's charges, adding that Risberg "hasn't told half of it."

Gandil, star first baseman of the old White Sox team and now manager of a ball club at Hurley, N. M., said that it was he who collected $45 each from the White Sox players.

"I handled the money," Gandil stated. "I took it from the Sox and gave it to Bill James (a Detroit pitcher) and he paid it over to the Detroit players. I didn't regard it as bribe money. It was just a little present to the Detroit players."

Felsch, at his home in Milwaukee, also "confirmed" the Risberg charges, saying that he contributed to the fund.

"And the Swede can tell a lot more on Wednesday if he wants to," Felsch added.

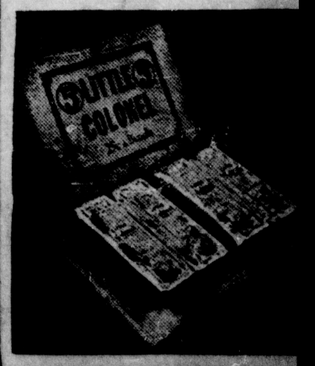
Harlow, Collier, Crenshaw, Patton Win at Golf Club

C. A. Harlow won low gross with an 85 and Dr. M. A. Patton, E. B. Collier and Ray Crenshaw tied for low net with 73's in medal play at the Santa Ana Country club over the past week-end.

Dr. Patton and Crenshaw had 87's, less 14 handicaps, while Collier shot an 91, less 18 handicap.

H. B. Van Dien, president of the club, and C. W. Holcombe tied in the blind bogey tournament, both with 72's.

The first American pugilist to win recognition as champion in the lightweight division was Abe Mickeen, who claimed the title, and defeated Pete McGuire in six rounds at Perryville, Md., in 1868.



TEXAS WIVES SEEK EQUALITY IN LEGAL EYES

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 3.—A Texas wife lost a foot in a street car accident. She won a judgment of several thousand dollars in a suit for loss of the member, but her husband collected and spent the money.

Another woman worked for her living. Her spouse, who was a wastrel, appropriated her week's pay and applied it to his own debt. The court upheld him, reiterating the law that in Texas a wife's earnings are under her husband's exclusive control.

Such is the legal status of some wives in Texas as the state's first woman governor prepares to leave office. Many maintain that the election and the defeat of the woman governor had nothing to do with the emancipation of woman. The presence of a woman governor however, has accentuated the legal status of women.

There are evidences of revolt. Mrs. Sarah Menezes, assistant U. S. district attorney here, has prepared a digest of some legal points affecting women for the Texas League of Women Voters, which may propose remedial legislation, Mrs. Menezes declares that the chief need is a definite law clarifying statutory confusion.

In Texas, rents and revenues from a wife's separate property, and her wages, do not belong to her, but are a part of the community property which is under the husband's exclusive control.

She cannot encumber or convey her separate real estate without her husband's signature. She cannot be the joint maker of a note nor the surety on a bond without the joinder of her husband. If she is in business, her profits are in his control.

If an unmarried woman is a partner in business, her marriage dissolves the partnership, because a married woman's disabilities are such that she cannot continue in the relation of a partner, even with her husband.

When Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson became governor, she had a court declare her a "feme sole" (unmarried woman), for trading purposes, under a 1911 statute, but lawyers state this law has little practical effect on a married woman's status, since she is bound by constitutional limitations.

EACH SHIP LIKE PERSON TO SKIPPER OF IDLE FLEET THAT NOW RUSTS AT ANCHOR

Shipping Board Vessels Stretch for Mile on Hudson River

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—"Yes, sir; they're all individuals to me. Landsmen may call them a bunch of rustling hulks if they like, but I know 'em, every one, just as persons. They're sound, true ships."

Capt. A. S. Lewis withdrew a hand from the breast slits of his great coat and gestured out over the fleet slumbering below the bridge of his flagship, "The Lockport."

Along the bank, where the Hudson rounds Jones point, the vessels stretched away at anchor in a mile of funnels, masts and deck rails. Every railroad passenger between New York and Albany has wagged a head at them.

Fleet Now Halved

"There used to be 140 of 'em," said Captain Lee. "But now there are only 74. I came here with the first of them and know them all. Now and then we break one out to put her in service and once in a while another comes here to anchor.

"The South Pole," now she's the gangway ship. Lying nearest the shore, we use her as a base for the spankers and the launches. If any of the men come back drunk, we throw 'em in the brig there and let 'em sober up till morning.

Captain Lee pointed out with pride the excellent condition of the Conetton. Inside and out she shone, fresh from the paint pot.

"She's one of the best," he said. "Here's my report showing just how we fixed her up. Pretty soon she's going out into service.

"They've said they are falling to rot and ruin. Look at those hulls! Climb over the decks. Go through the engine rooms, the holds, the fo'castles. With nothin' else to do, you don't suppose we're going to sit by idly and let 'em fall apart, do you?

"Buyers come up here quite often. These ships have to be kept in just the condition that attracts them. And that goes for the machinery, too. And below the water line. Not only what you can see."

As captain of the shipping board's Caldwell inactive fleet, perpetually in port, this deep and hairy-chested Norwegian-American is no less extraordinary than his command.

Runs Away From Home

At 12 he ran away from home to sail before the mast. In his early 20's, he rose from mate to master of the three-masted schooner "Mexico," which was blown on the rocks of the Irish coast. Fourteen men lost their lives.

Then he saw brief service on a Dominican gunboat in the Gulf of Mexico, later becoming naturalized and joining the shipping board. During the war, while most of his present charges were being rushed to completion in the shipyards, he was piloting a powder boat from Delaware bay to the hungry guns in France. And now he's at anchor 40 miles from the Atlantic.

"It's better here than being on the ocean, I guess," said he. "I go ashore once a week now and get home to Brooklyn to my wife and boy.

"All day, of course, it's work. At night I read and read. Used to play chess with Freyschmidt, the chief engineer, but we've kinda stopped that since I took to making a model two-master for the youngster.

Bi-weekly Movies

"The men? Well, we have movies for 'em twice a week in the little theater we built on the shelter deck of one of the ships. Then they go ashore every night if they like. But there's nothing there but a store. The railroad was about to give up the station when the fleet came. And the last boat comes out to the fleet at 11 o'clock each night, so they have to be back by then."

If ever there were such paradoxes as landlubbing seafarers, here perforce they are—199 officers and men.

For five years, they've trod the decks and bridges of stout, fit, ocean-going merchantmen which never get farther than 100 yards from land, never sailing, they are neither ashore nor asea.

26 CASES GIN, WHISKEY FOUND NEAR GUN CLUB

Mystery surrounds the finding, yesterday afternoon, of 26 cases of Scotch whiskey and gin on the beach near Bolsa Chica Gun club, about two miles west of Huntington Beach. The liquor evidently had been washed ashore.

Huntington Beach police are in possession of the liquor. Officers were notified of the liquor by Hugh Walters, superintendent of the Bolsa Chica club. The booze was cased in sacks.

It is believed that a rum boat, unloading liquor, became fearful of a raid from the sea and tossed its remaining cargo overboard.

The liquor is valued at approximately $2500. There were about 300 quarts originally, but, according to the officers, many of the bottles had been broken by the waves.

Sheriff's officers captured over 100 cases of liquor two weeks ago in a raid on the beach, near the gun club.

Establishment of a training school in central Alberta for young Jewish farmers, similar to that being operated by the Federated Jewish farmers of Ontario, is under way.

Movie Chatterbox

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Jan. 3.—This story deals with the lives of four men whose great pictures have carried them beyond the heights of their actors and actresses. They are the directors.

Dean of all is D. W. Griffith—under whose banner many celebrities have risen from obscurity. Griffith spent his early years touring with a cheap stock company. For several years his company played one or two-night stands and were lucky to eat regular meals.

Later he appeared on Broadway—always an actor's goal. It was then that he wrote his idea of a scenario for the old Biograph company. They paid him $25. He wrote other scenarios and then started to direct, being one of the pioneers to found Hollywood as a film center. He recently returned "home" after spending seven years in the east.

An Idea at Lunch

One day in 1913, Cecil B. DeMille and Jesse Lasky went to lunch together. They decided to form a partnership for a venture into the motion picture industry—then a mere "babe." Prior to that day, DeMille had been an actor—and not a very good one—often tramping the streets of Manhatten for weeks in search of work.

DeMille came west in 1913, rented an old barn and started production on his first picture, "The Squaw Man." He was the first to produce a feature length picture.

James Cruze literally stepped from a fishing scow to the stage in San Francisco some years ago. Cruze wanted to be an actor, but he couldn't get work because he had had no experience. So he worked as a waiter and on a salmon boat for three years. Then, with the money he had saved, he enrolled in a dramatic school.

Joined Tent Show

Two days later he quit because he didn't like the instructor's methods and got a job as leading man in a tent show. Through a period of years he rose to a Broadway actor. In 1908, Cruze cast his lot with the movies as a leading man for Pathe. Eight years later he induced Jesse Lasky to sign him as a director.

Fifteen years ago, Edwin Carewe was a hobo. It was while "buzzing" through Kansas that he met Jim Tully, now a noted author. One rainy night the two of them caught a westbound freight out of a Kansas siding. That long ride under box cars was—though unknown to him—to start him on his career as a motion picture director.

The two vagabonds landed in Los Angeles without a dime between them. Carewe had had some stage experience so he went to Hollywood and talked the Blaney Brothers into signing him as a director. Then he drew some salary in advance so the two of them could eat.

Right to Divert Water Is Sought

MADERA, Calif., Jan. 3.—Asking that its right to divert and store water for the development of hydro-electric power be determined, the Southern California Edison company has filed a suit in superior court here similar in every respect to the suit filed in Fresno superior court, early last week. Both suits, which name the heirs of the Herminghaus estate as defendants, will be pressed, according to attorneys for the Edison company.

Farm Life Costs As Much as City

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Living on a farm is just about as expensive as city life, according to the agricultural department. Actual living expenses of the average farm family total $1598 a year, the department announced today, after a survey of 2886 farms. This includes food, house rent and fuel for a family of four and one-half persons.

A new type of field-glass which can be attached to the spectacle frame has been invented.

Greetings for the New Year!

WE EXTEND TO ALL OUR FRIENDS a cordial, hearty wish for happiness and prosperity.

And this is a fitting occasion to reaffirm our creed, with hopes that it will make us as many friends in the future as it has in the past.

We believe in a steadfast policy of offering only good furniture, and of offering it at fair prices—based on sound values.

We believe that there are enough people in the Santa Ana trading territory who care for furniture of distinction, beauty and permanent qualities to justify our policy of excluding everything that does not come up to the high standards we have always maintained.

This is our creed, and we take this opportunity to repeat it and to pledge that it will be lived up to as scrupulously through the new year as it has been through former years—and as it will be throughout our whole future of steadfast service.

Licensed Ethyl Gasoline Corporation

ASSOCIATED ETHYL GASOLINE — MORE MILES TO THE GALLON — Knocks out that 'knock'

A premium gasoline? .... You said it! .... Associated Ethyl Gasoline requires 3 cents per gallon over market price .... After you have used a tank full you will wonder why it sells for only 3 cents additional .... You would willingly pay 5 cents.

And here's why:

ACTUALLY TURNS CARBON INTO POWER! Associated Ethyl Gasoline neutralizes the ill effects of carbon and utilizes it to produce greater power. If your car is full of carbon, Associated Ethyl makes it run like new! Your engine takes on new vigor and pep.

STOPS THAT "KNOCK"—whether on hills or in slow traffic now. Associated Ethyl eliminates the cause of knocks and maintains the proper revolutions-per-minute of your engine.

OVER THOSE HILLS IN HIGH. Hills that have forced you to shift to second will now melt away on high gear. On hills that require a shift, you can now go a greater distance before the shift is necessary. And when you start up a hill, put your foot right down to the floor board. Feel your car slip forward in smooth, rapid pick-up!

STOPS THAT "BUCK" IN TRAFFIC. Creep along in high. Then with an opening ahead, jam your foot down to the board. Instant response—smooth, fast, gliding.

SAVES EXPENSE. No more carbon removal. Occasional valve grinding is all that will be required. Harmful knocks and straining jerks eliminated. Far less tendency to motor-overheating. Greater driving satisfaction.

Associated Ethyl Gasoline is truly a super-fuel. It is simply regular sustained quality Associated Gasoline (with its distinctive chain of boiling points) to which has been blended a small quantity of Ethyl brand of Anti-Knock Compound—a compound perfected in the great research laboratories of the General Motors Corporation after seven years of constant experimenting and study.

The addition of Ethyl compound will not make a high-grade gasoline out of a mediocre or poor fuel. It does develop the inherent power-qualities of good gasoline. It merely creates improved conditions of combustion within the cylinders, so that the gasoline can perform to its full capacity. The better the gasoline to which Ethyl is compounded, the better the performance of the resulting combination.

THE ROMANCE OF AMERICA: Tecumseh

Synopsis By Braucher

Tecumseh, outstanding among the Indians, who have played important parts in early American history, was born in 1768 in the Indian village of Piqua, near the present city of Springfield, O. At that time pioneer white men were pushing into Kentucky, a favorite hunting ground of the Shawnees, to which tribe Tecumseh belonged.

In 1780 Piqua was burned to the ground by a raiding party of nearly 1000 white men from Kentucky who defeated the Shawnees.

Tecumseh was eager to avenge the disaster. When he was 17 he was one of a band which captured a party of white men in Kentucky.

The Indians killed all but one of the men they captured. The one unfortunate they spared the horror of the massacre only to burn him at the stake. Tecumseh was sickened by the scene, and while an implacable enemy of the white invader, he swore never to be unnecessarily cruel in warfare. He kept that oath.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tinymites, all full of cheer, have started on the brand new year, and now we find them turning to their snow man once again. Said Scouty, "Gee, but he looks fine. I'm proud the job was partly mine. I surely think he looks just like a lot of living men."

And then he added, "Goodness be, how can our funny snow man see?" And, when the whole crowd turned to look, they came to realize that through a lot of pains you take, you often make a sad mistake. The Tinymites forgot to give the snowman any eyes.

Then, Coppy to the rescue came, Said he, "This may be quite a shame, but I am going to cut some nice black buttons off my shirt." The ones he picked were proper size to make the snowman two nice eyes, and when they put them into place, he surely looked alert.

"Hello, there, Tinymites, I say, I'm feeling pretty good today. Oh, please don't look so scared because you've really heard me talk." It was the queer snowman who spoke. The Tinies thought it all a joke, until they stared and saw the happy snowman start to walk.

"Well, howdy do," wee Scouty cried, "You'd better stand right by my side. I'm afraid that you might slip and fall and break yourself apart." And then the snowman laughed in glee. "Now don't you start to fret," said he. "I came to life so I could have some fun. When do we start?"

They played a game of hide and seek, and watched the funny snowman sneak into the shade to keep out of the hot rays of the sun. Of course they all knew how he felt. He feared that he would likely melt. If such a thing should happen, it would promptly spoil his fun.

(The snowman melts away in the next story.)

ICE

One of the best and most refreshing face treatments you can give yourself, is a thorough rubbing with ice, over the face and the neck, and if you want to, over the shoulders, too. At first you may not like the extreme cold of the ice, but it is good for the skin, and, if used on the neck, not only helps iron out the wrinkles, but also makes the neck less sensitve to draughts and yourself less liable to catch cold.

In the summertime when the skin is relaxed and the pores naturally a little open from the heat, ice is a marvellous astringent and can be used over the face and neck immediately after washing with water and soap. But in the winter, when cold damp winds take a certain amount of oil from the skin anyway, ice should be used following an oil rub or a cold cream massage. Otherwise, the skin may chap.

The best daily treatment, preferably in the morning, is to rub the skin quickly with a little cleansing cream, wash it off, using fairly hot water and a mild soap, (castile or cold cream soap if you can get either) and then rub with ice. The drying effect of the ice is balanced by the oiliness of the cream, and by the fattiness of the soap ,which will not take natural oils from the complexion as a stronger soap would. Another freshening up treatment, which can be given in the evening if you want to make your skin look fine and pretty and if you haven't a great deal of time, is to cleanse the skin quickly with cleansing cream, wash this off with a cloth wrung from hot water, dry with a towel (this takes all the dirt from way down in the pores and is itself very refreshing) and then rub on a little vanishing cream. Rub with ice, over the vanishing cream. It will take off some of the cream, but that does not matter. The combination of the vanising cream and ice is a very good one, it makes the skin soft and clear and fresh, and it will keep on powder all evening.

Patsy M.—If you can go away for a time to some healthy place to rest and recuperate, it would be the best thing for you; but if this is not possible, try changing your habits somewhat, or even your occupation if you do not lose through doing this. Sleep, fresh air and plain nourishing food will do much to build you up.

PRAYER FOR THE NEW YEAR

Lord, I have wished them a glad New Year,
Wished them all joy as they come and go,
But I must go farther than that, I know,
For time is barren of mirth and cheer
And the day brings little of gladness here.
I have wished them a glad New Year, but oh,
I pray for the wisdom to make it so,
Help me to spare them the needless tear.

Let me go forth with a smiling face,
Clean and strong till each day shall end,
Big enough always to play the friend,
Let me brighten their lives with a touch of grace.
Manly, and kindly, and true, I'd be,
So that never their heartaches shall come from me.

If Woman Ever Is Freed From Domestic Routine, Nature Will Do It

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The world goes marching on! "The path of progress is marked by the graves of martyrs," so goes an old saying, and now it is woman who has been chosen for the role.

Close observers of progress tell us that no lasting reform has ever been an abortion of true civilization. Instead, the advance of religion, science, and all the "ologies" that have made for the betterment of man, have been of natural conception and birth.

We have had the renaissance, the age of exploration and settlement, then the age of invention; and now it would appear to be the age of woman!

Just where in the future does civilization intend woman to be? In the home? The agitation of the question is not a grandstand play rehearsed by the lady in question. The heavings and struggles in the economic world are not woman-made—or man-made. They are a natural result of other economic changes that have gone before, and conditions in which we live.

Our chief concern is with the future—and the child is the future. Back of every economic urge is the child.

Woman has been a domestic animal, with variations, according to creed and country, from time unknown.

But first and foremost, regardless of custom, has been her use to the child. She produced the child—she must serve the child. There you have a fixed law of nature that nature herself will not be likely to change.

Women are training themselves, their minds, their bodies, so that their children may have the benefits thus far established by civilization. By new occupations they are enabled, by greater buying power, to give the child the things he will need for a highly specialized future.

The pioneers are having a hard time of it. But they need not be discouraged. If Nature says that the time has come to remove woman from domestic routine so she can serve her children in a different way, no law of man can change it.

We do not know yet if the change taking place in the status of woman is another step toward the great ultimate end or not, but it looks like it.

QUEER QUIRKS of NATURE

BY ARTHUR N. PACK
President, American Nature Assn.

Do you remember when you used to scramble through swamps, with water up to your ankles, to get some leaves from the cat-tails?

The Indians found many uses for what is to us a common plant; the Iroquois found that the heavy matted roots were fairly rich in starch and sugar. They dried and pulverized these roots, which yielded a sweet-tasting flour from which excellent bread and pudding were made.

Hard pressed for food during the war, the German people followed the example of the Indians and the lowly cat-tail was made a boon to many a hungry family.

Flour Nutritious

The flour is similar in composition to rice and corn flour and is highly nutritious. In well-infested swampy land from two to four tons of flour per acre may be secured, and the commercial utilization of cat-tails for this purpose has frequently been discussed.

Cat-Tails

The Indians discovered still another use for the fleshy roots. When mashed and boiled, a syrup of an excellent flavor was produced, which was commonly used by the Iroquois on cornmeal pudding and as a sweetening for other favorite Indian dishes.

Cat-tail roots are said to contain as high as 30 per cent of sugar and starch. At this rate, imagine the quantities of flour or other substances that could be obtained from the common cat-tail and the narrow-leaved cat-tail, both of which are found in such abundance in the swampy regions of the United States and southern Canada.

Cotton Substitute

The root is not the only part of the plant that is useful, for it has been discovered that a cotton substance can be secured from the brown spikes, and that the fine fluffy down that comprises a large part of the heads is also of value in stuffing pillows and cushions.

All of these virtues masking under the belittled cat-tail!

EXCHANGE RUSK OF YULE GIFTS ON AT STORES

Did Aunt Jessie send you an elaborate hair brush for Christmas when the only instrument you can use on your ungarnished dome is a sponge? Don't swear about it! Exchange it! Did your highbrow Cousin Amelia give you the five-foot shelf when the only literature you can assimilate is Elinor Glyn's? Exchange it!

One of the most useful of great American "institutions" is the annual habit of getting rid of white elephants foisted upon us by well-meaning relatives and friends whose generosity is more to be commended than is their discrimination.

Right on the heels of the buying frenzy at Christmas time comes the orgy of exchanging. No sooner do foot-weary salesmen and saleswomen take time out for a deep breath than they are on the job again, soothing savage citizens intent on realizing on Cousin Minnie's stupidity.

The author listened in on a knot of women in a department store, their arms telescoping with bundles.

"She sent me an electric curling iron. Imagine it!" exploded one woman. "That makes three this Christmas. After all the meals that woman's lapped up at my expense she might have made it a waffle iron."

"You've nothing on me," retorted a second. "Santa certainly did me dirt. Brought me six pairs of candlesticks when I needed shoes, and every stocking I have is out at the toes."

"If there's anything in the world I abominate it's Maxfield Parrish," said another, indicating one of her bundles, "and how many 'Gardens of Allah' do you suppose I got? Three, my dear. Three! I can give the other two away as bridge favors, and I'm going to exchange this one for a lamp if I can."

The fourth laughed mirthlessly. "My husband pulled one, as usual," she said. "He knows very well what I wanted, and what did he give me? A pair of bedroom slippers. Applesauce!"

"Mine gave me a lounging robe. Fat chance I have to lounge," seconded the lady with the superfluous curling irons.

All through the store it was the same. Every one seemed to have something to get rid of. The faded little mother of six children, who needed new bungalow aprons and some shiny pans for the kitchen, in which she passed the major part of her existence, was passing over a counter a magnificent Mandarin jacket fit for an empress.

Of course those of us who received candy when we expected diamond bracelets, or cards when we expected candy, are out of luck.

If disappointed, remember that Christmas comes only once a year and that disappointment is purifying.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 3.—The Methodist mission at Piedras Negras, Mex., has been padlocked by the Mexican government, Bishop E. B. Beauchamp charged, following a visit to mission properties in Mexico.

The Mission consists of school buildings and was closed according to Bishop Beauchamp, because the government charged the religious laws had been violated.

No protest has been made to American government officials, but action has been started in the Mexican courts for reopening of the mission, Beauchamp said. He denied that any religious training was given at the schools.

SAYS WARSHIP NECESSARY IN U. S. DEFENSE

ANAHEIM, Jan. 3.—Airplanes may be and probably are important as weapons of national defense, but they cannot be relied upon to bear the complete burden, according to Lieutenant Dale Quarton, U. S. N., who spoke last week before the Anaheim Lions club.

Lieut. Quarton is visiting in Anaheim with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Quarton. Soon he will go to Bremerton, Wash., to fill an assignment to the Puget Sound navy yard. He is a graduate of the Anaheim union high school, and of the Annapolis Naval academy.

"American planes have been placed at a disadvantage in comparison with foreign planes because all factors were not taken into consideration," said Lieut. Quarton. "For instance, we learn that foreign planes can climb to an altitude of 25,000 feet—5000 higher than can be attained by our ships.

"But those giving out this information fail to state that our plane builders have designed our ships so they will climb more rapidly than the heavy winged foreign type. In order to obtain a high 'ceiling' it is necessary to build with a big wing spread.

"Again, we hear that European bombers are so much more speedy than are ours. In Europe, a bomber is a plane that will carry a load of 150 pounds. In the United States we require our bombers to carry a load of from 1500 to 2000 pounds. Naturally the small plane has a much greater speed than has our heavier type.

"We must rely on history as our guide to the fture. There often has appeared a factor in national defense that caused people to say, 'The day of the battleship is over.' This occurred when the torpedo was invented. We heard it again when the submarine came into use. We hear it now about the plane.

"The plane has an effective traveling range of 250 miles. Hence any battleship 300 miles from shore is safe from plane attack. So, until the plane is developed to a greater range we cannot say that the battleship is doomed.

"There has been much agitation against the use of chlorine gas. It has been argued that as a weapon of warfare this gas is barbarous. But after giving the subject considerable thought, I am not so convinced.

"Statistics show that gas has a fatality average of two per cent. Shell fire fatalities amount to 25 per cent. I believe that gas as a weapon of warfare is far more humane than are other modern weapons."

50-ACRE TRACT EAST OF HUNTINGTON BEACH TO BE DRILLED FOR OIL, REPORT

HUNTINGTON Beach, Jan. 3.—Property owners in Huntington Beach are going to get a run for their money. According to late reports, one of the largest and most responsible oil companies has already signed up a 50-acre lease on the lowlands close to the ocean and immediately east of the Huntington Beach townsite. The tract lies just east of the ball grounds on Ocean avenue and just north of the old Santa Ana car tracks. It is stated that the lease has a 90-day drilling clause.

If this report is true—and there is evidence to substantiate it—it means that in the opinion of some of the largest oil companies the east side of Huntington Beach may have as much oil as the newly developed west end.

It is also rumored that negotiations are under way by D. O. Stewart to lease his large tract in the lowlands just east of the city.

If drilling on these two locations east of the city should begin within 90 days, it will lend strength to the belief that oil might underlie the entire city, and this belief may lead to very intensive drilling in the next six months.

On account of the scattered location of the pioneer wells, every property owner may be given a chance to know the oil possibilities of his section of the city. Inasmuch as the voters have gone on record as favoring turning the city into an oil town, this news will be very welcome.

H. B. OIL FIELD INCREASES FLOW

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 3.—Huntington Beach, which reached the top of the list of California's producing fields two weeks ago, went still father ahead last week, increasing its margin over its nearest competitor to 10,000 barrels a day, its total being 105,000 barrels. Of this production more than half, or 70,000 barrels, is due to development in the west end of the city where five new wells were brought in during the week for a total of 8000 barrels a day. The new field now has 105 producing wells, with about 125 others drilling.

Development is spreading rapidly in the area east of Seventeenth street, in the district thrown open to drilling early in November. About 30 derricks are up or are being built in this area, and most of them are regarded as being in productive territory, although the extreme outposts are considered somewhat doubtful.

The Standard Oil company continues to lead the producers with about 15,000 barrels per day from forty wells, Julian Petroleum corporation being second with 12,000 barrels from 11 wells, and Superior Oil company third with 10,000 barrels from 12 wells.

The outstanding completion of last week was a McKeon Drilling company well, which came in at about 2800 barrels a day, and held within 100 barrels of that mark for three days. It is now making 2600 barrels a day and is said to be the best producer in the field.

MESA NOT TO PAY INJURED MOTOR OFFICER

COSTA MESA, Jan. 3.—Costa Mesa has been freed of all liability in the matter of compensation for Frank Vaughn, injured traffic officer, according to a decision just rendered before the state industrial accident commission, sitting at San Francisco.

Action had been brought against the division of motor vehicles and the town of Costa Mesa, on behalf of Frank Vaughn who was seriously injured several months ago when his motorcycle collided with a sedan. The injury caused temporary disability since last August and Vaughn was entitled to $20.83 a week.

The question had arisen over the fact that some 80 subscribers had agreed to raise a sum of $75 a month for the services of Vaughn as traffic officer, the balance of his salary being paid by the state motor vehicle department. Attorneys held that the subscribers were equally liable as employers with the state department and an action was brought against the town of Costa Mesa.

The decision says: "The evidence does not establish that the applicant was in the employ of the defendant, town of Costa Mesa, at the time of said injury. Award is made in favor of Frank Vaughn against division of motor vehicles, for the sum of $122 and the further sum of $20.83 a week beginning November 10, 1926, and continuing until the termination of disability."

THE NEW ADMINISTRATION

There is greater prospect of achievement at Sacramento this session of the legislature than in any session in years.

In the Stephens and Richardson administrations, there was a minority always strong enough to make the passage of legislation difficult. While it is not expected that legislation will go through the new legislature without fights, the Young administration is strong enough numerically to put through almost any legislation that it may desire put through.

The situation is one that might prove disastrous where the administration controlled by a governor with ideals otherwise than high and for the best public service. Gov.-elect C. C. Young, in taking office tomorrow noon, enters upon the work of his office with an exceptional aptitude and exceptional training for initiating and carrying through constructive legislation. He has the confidence of the people of the state.

Much of importance is to come before the legislators during the next four months. The message of the incoming governor, which will be an outline of the things he hopes to see accomplished, will be read with tremendous interest. With a friendly legislature, with an intimate knowledge of the state's business, with a wide experience in legislation, with a distinct and prevading desire to be fair and honest in his investigations and conclusions, the new governor has an opportunity for getting somewhere that he is not going to overlook.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR DOCTOR?

"Man, know thyself," and "When doctors disagree"—these aphorisms suggest the thought that it is important that a man should know his doctor. His doctor knows him—don't doubt that for a minute,—and to be fair to his doctor and to himself he should know his doctor.

So The Register begins today the publication of a series of educational publicity articles, designed to bring about a better understanding of the relations between physicians and their patients, individually, and between the general public and the medical profession as a whole.

These articles have been prepared for regular ethical physicians and approved by the American Medical association.

There is no individual or group or mass relationship of greater social, moral or economic importance than that between the medical profession and the general public; no relationship more sacred, or requiring more intelligent and sympathetic discernment and interpretation for its efficient functioning.

This relationship is one of mutuality—of mutual advantage and mutual obligation; and neither advantage nor obligation is primarily of a material nature—indeed both are peculiarly and in large measure elevated above the material, but must necessarily rest upon a business basis.

It is the hope and belief of those promoting this campaign of educational publicity that, through more intelligent and sympathetic co-operation on the part of their patients, physicians will be enabled to render better service, and that both physicians and patients will profit both morally and materially by a better understanding of each other's problems and points of view.

BIG GAME MULTIPLIES

What protection will do for wild life is shown strikingly in Jasper National Park, which corresponds in Canada to our Yellowstone Park. Big game, which has feared and shunned civilized man and all his works for generations, adapts itself to kindly treatment with remarkable promptness and intelligence.

Elk and deer are feeding within a stone's throw of the railroad yards at Jasper. Mountain sheep and goats visit the outskirts of the town. Bears make regular visits to the back doors of hotels and boarding houses. Deer which formerly fled at the distant sight of human beings are keeping down the grass on the local golf course and taking the place of lawn mowers.

Game of all kinds is multiplying again in the vicinity. There are said to be 10,000 to 15,000 mountain goats within the park, and there are big herds of caribou beyond. Even the grizzly bears, though not fraternizing with men like the black and cinnamon bears, are increasing back in the hills. The Canadian Rockies are being replenished with noble game animals that were on the point of vanishing altogether.

It is always so when society curbs the "killers" and gives wild life a fighting chance. Thanks to the new humanity, the unsportsmanlike folk who seem to kill for the sheer pleasure of killing, without regard to consequences, are no longer having their way on this continent. The result is good for true sportsmen as well as for the constantly growing number of men and women who can look upon beautiful animals and birds in their native habitat without wanting to shoot them.

THE MIGRATORY AGE

Mrs. Agnes Stearns of Leicester, England, who just died at the age of 100, was born, married and lived all her life in the same house.

Will that ever happen again?

Human civilization was migratory in the beginning. It started with the pastoral age, when cave men and hunters tamed animals, acquired herds and had to move with them from pasture to pasture. Then came agriculture, which fixed families rather permanently on the land; then industry and commerce, which packed populations in cities and kept them there.

Doubtless hundreds of millions of people, in these thousands of years, have been born, married and died without moving. You may find houses in old world cities where several generations in succession have done that.

But it is a new age. Transportation, communication, the spread of civilized life, the growth of wealth, all combine to make travel and change easier than ever before. A family or individual now can move to another city or another country as easily as a shepherd in Abraham's time could move to the next valley.

JOHN J. ROPER

His span of life having taken him through days and scenes historic in the history of California, John J. Roper closed his eyes in the city that he loved best of all the places on earth.

He crossed the plains in early days, saw life in mining camps, and had a part in early industry. Though thrown in rough places, there was nothing of roughness in his life or character. He was always a gentleman, kindly in his impulses and in his deeds, thoughtful and likeable and liked.

In his daily affairs, always he was interested in life about him, friendly in his attitude toward others, and his friendships were firm and lasting. Men like Mr. Roper leave a finer, sweeter world behind them than the one into which they come.

Citizenship Along the Border

Fresno Republican

We can not blame Canadians, employed in Detroit and other border cities, with being impatient on being told by their employers to become naturalized Americans or be fired.

The habit of easy indifference to citizenship has been so general that little has been thought of naturalization, especially along the border.

There is such a free intercommunication, and so little difference between persons on the Canadian and the United States side, that such a rule seems an intrusion.

But a little inconvenience of this sort is worth the while, even with accompanying social irritations, if it creates a greater respect for citizenship.

All residents should be citizens as far as possible. Every man who lives in the United States, and every woman, should be a citizen, or seek to become one, unless here on temporary business that requires a continuance of home ties.

There should be no such thing as a sentiment that prevents citizenship. We can not blame immigrants for continuing to have a love of native country. But if this love is so great as to prevent change of citizenship, it should be great enough to prevent a change of residence.

Make residence and citizenship as nearly the same as possible.

And make citizenship, no matter how easy its burdens, at least worth while getting, and keeping.

This Club Not Crowded

San Francisco Chronicle

Time was when the word "club" connoted something exclusive. That was before it was appropriated by the high-pressure salesman. Even now, when an enterprising and colorful reporter wants a word to carry the idea that a man moves in a carefully selected orbit, he calls him a clubman. Club woman means something different, for after all nearly every adult female American citizen is a member of some club or other.

But, howsoever the meaning of the word club has been dissipated, it has been brought back to its pristine significance by the Polar club. This, as the name indicates, restricts its membership to those leaders of expeditions who have carved their names on the projecting ends of the earth's axis. The charter membership consists of Ellsworth, Amundsen and Byrd. Posthumous honorary memberships have been bestowed on Peary and Scott. Here is a club which makes St. Botolph's of Boston look like a town meeting, and Philadelphia's exclusive Rittenhouse resemble the muster roll of the militia.

There is only one possibility of the Polar club's ever becoming overcrowded. That is if "Doc" Cook should apply for membership.

Messengers of Good Will

San Francisco Chronicle

The five army airplanes that took off yesterday from San Antonio to visit twenty nations lying to the south are so many messengers of good will. This is an increasing use for flying craft. Spain sent Commander Franco to Argentina to revive the interests of that Western empire in the motherland. Britain sent Alan J. Cobham on a 28,000-mile flight to Australia to forge new links between the commonwealth and the homeland.

In like manner, friendship is at the steering gear of the army's Pan-American flight. We wish to draw these neighboring cities closer to us by this friendly gesture. It is an enterprise fostered by the state department and conducted by the war department only because the army has the planes and the personnel.

Quite apart from this ambassadorial feature of the flight, however, are the good results looked for in the development of the airplane industry, the testing of new types of planes and the training of pilots in long-distance flying. The flight over the Andes itself should be an absorbing adventure.

MENINGITIS TREATMENT MUST BE PROMPT

Meningitis is an infectious disease, scientifically known at least since 1805.

Early epidemics occurred in the United States previous to 1811. It occurs both as an epidemic and in the form of occasional cases breaking out in various communities.

It is transmitted from one person to another, but is not nearly so infectious as some of the common infectious diseases.

It is generally believed that the bacteria enter the body through the nose and throat and that the disease may be transmitted by contact with a person who is infected and who may cough and sneeze. There also are probable carriers of the disease who carry it about with them but who do not get sick with meningitis.

In meningitis the disease usually sets in suddenly with headache, pains in the back, loss of appetite, chills and vomiting and fever.

The most important early symptom is painful stiffness of the muscles of the neck which may contract so greatly that the head will be drawn back. Sometimes there are tremors of the muscles and spasms of the arms and legs.

Obviously a disease with such serious symptoms should receive the most prompt medical attention. This is absolutely important, since the physician will make an exact diagnosis by the use of the examination of the blood and of the spinal fluid, and will then apply the specific medical treatment which has been shown to have great value in controlling this disease.

The serum, the discovery of which is accredited to Dr. Simon Flexner, must be given as early as possible, in severe cases being injected directly into the veins.

When it is injected into the spine, as is usually done when the organism causing the disease is found in the blood, some of the spinal fluid is first withdrawn.

Since the discovery of this serum, the death rate from this disease has fallen greatly, so that vast numbers of children are now saved who formerly would have died. The many serious complicating results of the disease also are thus avoided.

It Is the Human Heart That Holds Holy Grail

San Francisco Chronicle

The Associated Press properly reverts to its traditional guardedness in sending a story from Manchester, England, about the finding of a cup "which it is thought might have been" used by Christ at the Last Supper. But however difficult to prove or disprove the claims for this particular chalice, it is a subject that challenges the imagination and the reverence of mankind. The search for the Holy Grail was an inspiration to anchorites and warriors, to poets, romancers and musicians through the centuries when Christian civilization was formative and faith was finding expression in great art which still overawes a world grown skeptic.

In a later and unbelieving age, when Richard Wagner had stirred the soul of Christendom with his music dramatizing the mythology of the northern heathen, he wrote the Christian epilogue of his life-work about the search for Christ's cup, to be found only by him whose heart is pure.

Few will be ready to believe that it has turned up in Manchester. It would be a spiritual calamity to have it found. It is the figurative search for it that counts and that some time or other finds a response in every human soul.

Worth While Verse

THE PLEASURES OF MEMORY

Hail, Memory, hail! In thy exhaustless mine
From age to age unnumbered treasures shine!
Thought and her shadowy brood thy call obey.
And Place and Time are subject to thysway!
Thy pleasures must we feel, when most alone,
The only pleasures we can call our own.
Lighter than air. Hope's summer visions die,
If but a fleeting cloud abscure the sky;
If but a beam of sober Reason play.
Lo, Fancy's fairy frostwork melts away!
But can the wiles of Art, the grasp of Power,
Snatch the rich relics of a well-spent hour?
These, when the trembling spirit wings her flight,
Pour round her path a living stream of light;
And gild those pure and perfect realms of rest,
Where Virtue triumphs and her sons are blest.

—Samuel Rogers.

A WISE YOUTH

A small boy had just been vaccinated, and the doctor prepared to bandage the sore arm when the youngster said: "Put it on the other arm, doctor."

"Why, no," said the physician. "I want to put the bandage on your sore arm so the boys at school won't hit you on it."

"Then put it on the other arm please. You don't know the fellows at our school.—Boston Transcript.

AS WE SPEAK IT

Our language is a bit difficult for foreigners. A Frenchman who had come to America to master our vernacular was being shown behind the scenes by the manager of a vaudeville theater. "That actor," said the manager, pointing to one in the wings, "is taking off his make-up to make up for another take-off."

The Frenchman threw up his hands.—Boston Transcript.

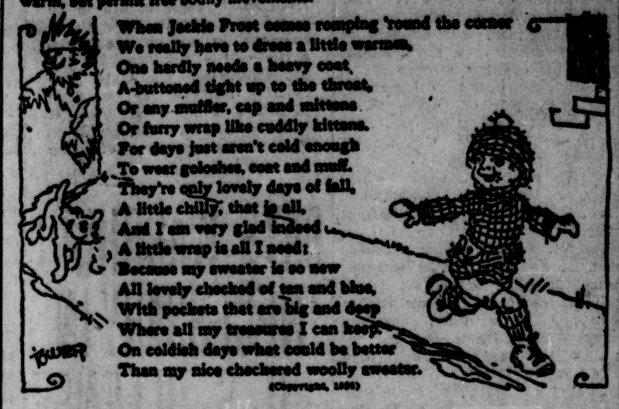
Sweater Days

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

FALL days are sweeter days. It isn't time for heavy wraps, but still the days are chilly and require a little extra clothing. I say "heavy wraps"—I should say warm wraps, for we should never burden a child with heavy clothing. Children are so active that in order not to be burdensome the clothing should be light but of warm materials. Heavy, hot caps, too long thick sleeves and burdensome flapping coats are irritating and cumbersome in play. More than that, children generate more heat and are therefore warmer than grown-ups, so that there is more danger of overdressing them than of clothing them too lightly. So in fall let them wear sweaters which serve the double purpose of being cuddly and warm, but permit free bodily movements.



When Jackie Frost comes romping 'round the corner
We really have to dress a little warmer,
One hardly needs a heavy coat,
A-buttoned tight up to the throat,
Or any muffler, cap and mittens
Or furry wrap like cuddly kittens.
For days just aren't cold enough
To wear galoches, coat and muff.
They're only lovely days of fall,
A little chilly, that is all,
And I am very glad indeed
A little wrap is all I need;
Because my sweater is so new
All lovely checked of tan and blue,
With pockets that are big and deep
Where all my treasures I can keep.
On coldish days what could be better
Than my nice checkered woolly sweater.

Tax System Called Failure

San Bernardino Sun

Speaking before the tax authorities of the country, Ray L. Riley, state controller, declared California's taxation system to be a failure and charged "it has encouraged unwise state expenditures and will continue to do so—"

We could wish that Mr. Riley could place his expert opinion of California's taxation system in the hands of every property owner within California. He shows that instead of relieving the burden on real property the system—known more familiarly in San Bernardino county as Amendment No. 1—actually increased it.

Mr. Riley was thinking of his old home county when he declared:

"A grave injustice was perpetrated in California upon those counties who happened to possess a considerable railroad mileage and in some instances separation caused a loss of one-third of the taxable property within the county."

That sympathy interests San Bernardino county, but probably few others outside of the counties so seriously injured by the system. The entire state will be interested in Mr. Riley's charge that the system has encouraged unwise state expenditures.

Very probably the state is headed toward a revision in the taxation system. Governor-elect Young know of the impossible situations that have been created by the dual system of taxation and he has pledged himself to name a commission to make a careful survey of the taxation methods.

But what of San Bernardino county in the meantime?

Influential members of the new administration have long recognized that San Bernardino county should be reimbursed for at least a portion of its loss. The San Bernardino county delegation in the legislature should investigate the situation. For years the general county fund has been called upon to keep open schools at Needles and some other districts on the desert which were so heavily hit by the withdrawal of railroad property from local taxation. Certainly this burden at least is not the burden exclusively of the people of San Bernardino county but of the entire state. It cannot be hoped that the legislature would make a reimbursement sufficient to set the county's entire loss, for even during the 10-year period the law itself provides such reimbursement should be made by the legislature fell far short of its duty; but it would be a callous legislator who would take the position the responsibility of keeping the schools of Needles open, because of absence of taxable property is not the burden of the state rather than of the county.

The situation at least calls for the effort.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

THAT business today is organized for the purpose of meeting and satisfying the wants of all the people.

THAT business not organized to do this needs working over.

THAT when a business does not function properly and is in the dumps, it needs to be awakened.

THAT advertising with its great pulling and boosting power will do much to get any business out of the dumps.

THAT there is no question but that the least expensive and most effective way to revive a business is by the right kind of advertising.

THAT it "can't be done" are words that should be forgotten. There are men everywhere every day doing things that some people think can't be done. If it needs to be done it can be done.

THAT when a business feels it must be done, then is the time to increase advertising and do it.

THAT a lot of business concerns are always waiting until they think conditions are right. In their way of thinking right conditions never come.

CONDITIONS ARE ALWAYS FAVORABLE FOR GOOD ADVERTISING. ADVERTISING IS NECESSARY IN EVERY BUSINESS.

It's Up to You!

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

It's up to you if you hope to be
A dominant leader of men.
It's up to you if you wish to see
Advancement again and again.
Whatever you think you would like to do,
It's up to you, my boy, it's up to you!

It's up to you if your heart is set
On winning a difficult game.
It's up to you if you plan to get
A measure of glory or fame.
No matter what goal you may have in view,
It's up to you, my boy, it's up to you!

It's up to you if your joy depends
On filling your coffers with gold
It's up to you if you want your friends
To love you until you are old
Whatever good fortune you may pursue,
It's up to you, my boy, it's up to you!
